THE LATEST.

Dr. Cook spent most of yesterday in literary work. He is preparing a lecture on his polar discoveries and expects to mount the rostrum next Monday at Carnegie Institute, New York. He has also signed a contract to appear at the Coliseum, in St. Louis, on October 6. Dr. Cook held an interview with the president of the American Geographical Society. He declined to accept an invitation to take part in the Hudson-Fulton exercises on account of his desire to complete his literary work at once. Commander Peary was unable to reach his home on Eagle Island, off the coast of Maine, yesterday, on account of the rough weather. He expects to leave the mainland to-day, however, and will probably not go to New York before he has offered his proofs to discredit Dr. Cook, which he expects to do in a few days. Gen. Hubbard, president of the Peary Club, it is said, is elated over the mass of testimony Commander Peary has prepared against Dr. Cook and he was said to be favorably impressed with it.

Three hundred members of the Triune Immersionists, or the "Holy Rollers," have been gathered at West Duxbury, Mass., for the past few days expecting the world to come to an end. A 10 o'clock yesterday morning was the time fixed by the leaders for the millennium, but it failed to come and in the way of explanation for missing the schedule, one of the members declared that he had a revelation which indicated that the destruction of the world had been deferred for twenty-four hours. The faithful continued confident that this prophecy would be fulfilled.

Gifford Pinchot, the Chief Forester, joined President Taft's party at Salt Lake City yesterday and was cordially greeted by Mr. Taft. Mr. Pinchot and Secretary Ballinger did not speak when they met. The President made his principal speech yesterday at Provo in a Mormon tabernacle, where he was welcomed by the Governor of Utah and Senator Reed Smoot.

It is generally believed in Madrid that the complications which have arisen between Spain and the Sultan of Morocco, are likely to result in a Spanish-Moroccan war, that is, a war between Spain and the forces of the Sultan of Morocco in distinction to the present fighting which is limited to the Moorish tribesmen inhabiting the Riff country.

The Hudson-Fulton celebration, for which elaborate preparations have been made, begins to-day at New York City. The great naval parade is the leading feature of the first day's programme. The number of visitors in New York is said to be the largest in the history of the city.

Indictments charging conspiracy were returned by the grand jury at Chicago against John J. Holland, secretary of the Jury Commissioners; Willis J. Rayburn, a real estate dealer, and Nicholas Martin, secretary to Alderman "Hinky Dink" Kenna, as a result of the "jury fixing" investigation.

Belated reports received of death and destruction from Monday's hurricane in Louisiana and Mississippi show a further loss of life and property. The list of dead now includes more than a hundred persons, with little hope that a number of others reported missing escaped.

The stockholders of the United States Leather Company and the Central Leather Company, at a meeting in Jersey City, voted in favor of the merging of the two companies. The new corporation will be known as the Central Leather Company.

Dr. William H. Felton, noted in medical circles for having introduced the bill in Congress which placed quinine on the free list of imports, is seriously ill at his home at Cartersville, Ga. He is 87 years old.

The fortnightly report of the American Railway Association on car shortages and surplusages shows a decrease in surplusages of 21,778 cars, bringing the total surplus down to 78,798.

The Census Bureau yesterday announced that the cotton ginning report which was to have been issued at noon on Saturday, October 2, has been postponed until 10 o'clock Monday, October 4.

Dispatches to Dun's Review indicate some interruption to business in the South because of severe storm, but reports from all other sections of the country are uniformly favorable.

At Austin, Tex., Judge Wilcox issued an order for the sale of property of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company on the first Tuesday in December.

It is expected that the Louisville and Nashville railroad will run through trains from Frankfort to Beattyville by March 1.

Elsie Sigel was strangled to death by Leon Ling, according to the verdict of the Coroner's jury rendered at New York.

PINCHOT JOINS TAFT'S PARTY

Passes Secretary Ballinger Without Speaking.

President Delivers Address In Mormon Church.

Tangle Over Sunday Arrangements Unraveled.

MINISTERS MAKE A PROTEST.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 24.—President Taft to-day added a Mormon tabernacle to the long list of religious edifices in which he has made addresses to the people. Not long ago in a Jewish tabernacle at Pittsburg, Mr. Taft declared he was no stranger in the pulpit and enumerated his different experiences in denominational churches.

To-day's experience was entirely new. It was at Provo, a thriving little city forty miles south of Salt Lake, where 80 per cent. of the residents are Mormons and the home of Senator Reed Smoot, that the President faced probably the most effervescently enthusiastic audience of his ten days of traveling to the West.

There was nothing in all the programme to suggest the religious character of the building. The President's appeal to the patriotism of the people, his congratulations on their evidences of prosperity and the fact that they were a community of the law, abiding by the law and determined that every community of which they were a part should be a lawful community called forth continuing cheers. Mr. Taft declared he had intended to speak for five minutes. His reception was so cordial, however, that he spoke for nearly half an hour.

* * *

Goes On To Salt Lake.

From Provo, where he was officially welcomed to Utah by Gov. Spry, Senators Smoot and Sutherland and others, the President came on to Salt Lake, arriving at 4:30 o'clock to remain until Sunday noon.

The arrival of the President developed an incident in the now-famous Ballinger-Pinchot controversy which was extremely interesting to those who saw it. Secretary Ballinger came with the President. At Provo word was received on the President's train that Chief Forester Pinchot had arrived in Salt Lake and would meet the Presidential party there. When the train stopped, Mr. Pinchot was at the foot of the rear platform steps of the President's car with Senator W. E. Borah, of Idaho.

"Why, hello, Pinchot," called the President, extending a hand heartily to grasp that of the chief forester.

"How you do?" he added. "I am glad to see you."

Mr. Pinchot responded cordially.

Then the President greeted Senator Borah with, "Hello, Bill, old fellow; how are you? I am mighty glad to see you."

Several other members of his party followed the President off the rear and then came Secretary Ballinger. Mr. Pinchot was standing directly beside Senator Borah.

* * *

Pass Without Speaking.

Mr. Ballinger greeted Senator Borah with a handshake, but apparently he recognized no one else in the vicinity. Neither he nor Pinchot made any effort to speak.

President Taft was driven from the railway station at the head of a procession of automobiles to the army post at Fort Douglass, where he reviewed the Fifteenth Infantry, which is stationed there. Following the review he held a reception for the officers and their wives and this evening was the guest of honor at a dinner at the fort, returning to the city at 11 o'clock, and retiring to rooms assigned to him at a local hotel.

The President was joined here by John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer and warm personal friend, who will accompany him on the remainder of his long trip.

* * *

Ministers Excited.

The President's visit to Salt Lake has caused a little flurry of excitement among the Protestant ministers. The difficulty arose over the purpose of the committee in charge to have the President speak at the Mormon tabernacle in that city Sunday morning. The controversy did not go as far as a formal protest.

President Taft, in the meantime, had suggested by telegraph a change in the Sunday programme so as to allow his morning to be free for rest and such religious worship as he might choose. The suggestion was agreed to late last night, but after Senator Smoot boarded the President's train at Helper, Utah, early to-day the matter was adjusted by an arrangement of curtailing the Sunday morning services at the tabernacle in time to permit the President to review a flying flag of school children, and then proceed to the little Unitarian church in this city at 11 o'clock.

President Taft will have a comparatively quiet day of it to-morrow, with a long-looked-forward-to game of golf at the Country Club in the afternoon. He may devote some of his time to a further consideration of the Ballinger-Pinchot matter, though he would not discuss the subject in any of its phases to-day

The President is to make his conservation speech at Spokane on Tuesday.

Speech At Provo.

Mr. Taft made his principal speech of the day at Provo. In it he said:

"I am delighted to be here and to receive what I know this to be—a cordial and sincere reception. I am delighted to be here in company with your distinguished Governor and also to meet your Senators and your Congressmen at home. You cannot always tell, you know, when you see Senators and Representatives in Washington, just how they size up at home, and I am glad to be able to testify that, however they size up here, they do size up most emphatically well in Washington.

"We hear often that one section or another of the country is occupying too much space in Washington, is wielding too much influence and is getting too many things to benefit the local community which they represent. On the whole, Congress works out necessarily a compromise. Consider what it is that we are carrying on. Really, we have to rub our eyes sometimes in order to carry ourselves down to a basis of fact and see exactly what it is that we are doing in order to measure what we have accomplished in the way of government by the people.

Continuous Compromise.

"Take eighty or ninety millions of people. If I were speaking in the conservative East I should say eighty, but speaking in the imaginative West, whose thoughts are elevated by the mountains around and the clear air, I will say ninety. Now, in some way or other we have to interpret into controlling force the resultant united opinion of that eighty or ninety millions of people, and put it into Government direction. Hence it is that we have to make a continuous compromise, and each section has got to give up something in order that other sections, themselves giving up something, shall agree with them in the resultant legislation and the resultant administration.

"Now, just for an instance, because I always like to deal with delicate subjects, take the matter of beet sugar. I am very much interested in helping along some people for whom I was a long time the only representative, and that a kind of informal representative in Washington, by letting some of their sugar—I was in favor of letting all their sugar—into this market, because I did not think it would hurt you out here a bit.

"You are going ahead so rapidly that when I talk with a man out here, and he is not thinking of the tariff, he will tell me tales of the manufacture of sugar that will just make me think I want to invest all my money into it at once. But what did we do? We compromised and we said to the people of the Philippine Islands, We will let you into our market to the extent of 250,000 tons and no more, and then the home industry will go on; will not be injured certainly by that importation.

Best After All.

"And we made the compromise. Now that is what we do in Congress, and through the Executive all the time, and while, theoretically, that may seem rather a rule of thumb method of Government, in the long run as you look

WRIGHTS PROPOSE TO PROTECT PATENTS

WILL SUE OWNERS OF FOREIGN-BUILT AEROPLANES.

SAY BLERIOT AND FARMAN MACHINES INFRINGE.

MAKES READY FOR FLIGHT.

New York, Sept. 24.—Any attempt to make flights in this country with a Bleriot or Farman aeroplane, or any other foreign-made flying machine, which they consider an infringement of their patents, will meet with the opposition of the Wright Brothers. Announcement to this effect was made to-day by Wilbur Wright in his aeroplane shed on Governor's Island in connection with a report of the proposed importation of a Bleriot monoplane by H. Hayden Sands, of New York, and the purchase of a Farman bi-plane by J. W. Curzon, of Jackson, Miss.

"If these machines are brought to this country for the purpose of making flights, we will file suits against the owners," said Mr. Wright. "Both the Bleriot machine and the Farman machine are infringements of our patents."

Mr. Wright explained that the basis for his claim that these two foreign machines infringed on the rights of himself and his brother, was not merely their patents on the warping planes, but that they based their contention on the patent governing the combination of any surfaces with the planes by which the machine was made to circle about or to maintain its equilibrium.

According to Mr. Wright, who has seen the various foreign machines, the Bleriot monoplane is a direct infringement of the Wright patent.

While Mr. Wright has completely assembled his aeroplane with the exception of the horizontal rudder, it is not probable that he will make a flight to-morrow. His motor is ready for testing and the monorail is ready to be placed in position.

Mr. Wright has decided to attach a canoe to the under part of his aeroplane. He will cover it with canvas so that it will not fill with water on the bay. The canoe will be placed well in front, as Mr. Wright believed the tendency of the machine on striking the water would be to plunge forward on account of the shape of the planes.

Glenn H. Curtiss is at Hammondsport, N. Y., assembling his machine for next week's flights in this city.

VESSELS ARE SAFE

ANXIETY FOR SHIPS IN HURRICANE IS RELIEVED.

Death List Now Contains Over One Hundred Names and Worst Is Not Known.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 24.—With the list of dead from Monday's tropical hurricane well above 100 to-night, every indication points to a much larger increase of the number who perished. Many small sloops and launches are lying wrecked on the gulf shores of Louisiana and Mississippi and there seems to be little doubt but that at least some of their occupants were lost.

Anxiety for the safety of steamers bound for New Orleans during the hurricane period on the gulf has been relieved. Nearly all of these vessels were many hours late, but finally arrived at this port with the exception of the Utstein, operated in the Central American trade. The Utstein, four days overdue from Puerto Cortez, was reported by incoming vessels to-day to have gone aground off Seashore Light, near the mouth of the Mississippi River. No loss of life is reported.

News of the loss of the oyster lugger Washington and the drowning of her captain, Dominio Bondy, was received here to-day. The boat went down in Lake Ponchatrain. Many other vessels of this class are reported missing.

The steamboat Williams arrived at Morgan City, La., late to-day, towing five disabled luggers and bringing in a number of refugees from the coast-swept section. The rescued families report having buried many bodies in the marshes. Similar reports have been received from Houma, in Terre Bonne parish, La. Many additional stories of suffering were brought in to-day.

McClung Accepts Treasurership.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 24.—Lee McClung, treasurer of Yale University, announced to-day that he would accept the tender of the United States Treasurership and that his resignation at Yale would take effect November 1.

DR. COOK WORKS ON HIS LECTURE

Mounts Platform At Carnegie Institute Monday.

Peary's Friends Preparing For Bitter Attack.

COMMANDER REACHES HOME.

New York, Sept. 24.—For the first time since his arrival here Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, took into his confidence to-day one of the leading American geographical authorities, Archer M. Huntington, president of the American Geographical Society, with whom he had an hour's private conference.

Whether Dr. Cook submitted some of his data to Dr. Huntington, or amplified his previous statements regarding his trip, could not be ascertained, for upon leaving Dr. Huntington refused to comment on the meeting. Dr. Cook's friends, however, announced that just before his departure Dr. Huntington had expressed confidence in the statements of the explorer.

* * *

Busy Preparing Lecture.

Most of Dr. Cook's time to-day was devoted to preparing the literary steps which lead to the lecture platform, which he will mount next Monday at the Carnegie Institute. So carefully is the explorer assembling the material for his first public appearance that he declined many invitations to-day for the Hudson-Fulton celebrations during next week, although a glance from his writing table high up in the Waldorf swept over a vast sea of waving flags and decorations, while the thunder of the saluting in the nearby river heralded the coming celebration. He will witness some of next week's festivities.

Expects Bitter Attack From Peary.

Friends of Dr. Cook, whose claim that he discovered the North Pole has been challenged by Commander R. E. Peary, anticipate a bitter attack on his record. The announcement, several days ago, that a lawyer representing the Peary Arctic Club had been retained at Seattle, Wash., to fully investigate "the details" of Dr. Cook's reported ascent of Mount McKinley followed now by Dr. Cook's effort to have one of the guides who accompanied him on that expedition come to New York. He has sent a telegram to this guide, Edward Burrell, Hamilton, Mont., asking him to lose no time in getting here.

Ever since Dr. Cook's claim to have reached the summit of Mount McKinley was questioned Burrell has remained silent, although one dispatch quoted him as saying he would be ready to make a statement when Dr. Cook reached America.

* * *

To Lecture In St. Louis.

Dr. Cook will tell the first story of his trip to the North Pole and illustrate his journey with stereopticon views in the St. Louis Coliseum on October 6. Mrs. Cook and their two children will accompany him.

Dan C. Nugent, acting for the Business Men's League of St. Louis, obtained the explorer's signature to a contract to-day. The terms are not made public, this being one of the conditions imposed by Dr. Cook.

STORMY WEATHER AGAIN DETAINS THE COMMANDER.

Peary Explains "Noon" Observations That Caused Caustic Comment From Italy.

Portland, Me., Sept. 24.—The arrival of Commander Peary at his summer residence on Eagle Island, in Casco Bay, was deferred until to-morrow because of stormy weather and rough seas. He went to South Harpswell late to-day and spent the night at the home of Capt. A. C. Stover. Early to-morrow, if weather conditions are favorable, Commander Peary will cross to Eagle Island, where he will devote his entire attention, for some time to come, to his reports and correspondence. It is understood he will remain at the island until the North Pole controversy is settled, except for the trip to Bar Harbor Sunday or Monday to furnish further information to Gen. Hubbard.

Commander Peary explained to-day that when he referred to taking observations at noon at the pole he did not mean the Arctic noon of April 6, but the noon he had timed at Cape Columbia. He had carried the Cape Columbia noon up to the Arctic and with that noon took his observations. Failure to go into these details led to the error that so greatly puzzled the Italian astronomers.

READS PEARY'S RECORDS.

Gen. Hubbard Declares They Are Very Interesting.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 24.—"I have read the records submitted by Commander Peary on the question 'Has Cook Been at the Pole?' and found in them much that Dr. Cook has not stated. They are very interesting."

Gen. Thomas Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic Club, made this statement to-day after a careful examination of the Peary records on the controversy, which were submitted to him by Commander Peary at Bangor yesterday. While Gen. Hubbard gives no intimation as to the nature of the proofs which Commander Peary is confident will show that Dr. Cook was not at the pole, it was apparent that he was well satisfied with the records before him.

Commander Peary is expected here Monday afternoon and will remain until Tuesday, during which time he will be a guest at the home of Gen. Hubbard. During his visit Commander Peary will go over the records in detail and supply such information as Gen. Hubbard may desire.

"I think it would be best not to make any statement after the conference with Commander Peary," said Gen. Hubbard, "as it is a matter which the officers of the Peary Arctic Club should pass upon. I shall call a meeting of the club officers very shortly, certainly within two or three weeks, for there shall be no delay. The meeting will be in New York."

The records and observations of Commander Peary at the pole were not submitted to Gen. Hubbard, but will probably be placed before the Peary Arctic Club.

What scientific body in this country may be selected to pass upon the records and data of Commander Peary and Dr. Cook will be considered at the meeting which Gen. Hubbard will call.

PEARY SEEKS REST.

Goes To His Summer Home At Eagle Island For Few Days.

Portland, Me., Sept. 24.—The morning hours to-day were devoted to rest by Commander Peary and his family in their rooms at the Falmouth Hotel, all being much fatigued by their 770-mile journey from Sydney, N. S., and last night's remarkable demonstration on their home coming.

The small launch kept at their summer home at Eagle Island was brought to the city during the forenoon in readiness to take Commander Peary, Mrs. Peary and the two children to Eagle Island about noon. The distance is fifteen miles, and the trip required nearly two hours.

It is understood Mr. Peary will go to Bar Harbor Sunday or Monday for a conference there with Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic Club, to whom he consigned important papers yesterday bearing on the Cook controversy.

"I have authorized no one to make any statement of that kind," said Commander Peary to-day, when shown the dispatch sent from Washington last night intimating that he will resign from the navy and devote the remainder of his life lecturing and writing. He declined to answer whether he has any intention of resigning, declaring that he will take cognizance of no side issues until the main question of who first discovered the North Pole has been settled.

Abruzzi Congratulates Peary.

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The Duke of the Abruzzi, who has returned to his home, after climbing to the highest altitude in the Himalayas ever known to have been reached by man, yesterday sent a message to Commander Peary through the New York Times which reads:

"Turin, Sept. 24, 1909.—To Commander Robert E. Peary: May I congratulate you on the result of your expedition? Am very glad you succeeded.

"ABRUZZI."

The Duke led the Italian Arctic expedition which in 1900 reached latitude 86,33, only 230 miles from the pole.

Invitation To Dr. Cook.

ORDER ISSUED FOR STATE SALE

WIND-UP OF WATERS-PIERCE COMPANY IN TEXAS.

CASE OF PIERCE CONTINUED UNTIL NOVEMBER 29.

COUNSEL PLEADS ILLNESS.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 24.—An order was issued this afternoon by Judge C. A. Wilcox, of the Twenty-sixth district, directing that J. B. Eckhardt, receiver of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, proceed without delay to advertise for sale at public auction and to the highest bidder all the property of every kind and character of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, with a view of speedily winding up the affairs of the company in Texas.

The order provides and directs the sale of the property on the first Tuesday in December, 1909, in Austin. The sale is to be made without further right of redemption and without further valuation or appraisement.

The property is valued at $1,750,000, and is to be sold in bulk. The terms of this order was not reached between the attorneys representing the company and State's attorneys until after an all-day conference. The terms and date of sale are satisfactory to the Waters-Pierce Company.

Coincident with the issuance of this order, an order was issued this afternoon continuing the case of H. Clay Pierce, who is charged with false swearing pending before Judge Calhoun in the Third District Court. This case was set for October 11, but Judge H. S. Priest, of St. Louis, appeared before the court on behalf of Pierce, declaring to bring him to Texas at this time may mean death. Thus the case was continued to November 29, just a brief period before the sale of the Waters-Pierce property.

WHAT IS WHISKY?

PRESIDENT TAFT'S DECISION MAY BE A COMPROMISE.

Expected To Sustain Bowers and Uphold Contentions of Dr. Wiley To Some Extent.

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Taft will probably sustain the ruling of Director General Bowers on the question of "What is whisky," according to advices that have been received here. The President's decision will sustain most of the contentions of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the Government chemist, but it will be held that "straight" whisky is not the only liquor which is entitled to the name of "whisky."

Distilled spirits made from potatoes, molasses, watermelons and other vegetables will not be classed as whisky. Neither will ethyl alcohol reduced to whisky proof, and colored by burnt sugar and other material, be entitled to the name of whisky, according to the ruling of the President.

Up to this point the President will accept the doctrine of Dr. Wiley. But the President will differ from the great pure food expert in fixing the legal status of blended whiskies. These, it is said, Mr. Taft will rule, are entitled to the term "whisky" without qualification. It will be held to be a misbrand under the pure food act to sell blended whisky as straight. If a whisky is blended it must show exactly what it contains.

In making his decision, it is said that the President has given great weight to the report of the British Royal Commission, which was made public a short time ago. This commission took the same position that Solicitor General Bowers did on the question.

Judge Turner Dying.

Eatonton, Ga., Sept. 24.—Judge Joseph Sydney Turner, member of the State Prison Commission, is reported dying. Physicians state he cannot live through the night. He was for years Judge of Putnam County Court.

GREATEST CROWD IN NEW YORK

Gathered For Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

Big Naval Pageant First Day's Feature.

Clermont Undergoes Trial Trip In Good Shape.

EIGHT MILES OF WARSHIPS.

New York, Sept. 24.—The stage to-night is set for the great historical pageant on land and water which opens here to-morrow and will continue for two weeks along the stream that Hudson discovered and Fulton first navigated by steam. All day long the preparations ashore and afloat went on behind a curtain of driving rain and mist, and the Weather Bureau promises fair skies for to-morrow.

Wilbur Wright was busy on Governor's Island preparing for his aerial flights. The great elevated battery of forty searchlights, of 500,000 candle-power each, which at night will play up and down the Hudson and throw colored patterns on a screen of smoke and steam, is in place and needs but the touch of a button to blaze into blinding brightness.

The streets, shops, theaters and transit facilities of the city are filled to overflowing with the greatest crowd—more than a million, it is estimated—that has ever been attracted to New York. All the public buildings and bridges, and the greater number of smaller private establishments, are gay with the blue and orange of Hudson-Fulton bunting and flags and rimmed with incandescent lights.

* * *

Clermont Is Tried.

The clumsy little Clermont—a reproduction of the ship in which Robert Fulton made the first successful voyage by steam—has had her official trials and proved that she can do as well as her original. The quaint Half Moon, with her quainter crew of old-world marines, is historically complete, even to the rude navigator's instruments by which Henry Hudson shaped his course to these shores, and only waits a favoring breeze to make a second voyage of discovery. If it fails, she will have to be ignominiously towed.

State dinners to the many envoys here representing the Powers of the world give nightly emphasis to the international aspect of a celebration which is the epitome of national growth and not a mere glorification of local achievement. A great chain of warships—the largest international gathering ever assembled—stretches up the Hudson River from opposite the central portion of the city until it is lost in the distance beyond Spuyten Duyvil. The arrival to-day of the British flagship Inflexible, one of the swiftest, largest and most powerful ships of the royal navy, carrying Sir Edward Seymour, the British Admiral, and the ranking naval officer of the celebration, and of the four German cruisers, the Hertha, the Bremen, the Dresden and the Victoria Luise, completes the preliminaries for to-morrow's naval parade.

Official Visits.

Grand Admiral von Koester, the personal representative of the German Emperor at the Hudson-Fulton celebration, spent a day of official visits, despite the rain. First came his return call this noon on Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, at Governor's Island. The General had a guard of honor drawn up, and the guns of Fort Jay fired an Admiral's salute for his distinguished visitor. Accompanied by his personal aides, Capt. von Mueller and the German naval attache, Capt. Rotzman, the Admiral next spent an hour on board the German flagship Viktoria Luise, receiving the commanders and officers of the German ships.

Then began his visits to the other flagships. First he called on Admiral Schroeder, aboard the Connecticut. The commanders of all the American ships were there to greet him. Next he called on Admiral Sir Edward Seymour on board the Inflexible. Admiral Seymour, because of the rain, did not come ashore all day. Succeeding visits to the French and Italian flagships followed. Late in the afternoon a reception was given at the Brooklyn navy yard to the commanders of all the foreign ships, to give them an opportunity of becoming acquainted.

To-day's Programme.

That day when justice, not force, shall be the arbiter of peace, will be forecast to-morrow when, in reply to the international salute of twenty-one guns from the Hudson-Fulton fleet to the national and international flags of peace, the chimes of old Trinity church, answering with the tongues of peace, will take up the refrain, "Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth and good will to men." The twin rainbow flags of peace will be unfurled from the roof of a downtown skyscraper by two little girls, in anticipation of the prophecy, "A little child shall lead them."

The arrival of the squadrons of Germany and Great Britain to-day filled up the last gap in the eight-mile line of warships which stretches up the Hudson to a point well beyond Spuyten Duyvil, where the houses along the Palisades become infrequent and even the suburbs of the city are left behind. There was a great tumult of welcome for the newcomers upon their arrival—cannonading, the wig-wagging of flags, the hoarse cheers of sailors echoing across the water and in the evening the long-distance greetings of searchlights.

* * *

German and British Fleets Arrive.

The four German cruisers in coats of spotless white like that of the old "white squadrons" of Uncle Sam's navy came up the bay at the first lifting of the early morning fog. To-night found them swinging familiarly at anchor off Ninetieth street, with their European neighbors, the French and the Dutch, on either side. Throughout the evening there was a great hobnobbing of slim little launches, while the rails of the big vessels were lined with an eager crowd or sailormen, gazing curiously and inquisitively at the shore, where a brilliance of gaudy electric decorations gave promise of a hearty welcome.

The English fleet, which had followed the Germans up the Hudson in a driving, midday rain, took their assigned positions just above Grant's tomb with a bluff exchange of cannonaded compliments with the American battleships anchored just above them. There was a most convincing appearance about the four British warships. The flagship Inflexible with the speed lines of a scout cruiser and the armor and armament of a dreadnought, anchored snugly alongside the American Idaho and the other Britishers took their places close behind. From the peak of the Inflexible a pennant proclaimed the presence of Admiral Seymour.

Vessels Compared.

The four British ships offer an interesting contrast to the American vessels, which are anchored in a sweeping crescent as if for purposes of comparison. The British are plainer and perhaps more businesslike of outline, seemingly lower in the water and with less elaborate superstructure than the Americans. This is in great part accounted for by the fact that the English ships are equipped with the old-style military mast, slim, straight and sightly, while the Americans have the new lattice-work masts which cannot be shot away.

The last of the larger American warships, the Montana, reached her place in the line to-day. None of the torpedo craft had joined their greater sisters to-night.

All were sheltered in the Brooklyn navy yard whence they will issue to-morrow morning to lead the column of merchantmen and pleasure craft in their parade past the anchored giants of war.

Along the Jersey shore 200 fireworks experts worked all day in the rain, getting ready the dozen huge floats from which will be set off to-morrow night the greatest display of pyrotechnics that New York or any other city has ever seen.

Of the many thousand visitors whom New York found in her midst to-night, not the least interesting and not the least interested, were the sailors. Jack came ashore to-day on the first real liberty he has had in three months. For that reason, despite the dismal dirty weather, he blessed the celebration.

MARS NEARER EARTH THAN EVER BEFORE

NOW ONLY ABOUT 35,000,000 MILES AWAY.

PLANET AND ITS SATELLITES ON HIGH HORSES.

WORLD'S EYES UPON THEM.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Mars and its moons were the target of many of the big telescopes in various parts of the world to-day, and with the planet only 35,000,000 miles from the roof of the United States naval observatory, as astronomical sharps figured it, the instruments of that institution will be in use practically all of to-night. To-day's distance between the earth and Mars meant a clipping of 15,000,000 miles off the average intervening space and Prof. Asaph Hall, Jr., son of the astronomer who first discovered the satellites of Mars, began training the naval observatory's great glass on the big light in the sky early in the evening, despite the prevailing clouds, and he announced his purpose of watching developments until 3 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Mars at this time is fairly high on the horizon and under ordinarily fair conditions in this latitude excellent observations should be recorded of the surface markings and polar caps should be recorded. While interest was heightened in to-night's observations by reason of the planet running in closer to the earth than at any other time, the astronomical experts of the Government are not confining their work along this line to-day. Prof. Hall and his associates have been engaged since August 20 in measuring the two moons of Mars and will continue in that work probably for a month or more. The polar cap has taken up less of their time although some very good observations have been made with a view to determining the size of that feature of Mars, and of other markings as well. The satellites are rather close to the planet and some very curious disturbances exercised by the planet, including rather remarkable parallelizing effects, have been noted. To observers studying different portions of Mars the inner moon appears in quite different positions in the sky.

The inner moon, which is in the glare of the planet most of the time, occupies only seven hours and a half in its revolution, while the planet itself is a slow mover, turning on its axis in about twenty-four hours. This is one of the unique features of the solar system. According to scientists, accepting the nebular hypothesis, it is probable that this satellite was once a part of the planet and that the total mass revolved in a shorter time. Observations show the inner moon is quite bright as soon as it gets a little away from the glare of the planet. The outer moon observations are expected to prove of considerable value in determining the mass of Mars.

The naval observatory telescope is the one with which Prof. Hall's father discovered the satellite in 1877.

HOLDS RECORD AS TITHING CHURCH.

First Methodist of Shelbyville, Ind., Raised Over $17,000 In a Year.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The greater part of to-day's session of the Indiana Methodist Conference was consumed in hearing reports of district superintendents. According to these reports, the First Methodist church at Shelbyville is known as the best example of a tithing church. It gives $5,514 this year for benevolences, $4,110 for missions, $4,000 for pastoral support and $20,000 for the Methodist Episcopal Hospital at Indianapolis.

To-night Dr. R. J. Cooke, of New York City, addressed the conference.

SHONTS SUED BY ANGRY HUSBAND

Home-Wrecking, Kentucky Distillery Agent's Charge

Frederick Hipsh Asks $200-000 Damages.

Defendant's Lawyer Says Case of Mistaken Identity.

WIFE WAS A STENOGRAPHER.

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Theodore P. Shonts, president of the $225,000,000 Ryan-Belmont Interborough Metropolitan Company, president of the Chicago and Alton railroad, president of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western railroad, a director of many other important companies, father of the Duchess de Chaulnes and one of the most potent figures in the financial and business life of New York, has been sued for $200,000 damages by the husband of the woman whose affections he is charged with having alienated.

* * *

Mistaken Identity, Declares Shonts.

Through his lawyer, De Lancey Nicoll, Mr. Shonts declares he is the victim of one of the strangest cases of mistaken identity on record.

It would seem, according to Mr. Nicoll, that the president of the "Inter-Met" has some evil double for whose misdeeds Mr. Shonts is being held responsible. Concerning who this double is there is no hint.

* * *

Frederick Hipsh Brings Suit.

The suit against Mr. Shonts is brought by Frederick Hipsh, New York manager of a Kentucky distillery, with offices in the Flatiron building. He lives at the Hotel Langham, One Hundred and Third street and Broadway.

Mr. Hipsh, although not a man of large wealth, has a comfortable income. He is ranked as a successful business man. Extreme devotion to his business caused the only disagreement he and his wife had until he made a discovery on August 2 last, which led to a violent scene at Allenhurst, N. J., and culminated in a separation.

Married His Stenographer.

Mr. Hipsh has made it a practice to work twelve or fourteen hours a day, and this left him little or no time for social diversions, of which his wife was exceedingly fond. There is quite a disparity in their ages. She is fourteen years his junior. He is a Jew and she is a Christian. She was in humble circumstances when they were married five years ago. They have no children. Her maiden name was Anna Lovell. She was employed as a stenographer in Mr. Hipsh's office when he first met her.

* * *

Money For Fine Gowns.

After their marriage they lived in apartments in different hotels in the upper West Side. Mr. Hipsh's income was sufficient to supply his wife with fashionable gowns and many luxuries to which she was unaccustomed in earlier life. It was her custom to spend every summer at some fashionable resort while he remained in town attending to his business affairs and joining his wife for the week-end.

* * *

Met At Narragansett Pier.

The summer of 1907 Mrs. Hipsh spent at Narragansett Pier. Her smart gowns, engaging manners, beauty and cleverness made her acquainted with many persons who moved in good society. Through the Moore family, it is alleged, she met Mr. Shonts there that year.

Thereafter she met him in this city, but on behalf of Mr. Shonts it is declared that he has not seen her for at least six months, and it is further asserted that his acquaintance with Mrs. Hipsh was most limited and confined to the most conventional courtesies which any gentleman pays to a woman whom he knows only casually.

Bitter Against Mr. Shonts.

Mr. Hipsh is most bitter against Mr. Shonts. He charges him with conducting an intrigue with Mrs. Hipsh over a period of two years and not only wrecking her life, but destroying his happiness. Mr. Hipsh loved his wife devotedly, he avers. He was proud of her beauty, her smartness and of her social standing, and it was a pleasure to give her every luxury within his means. Up to the very moment of the discovery of what he regards as evidence of her duplicity he addressed her with endearing terms.

* * *

Not After the Money.

"While I have sued him for $200,000 damages to punish him for the injury he has inflicted on me, I do not want a dollar of his money," said Mr. Hipsh. "All I want is a verdict of $10 or 10 cents or even one cent.

"Then I will use that verdict in a way which will strike terror to the men of great wealth who come to New York to amuse themselves and play on the vanity and weakness of other men's wives, steal their affections, disgrace them and wreck their homes.

"I have faith in the laws of our State and the administration of justice by our courts. There is a law on the statute books of New York which makes conduct of this sort a crime. All I want a verdict for in my civil suit against Mr. Shonts is to use it against him in criminal proceedings which I will press to the end of my resources."

MISS EMMA TAGGART INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE.

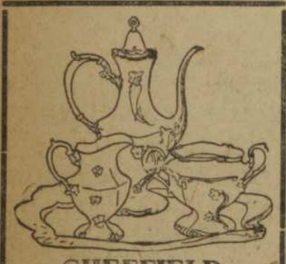

Thrown To Top of Canopy When Car Hit Rut In Road.

Bedford, Ind., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—While going at a high rate of speed the large touring car of Thomas Taggart, of French Lick Springs and Indianapolis, ran into a rut on the pike three miles from this city to-day and his daughter, Miss Emma Taggart, was thrown to the top of the canopy, cutting a gash in her head. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

FIND EMPTY BOTTLE BESIDE YOUNG GIRL

BEARS CARBOLIC ACID LABEL AND IS EMPTY.

TELEPHONE OPERATOR SUFFERS AGONY BEFORE DEATH.

FAMILY ASSIGNS NO REASON.

With an empty bottle clasped in her hand, Anna Callahan, 21 years of age, a telephone operator, was found by her mother in the throes of death, lying on her bed at 7:45 o'clock last night. Before a physician could reach the modest little home on Payne street, near Cooper, the young woman was dead.

According to the statements made by Thomas Callahan, the girl's father, Miss Callahan returned home from her place of employment at 6 o'clock, and, after eating supper, had gone to a drug store, where she purchased some medicine for a younger sister who is ill. Returning to her home, Miss Callahan unpacked two bottles and, so her mother said, took a draught from one of them, saying that she was suffering from a cold.

The girl then went into a sitting-room and talked with her father for a few minutes. He noticed nothing wrong, but a short time after the young woman left his presence Mrs. Callahan rushed into the room and cried: "Get a doctor quick. Anna has taken something." Neighbors were called, and what meager antidotes as were at hand were administered, but without avail. The victim died without regaining consciousness. She lay fully dressed on the bed in her room, and gripped in her blistered hand was an empty bottle bearing a carbolic acid label. Her mouth and lips were burned. At no time did Miss Callahan intimate that she was unhappy, and as she was a favorite among her acquaintances, the idea of self-imposed death was scouted by the members of the family last night.

Miss Callahan had been employed as an operator at the Home Telephone Company's office for the last five years. She was a member of St. Aloysius church and had a host of friends. The mother is prostrated with grief.

NEW ROAD

BEGINS OPERATION SOME TIME IN NOVEMBER.

The Madisonville, Hartford and Eastern An Adjunct of the L. and N.

The Madisonville, Hartford and Eastern railroad, a line that has been under course of construction by the Louisville and Nashville railroad for two years or more, will begin operations some time between November 1 and December 1. While official announcement has not been made to this effect, as yet it was positively stated last night that the new adjunct to the Louisville and Nashville and the L., H. and St. L. will have a schedule in force within a short time, giving the best service from Louisville to Western Kentucky that has been possible in the history of railroading in Kentucky.

All efforts to persuade local officials of the Louisville and Nashville to discuss the plans concerning the new addition last night failed. They declared that official statements will be given out in time as to the amount expended in the building of the road and covering in detail the new schedule to go in effect when it is ready for use.

While the Madisonville, Hartford and Eastern road is only sixty miles in length, extending only from Fordville to Madisonville, it will be an important system since it will make possible a direct line to Louisville from Madisonville. It will enable the Louisville and Nashville to penetrate valuable coal fields in Western Kentucky where a large amount of shipping is done each year and will bring passengers to this city without going out of the way via Guthrie.

It was said on good authority last evening that the road will not be finished by November 1, but some time between that date and November 15 a part of the road will be in operation when the lines of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis railroad will be extended beyond Henderson. When this is done the first train will run on the new tracks and arrangements likely will be made by the officials of the Louisville and Nashville to run the first train over the road direct to this city as soon as possible thereafter.

CANADA THREATENS RETALIATORY MEASURES.

Committee of American News Publishers' Association Discusses Effect of New Tariff.

New York, Sept. 24.—The committee on paper of the American News Publishers' Association to-day gave out a statement concerning the impending trade issues between Canada and the United States, growing out of the newly-imposed duties on print paper and pulp wood, and the various retaliatory measures threatened by Canada. The statement points out the magnitude of the exports and imports between the United States and Canada likely to be affected, and says:

"The provinces of Canada now declare that since the United States has refused to admit print paper upon reasonable terms, they will protect Canadian interests by meeting retaliation with retaliation, and will force many of the American print paper mills to move to Canada.

"Canadian retaliation will strike American exports as varied as coal and cotton, iron and meat, fruits and automobiles, oil and livestock. But the most serious feature of the prospective war is that which affects wood products, valued at $30,000,000, brought into the United States from the Dominion."

NUMEROUS RIOT CALLS UPON OMAHA POLICE.

Street-Car Strikers Force Company To Abandon Effort To Operate After Nightfall.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 24.—Riot calls came from almost all parts of the city to-day in connection with the street-car strike, seven such calls coming within an hour this afternoon. Notwithstanding the activity of the police, not over half a dozen arrests were made.

At most of the points from which riot calls came the crowds dispersed when the officers came in sight. While several cars were badly battered and quite a number of of the imported carmen were injured, it is not believed that there were any injuries of a serious nature.

Car service was stopped at 7 o'clock to-night to avoid trouble. At the headquarters of the street railway it was stated that a number of old men had made application for reinstatement.

END OF WORLD FAILED TO COME

"Holy Rollers" Miscalculate On the Time.

Faithful Religionists Waiting For Millennieum.

Praying In "The Bethel" At West Duxbury, Mass.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS MORE.

West Duxbury, Mass., Sept. 24.—Awaiting the end of the world, which they believe will come before 6 o'clock to-morrow night, the three hundred or more members of "The Latter Reign of the Apostolic Church," who call themselves "Triune Immersionists," and are popularly known as "Holy Rollers," reassembled to-night for a long watch-meeting in their bethel at Ashdod on the main turnpike between Koston and Plymouth. Hundreds of curious people from the neighboring villages lingered outside to note the progress of events, but as the curtains at the windows of the bethel were all drawn close, little of what occurred within was evident to outsiders. Apparently there was a praise service and exhortations and occasionally a voice pitched high in prayer was heard exclaiming, "O, Lord, come soon; don't disappoint us."

Had New Revelation.

Although 10 o'clock this forenoon was originally set as the hour of the coming of the end of all things, the faithful showed little disappointment when one of the elders announced that he had had a new revelation that the world would not be destroyed until some time during the twenty-four hours beginning at 6 o'clock to-night.

Believers only were allowed to enter the bethel during the afternoon. An exception was made in the case of the Rev. Dr. Dillon Bronson, of Brookline, a well-known Methodist clergyman, who was admitted and observed the proceedings for some time.

Earnest In Their Beliefs.

When he came out he said that the participants were evidently earnest in their beliefs, but that much of their talk was unintelligible. Women, with eyes closed and bodies trembling from excitement, made strange, incoherent utterances, which others, claiming to have the "gift of tongues," translated into religious prophecies. Dr. Bronson said that there was much personal hypnotism "in the air," and that he even felt the influence of this hypnotism somewhat himself.

* * *

Assemble Early In Day.

Inspired by the conviction that today would bring the end of the world, the Immersionists assembled about their place of worship early in the forenoon to await the destruction and purification of the world by fire, in fulfillment of their own phophecy.

In contrast with recent proceedings, when noisy revival services have been carried on far into the night, last night passed almost in silence, as the rain fell upon the tents in which those who have come here from far and near are sheltered. In fact, by some, the gathering of heavy clouds at sunset last night was declared to be a "sign" and the heavy downpour of the night an "omen" consistent with their expectations.

Morning Showed "Signs."

The morning was dismal. The sky was heavy with clouds and the air sultry and oppressive. The snowy whiteness of the little wooden chapel at "Ashdad," as the members call the community, was sharply outlined against the dull background of clouds and mist. In this chapel for the past week services have been held, the keynote of which has been a frenzied exhortation to those who were without the pale to repent and be prepared for the expected cataclysm and yesterday afternoon eighteen converts were baptized in a nearby pond.

Throughout the meetings almost unprecedented enthusiasm and fervor have been manifested. Those participating came from every section of New England, while some have journey from as far as Virginia.

As the appointed time drew near the believers filled the chapel and devoted their energies to the singing of hymns. Shortly before 10 o'clock the skies darkened and those who had been watching for a sign appeared convinced that the millennium was at hand. One hymn followed another as the believers waited for the final purification. Ten o'clock came, but the sky brightened and the millenium, in the opinion of the believers, was apparently postponed for a brief period of time.

Destruction Deferred.

It was then explained that a revelation which was made to one of their number last night, indicated that the destruction was to be deferred until some time during the twenty-four hours beginning at 6 o'clock this evening. The faithful still continued confident that their prophesies would be fulfilled, and they spent the remainder of the forenoon praying and singing hymns. There was very little comment when the hour designated for the finality of the earthly things passed.

As the forenoon passed the devout company decided for reasons not announced, to close the chapel and move across the road to "The Bethel," a large frame structure belonging to the society, there to await the end. All but "believers" were carefully excluded, the doors were closed and the curtains in the windows lowered.

One of the leaders was overheard to say that if the "purification" or end of the world did not occur before 6 o'clock p. m. to-morrow, it would, in his opinion, be postponed for fifty years. Many of the believers expressed dissent from this statement.

* * *

Pass Contribution Box.

It is understood here that most of the persons who are confidently awaiting the millennium have disposed of all their worldly goods. All are said to have contributed liberally to the Immersionists, for despite the belief that after the expected dissolution, material things would be of no value, the contribution box was passed frequently at all services. The leaders decline to answer questions concerning the use to which the gifts are to be put.

At noon to-day, in the vicinity of the chapel and the Bethel, a long line of carriages and automobiles was strung along the road, having brought many spectators to witness the proceedings. A prominent Massachusetts clergyman, and several nearby ministers were near the chapel during the day.

Some of the townspeople, displeased at the conditions developing to-day, started a movement to prevent a recurrence of the services.

PLAN CELEBRATION ON A GRAND SCALE

FRANCISCAN MONKS TO COMMEMORATE ANNIVERSARY.

SERVICES BEGIN NEXT FRIDAY AND CONTINUE THREE DAYS.

THE ORDER 700 YEARS OLD.

Preparations are being made by both the Black and the Brown branches of the Order of Franciscan Monks to celebrate and commemorate the establishment of the order 700 years ago. The largest celebration will take place at St. Anthony's church, Twenty-third and Market streets, where for the three days preceding the fest of St. Francis commemorative services will be held, beginning Friday night, October 1.

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights there will be the singing of the benediction, followed by sermons preached by the Rev. Fathers Raffo and Rock. At 10 o'clock Sunday morning there will be a solemn high mass sung by Abbott Schmidt, of St. Meinrad's Monastery, with a sermon by the Rev. Father Basil, of Jasper, Ind. The celebration will close with a solemn high mass at 10 o'clock Monday morning. At this service the rector of St. Anthony's, Father Greulich, will officiate.

A nine-day novena, beginning to-day, will be held at St. Peter's church in honor of the occasion, and there will be benedictions and sermons on the three nights before the feast. The St. Francis Society will go to holy communion in a body on Sunday, October 2, and there will be vespers and a sermon in the afternoon. A solemn high mass will be sung on Monday, October 3. Father Preisser will officiate.

Father Prulin Krentz, the pastor of St. Joseph's church, has not completed the arrangements for the celebration at his church. The feast will be celebrated with a solemn levitical high mass on St. Francis' day and the services will be in charge of the Dominican Fathers from St. Louis Bertrand's church. Father Alexander, of St. Joseph's church, will preach the sermon. Special music will be a feature and one of Mozart's masses will be sung.

There will be 108 altar boys in the sacristy to assist at the mass. At 7 o'clock in the evening the "Transitus," a chant similar to the Tenebrae in form, will be sung by the priests and students. This service takes place but once a year, on the feast day of St. Francis, and consists of the prayers composed by and for St. Francis at his death. It is a very impressive service.

Board of Safety Silent On "Blind Tigers."

HAS GIVEN NO ANSWER TO THE M. P. A.

LEGITIMATE SALOONKEEPERS THOUGHT IT SINCERE.

WHEN IT ASKED FOR AID.

So far, the Board of Public Safety has ignored the request of the executive committee of the Mutual Protective Association for a public hearing so that it might convince the board members of the prevalence of negro "blind tigers" running without regard to law or order. The executive committee also asked for the public hearing so that it might lay before the board numerous instances of violations of the Sunday closing laws.

The day that the letter mailed to Edwin B. Green, chairman of the Board of Public Safety, reached the board, one of the board members said that an answer would be mailed to the executive committee of the Mutual Protective Association yesterday. The promised reply had not reached any member of the executive committee as far as could be learned last night. It seems apparent that the Board of Public Safety intends to ignore the proffered assistance and information which reached it in the shape of a set of resolutions Wednesday morning.

Board Ignores "Blind Tigers."

The only action of the Board of Public Safety taken because of the strong resolutions adopted by the executive committee of the Mutual Protective Association, seems to be in the shape of a card sent to all the newspaper offices by the Board of Public Safety members and signed by them. This official statement laughs aside the fact that "blind tigers" are running openly and urges the people not to listen to any kind of criticism against "the perfect police force of the city."

That "blind tigers" do not exist is stated as a fact in the communication, but there is nothing to controvert the startling exposures made against these negro dives.

The Board of Public Safety and Chief Haager have for many months been requesting information that would aid the police in breaking up gambling and stopping violations of the liquor laws. Every time there was an exposure along these lines, the Board of Public Safety and Chief Haager have come out expressing their willingness to cooperate to the fullest extent if the information was only supplied them on which they could act.

* * *

Actually Thought Board Sincere.

The executive committee of the Mutual Protective Association acting upon the belief that the Board of Public Safety was sincere in its protestations against crime and the lawless sale of liquor, last Tuesday, in a set of resolutions, offered to supply the Board of Public Safety members with information of the most important nature.

The executive committee of the Mutual Protective Association believed that the Board of Public Safety members would be overjoyed at the opportunity afforded them to ascertain the facts and figures which the executive committee has at hand. That the Board of Public Safety would ignore a request to listen to full and complete information as to the "blind tiger" was never expected by the members of the executive committee. So far as can be ascertained the Board of Public Safety has not even been courteous enough to mail a letter to the executive committee, thanking the members for the help they offered. The heads of the police department have ignored the assistance as completely as if it was never offered to them. The Board of Public Safety has so far done everything but deny that it ever received the offer to help rid Louisville of its vicious "blind tigers." Those that have been exposed are all Republican clubs.

It is rumored that something will drop in the "blind-tiger" investigations from the Federal end.

MYSTERY IN DEATH

NEGRO SUCCUMBS AFTER VERY STRANGE STABBING.

Woman Locked Up In Connection With Case—Coroner Not Yet Informed.

After information had been received over the telephone at Central police station last night to the effect that Will Johnson, colored, aged 24 years, died as the result of stab wounds sustained several weeks ago, Detectives Scanlon and Murray and Corporal Broderick arrested Clara Paul, colored, aged 21 years, at Ninth and Green streets, on a charge of murder. The woman admits having cut Johnson in the arm August 30, but says the wound was only a slight one. According to the detectives, the woman had been arrested before on a malicious cutting charge and at the time she was taken into custody last night she was out on bond.

Johnson resided at Highland Park, and was employed on the construction of the Southern Outfall Sewer. Neither the Coroner, Dr. Charles I. Groves, nor George Wilson, town marshal of Highland Park, had been informed of the negro's death at 11 o'clock last night. His death did not occur at the city hospital nor at St. Anthony's Hospital, where he was formerly a patient.

It is believed by the police that the telephone message came from the man's father.

AGED COUNTY RESIDENT'S FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON.

The funeral services over the body of Joseph Gregg, aged 81 years, a farmer, who died at noon yesterday, will be held at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon at the residence of his son, E. H. Gregg, on the Cane Run road. The burial will be in Cave Hill cemetery. Death was due to uremia and came after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Gregg was born at Long Run and had lived in Jefferson county practically all of his life.

FIFTY PERSONS INJURED WHEN CAR JUMPS TRACK.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 24.—Fifty persons were injured, one fatally, in a street car accident near the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition grounds today. Frank Hull, of Tacoma, aged 46 years, died of his injuries.

A car with eighty passengers got beyond control of the motorman and attained a speed of thirty miles an hour. It left the track and crashed into a one-story building, hurling the passengers forward with great force.

Among the injured were P. J. Caldwell and B. C. Rainey, of Youngstown, O., who were not seriously hurt.

NEVER AGAIN!!!

(Illustrating Remarks of Judge Richards Before Revision Committee City Council.)

—From the Telephone ...

Judge Richards: "I appear this afternoon at the request of the City Attorney and of the Mayor to briefly explain this ordinance and to say a few words in favor of its adoption:

"There was a time when the General Council of the City of Louisville and a large number of our people thought it was to the interest of the taxpayers and of the public generally to have two telephone systems in the City of Louisville. The General Council of the City of Louisville was persuaded that by selling a franchise at very low rate for monthly charges, the new company would absorb all of business of the old and in that way we would have virtually a new system at a lower rate. But they have been disappointed. The new company was created. It has a very large number of subscribers—somewhere between eight and ten thousand subscribers—but still the old company has grown also. It has increased its list of subscribers. It has possibly somewhere between ten and eleven thousand subscribers in the City of Louisville. Now, the result is that every man who does a large business—whether it is a corporation business, a mercantile business, or a professional business—is compelled to have on his desk both telephones, and instead of paying for one telephone system, he is to-day paying for two. AND IT HAS BECOME SUCH A BURDEN UPON OUR PEOPLE THAT THE MAYOR CAN SCARCELY WALK YOUR STREETS WITHOUT BEING IMPORTUNED TO DO SOMETHING TO RELIEVE THE SITUATION. IF IT IS IN THE POWER OF THE GENERAL COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF LOUISVILLE TO DO IT, THE PEOPLE HAVE A RIGHT TO DEMAND AT YOUR HANDS THAT YOU SHALL RELIEVE THEM OF THIS BURDEN. Of the seventeen or eighteen thousand subscribers to the telephones in the City of Louisville, I should think it would be reasonable to assume that at least five thousand of them subscribe to this dual system. We might say if they pay an average of $4 for each unnecessary telephone, it makes $20,000 a month or $240,000 a year that the people of Louisville are paying for an unnecessary service."

PINCHOT JOINS TAFT'S PARTY

back through the history of the country you will find that the course pursued, which was the result of compromising the views of the majority into one sound and middle course, was very much better than if we should follow some doctrinaire and tried to follow his theory to the uttermost.

"In other words, we can trust to the common sense of the American people through their representatives to work out the problems we have and in that working out to give effect to the views of all the people, not all the effect to the view of everyone, but to give some effect to the views of all. Under that system it is perfectly true, as Senator Smoot says, that we have the best Government on earth, and representing that Government I have attempted to take a journey through the country of some 13,000 or 14,000 miles for the purpose of convincing the people, if I can, that every man, woman and child, born or naturalized in this country, has a voice and a right to be heard at Washington, and that his interests are the subject of careful consideration by those who represent the Government at that place. It is, I hope, not a partisan journey and will not be regarded as such.

"I congratulate you on the wealth your valley shows and on the industry of the toiling hours that it indicates the inhabitants of this valley have given to the production of the wealth which is yours. I congratulate you on the institutions of learning that you have. I congratulate you on every evidence that you are a community of law, abiding by the laws of your country and determined that every community of which you are a part shall be a lawful community.

"I cannot speak too emphatically on this subject, because at times there is a disposition to trample down law with the theory that we reach some greater object; but on the whole it will be found that the best way to do, if the laws are not right, is to obey them and repeal them, but all the time holding the law up as something to be respected until by the popular voice you shall change it. If you destroy the effect of the law then you might as well give up government, and if we are not to have government and are to have anarchy and socialism, to be governed by a committee, is that going to apportion what belongs to each man?

"Now, my friends, I have talked a great deal longer than I intended to, but when you have an audience that responds as well as you do there is a temptation to go on and continue to talk. I can only add a renewed expression of my gratitude for your cordial reception, and as you have said 'God bless our President,' I want to say 'God bless the people of Provo.'"

MEETING OF PRESIDENTS.

Programme Completed For Reception of Taft and Diaz.

Mexico City, Sept. 24.—The Mexican end of the programme for the meeting between Presidents Taft and Diaz at El Paso has been completed, and was to-day sent to Washington by the Mexican State Department. President Diaz, with his staff, several Cabinet members, a battalion of presidential guards and a number of Government officials will leave Mexico City on the evening of October 12. The presidential train will proceed to the city of Chihuahua, where President Diaz will be the guest of Gov. Enrique C. Creel and the people of the State of Chihuahua. After spending two days in that city the party will proceed to the border. President Diaz will be in the city of El Paso from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., October 16.

President Taft is expected to twice cross the border, first to formally return President Diaz's visit, and again in the evening to be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given by the Mexican executive.

Gov. Creel will run a special train from Chihuahua to El Paso, carrying his private guests, who will witness the meeting of the Presidents.

First Half of Run Completed.

Boston, Sept. 24.—The participants in the F. A. Munsey reliability contest for automobiles from Washington to Boston and return completed the first half of the trip on arriving in Boston to-night, having covered a little over 194 miles from Albany, N. Y., during the day. Twenty-three of the twenty-five cars which started in the race from Washington came in to-night, the first reaching the Control at 5:36, on schedule time.

FACTS ABOUT THE PENNANT CONTEST.

Louisville has three more games to play with Kansas City in three days.

Milwaukee has four more games to play with Columbus in three days.

Minneapolis has five more games to play with Toledo in three days.

If Louisville wins one game Milwaukee must win four to land the pennant, or should Milwaukee win the four remaining games Louisville must take two from Kansas City to land the much-coveted flag.

Minneapolis has a poor chance. The Millers could win if Louisville loses two and Milwaukee one and they win the remaining five games with Toledo, or, should Louisville lose three, Milwaukee two and Minneapolis win four out of five.

LOUISVILLE won, Milwaukee lost and Minneapolis did not play! Thus the vise tightens in this splendid race in the American Association, and last night the local fans were wild with enthusiasm because there was every reason to believe that the silken flag will float from a pole at Eclipse Park.

But the race is not over yet. It will take the contests which will be fought to-day at Eclipse Park and Neil Park, Columbus, to put the finishing touch to one of the most remarkable exhibitions ever produced in any league. Possibly, also, the real result will not be determined to-day, but, if not, it will be settled to-morrow or Monday, when the championship season ends.

The question as to whether Milwaukee or Louisville is the champion team in this league may be decided on the last day of the race, but from all the indications this is not probable. It looks like the time has almost arrived for the doffing of hats and three cheers and then some for

THE LOUISVILLE COLONELS.

It has been a long, hard cry since young Packard let the New York Giants down without a hit in the early spring, but this Oklahoma youth yesterday demonstrated his worth by saving the day when there was a chance to lose the flag. He came to Halla's rescue in the second inning of this very important contest, and with eyes shining and lips tightly set he gave an exhibition that undoubtedly made the Louisville club the most promising contender for the association baseball glory of the year. Young Packard pitched like a veteran, and at no time in his brilliant baseball career did Christy Mathewson, the famous New York Giant, ever furnish a better performance. When the season is ended and the honors are being distributed it would be only justice not to overlook this boy from the Far West.

The Blues were no match for Peitz and his men, who were determined to secure a victory which would mean a clearer title for the coveted flag. The visitors performed in a spiritless manner, and while at times they threatened to annex sufficient runs to defeat the Louisville athletes, there was hardly a person inside of the Eclipse Park fences but who was confident that the locals would be returned the victors at the finish of the battle.

In addition to "pulling" for Leader Peitz and his men to place another game on the winning side of the ledger, intense interest was manifested by the locals in the outcome of the Milwaukee-Columbus contest. Cheers were given when the result of the Millers' and Senators' games were chalked up on the score board, showing that McCloskey's men had been beaten.

* * *

Game a Comedy of Errors.

It looks now as if the 1909 American Association pennant will float at Eclipse Park. While baseball is uncertain, it is possible, but hardly probable, that the Blues will succeed in winning more than one game from the Colonels. The locals continue to put up a hard fight, as they do not want to take any chances of a slip by taking things easy, now that the prize is almost within their grasp.

The contest yesterday at several stages was a comedy of errors. Sandwiched with the misplays, several good things stood out. Woodruff, in the first inning, by an almost perfect throw, tossed out Brashear at the plate. In this round Delehanty duplicated Woodruff's throw when Hallman was tagged out at the rubber when he attempted to enter counting territory on Love's single to left. Halla, who had started out to pilot the Colonels to victory, was touched up in a lively fashion by the present cellar champions. The local southpaw in the one and two-thirds innings that he officiated, had very little control of the ball, and when he did succeed in putting it over the plate the visitors had little trouble in sending the sphere to safe territory. Leader Peitz could not afford to take any chances of losing the game, and for this reason substituted young Packard in the second inning after Carlisle had scored the one and only run made by the Blues during the game. After Packard stepped to the firing line Shay's players were unable to transact any business with his benders.

Double Play Important.

In the fourth inning a double play by Salm, unassisted, prevented the Blues from tieing the score or forging ahead of the Colonels. Love, who had reached third base on a base on balls and a single by Carlisle, started to score on a "squeeze play" with Moore at the bat. The attempted "squeeze" resulted in a double play, as Moore lined to Salm, who immediately touched first base, also catching Carlisle. In several other innings the visitors managed to get on the bases and looked dangerous, but the men on the local team tightened, and by fast fielding and brilliant pitching prevented any damage.

The Colonels gathered their two runs in the third inning, when Woodruff walked and scored on Delehanty's terrific drive of the ball to right field, which netted him a home run. The third tally was added when Diehl tripled to left, the ball rolling to the score board. Diehl stole home when Moriarty failed to carry out his part of the programme in an attempted "squeeze play." Diehl made a beautiful slide toward the plate. The fourth and last run was secured by the locals in the eighth round. Salm singled to center and was forced at second by Moriarty's tap of the ball toward the pitcher's slab. Woodruff singled to right on a hit and run play, and Moriarty, by fast sprinting, crossed the plate.

To Strive Hard To-day.

The Colonels this afternoon will exert every effort to down their opponents, as a victory for them and another defeat of the Brewers at Columbus to-day would mean the pennant for the Louisville team. The chances are that a big crowd will be on hand in order to root for Peitz and his men and to witness the contest which is likely to decide the American Association championship for this year. The old frayed story of the best laid plans by men and mice, etc., will be given particular attention by the Graysonites. There is many a slip in baseball, and for this reason the leader of the Colonels and the players in his charge will do their best to bring home the necessary game.

In spite of the fact that the Blues are occupying the tail-end of the American Association procession, they cannot be taken cheaply. The Kansas City team last year at Kansas City played the Colonels, and by defeating them three out of four practically put them out of the running for the 1908 pennant. But this is hardly a fair comparison, as the present local aggregation is much stronger than it was at this period of the race last season.

* * *

Blues Find Halla Easy.

The first inning almost proved disastrous to the Colonels as the Blues became acquainted with Southpaw Halla's offerings by walloping the sphere safely to the outer gardens. Had it not been for fast fielding the visitors would have tallied. Roy Brashear, the first man up, was the recipient of a base on balls by Pitcher Halla. Shay, the manager of the Kansas City team, flied out to Woodruff. Hallman singled to right. Brashear went out when he tried to take third on the drive, a pretty throw by Woodruff preventing the attempt. Hallman took second on the play and Billy was tagged out at the plate when he tried to reach home on Love's single to left. Delehanty's throw was almost perfect. This retired the side.

The Colonels were not allowed to reach first base, as Rapps took care of Delehanty's grounder; Sullivan died at first, Shay assisting, and Olson flied out to Hallman.

* * *

Kansas City Scores One.

The second round produced one run for the Blues on a single, a sacrifice and an error by Sullivan. Carlisle laced a safe one to right and was shoved up a peg on Rapps' sacrifice; Sullivan to Olson. Moore fanned. Sullivan allowed Frambes' grounder to get away from him and Carlisle crossed the plate. Campbell ended this inning by going out, Olson to Salm. The locals duplicated their performance of the previous round by going out in order. Diehl and Salm died at first on infield drives. Moriarty flied out to right.

The Blues failed to reach the initial cushion, as they were disposed of on infield hits. Brashear, short to first. Shay, Salm to Packard, and Hallman, Olson to Salm. Woodruff in this round was the first man to land on first base for the Colonels. It was the result of a base on balls. Hughes flied out to Love. Packard's long fly was squeezed by Hallman. Delehanty walloped the ball toward the right field fence and then completed the circuit, sending Woodruff in ahead of him. Sullivan and Olson bingled in succession but were left marooned, as Moore made a great stop of Diehl's scorcher, forcing Sullivan at third.

Climb Out of Bad Situation.

An attempted squeeze play by the Blues resulted disastrously, as it ended in a double play and helped the Colonels out of a dangerous hole. Love walked and reached third on Carlisle's scratch bingle to right. Rapps' line drive was smothered by Diehl. Moore popped to Salm and a double play happened, as Carlisle was caught off first base. Salm for the locals hit sharply to center and dashed to second on Moriarty's neat sacrifice. Woodruff's high foul was trapped by Rapps, and Brashear throttled Hughes' liner. The fifth chapter was unproductive of any tallies for our ex-cousins, as they were out in order. Frambes and Campbell died at first, and Moriarty camped under Brashear's fly ball. Packard beat out an infield hit toward third and landed on second on Delehanty's sacrifice. Sullivan flied out to Hallman. Olson fouled out to Moore.

Shay, for the Blues, started the sixth round by singling to center, and took second on Hallman's sacrifice. Love flied to Diehl. Carlisle grounded out to Salm on a close play.

Diehl Makes a Triple.

A triple to the scoreboard by Diehl paved the way for one or more runs. Salm popped to Shay. Diehl stole home on an attempted squeeze play. Moriarty safe on Rapps' error, and takes second when Rapps was guilty of another misplay, when he allowed Carlisle's throw of the ball to slip by him. Hughes walked, and he and Moriarty worked a double steal, but this is as far as they traveled, as Packard went out, Campbell to Frambes. The crowd cheered when the scoreboard showed that Milwaukee was beaten by Columbus.

In the seventh Rapps reached first on a scratch hit toward second. Moore fanned. Rapps out stealing, Hughes to Olson. Frambes given a life on Olson's fumble. Campbell is also safe on Sullivan's misplay. Brashear out at first on Packard's pretty stop of a warm grounder, and the side was out.

Delehanty flied to Love. Sullivan grounded out to first. Olson singled, and was forced at second on Diehl's bounder to short. Shay began the eighth by striking out. Hallman was out, Salm to Packard. Love was an easy out, Packard to Salm.

* * *

Another Louisville Score.

The Colonels in their half of this frame secured one run, and this clinched the game. Salm hit a corker to left and was forced at second on Moriarty's tap. Woodruff bingled to right. Hughes grounded out at first, but Moriarty scored when Rapps made a poor throw of the ball toward the plate. Packard was disposed of, Brashear to Rapps.

In the ninth Diehl took care of Carlisle's fly. Woodruff made a pretty catch of Rapps' fly. Moore singled to left field. Frambes forced Moore at second, Sullivan assisting. This put the side out and made the first victory over the Blues in the present series. The score:

CHAT OF THE GAME.

The Kansas City Blues will again oppose the Colonels in the second game of the final series at Eclipse Park this afternoon. If Selby is in condition to pitch he will do so. If he is not Decanniere will probably be at the slab for the locals. Dorner will likely officiate at the mound for the team from the city by the Kaw.

* * *

The contest this afternoon will, in all likelihood, decide the pennant winners for 1909 in the American Association. If the Colonels earn another victory over the Blues to-day and the Milwaukee Brewers suffer another defeat at the hands of the Senators, the flag ought to float at Eclipse Park in 1910.

* * *

While the score of yesterdays game was close, the contest was easy all the way for the Colonels.

* * *

Halla started to twirl at the slab for the locals, but after an inning and two-thirds retired, and Packard went to the firing line. The Blues became too familiar with Hallas benders, and Leader Peitz deemed it advisable to take him out before the damage would be too great.

* * *

Judging from the work of the two teams yesterday, the Colonels far outclass the Blues. The locals' ex-cousins, however, threatened for a time to cut in on the Graysonites' chances for the pennant.

* * *

From present indications, the exhibition game next Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Colonels will be a corker. Already there has been an immense sale of tickets, and the chances are that the park will be taxed to its capacity. The tickets can be had at almost every place where the fans congregate. Everybody seems to be trying to help swell the benefit fund. The players deserve this form of recognition, as they have certainly brought Louisville into the limelight by their conscientious, consistent and uphill playing. This combination has produced the present results.

* * *

The Heine Peitz fund is increasing every day. The players, headed by Jack Shelly and a number of the prominent fans here, have already contributed their mite. There is no specific amount asked for. Every indication points to the fact that when the fund is closed the sum will be large. It looks as if practically all of the local lovers of the game, and particularly the followers of the Colonels' leader, will participate in fattening the sum for the veteran catcher. Those who are willing to contribute can leave the money with Jack Shelly at Bosler's Hotel or Nate Wilbur at the box office at Eclipse Park. It has not as yet been decided whether to present Peitz with money or with a handsome article of some sort as a token of the fans' recognition of his effort in putting the Colonels in first place.

* * *

It is almost certain that a big crowd will attend the contest this afternoon. A victory by the Colonels should mean the pennant winners for 1909.

* * *

The barnstorming tour for the Colonels is almost completed. Peitz and his men will play with the Wiedemann team at Newport. The other managers are after the coming champions, and the chances are that the A. A. leaders for 1909 will tour the State for about two weeks. If the Colonels win the pennant, the Cincinnati Reds will play them at Cincinnati on Sunday afternoon, October 10. The arrangements are now under way for the contest between the big reds and the little reds. Owing to the fact that Peitz, Diehl, Woodruff and Puttmann are all Cincinnati boys and have a large number of followers, the game with the Wiedemann team next Friday afternoon at their park at Newport will be largely attended. The itinerary of the trip will be given later.

* * *

The Blues threatened to enter the counting territory for several runs in the first inning yesterday. However, Delehanty and Woodruff came to the rescue. Both the local players, by magnificent throws toward the plate, retired runners.

* * *

While the Colonels were on their last Eastern trip Leader Peitz made the remark to the players that the team which would win the A. A. pennant this year would have to have a percentage of .560, and that the Colonels would be the nine to reach this mark. "But we'll have to play hard," said the commander of the locals. "And as our pitchers are in form. I can't figure out how it is possible for the Brewers and Millers to beat us out at the wire."

* * *

Spike Shannon, who covers middle garden for the Kansas City Blues, was unable to participate in yesterday's contest and it looks as if he will be unable to play again this season. Last Thursday he hurt his leg in Indianapolis.

* * *

Mike Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis Millers, has entered a protest against giving the Colonels a game captured by them. It is the second game of the double-header last Sunday afternoon. Umpire Hayes stated yesterday that the protest made by the fiery manager of the Millers will not amount to anything. "I wrote to President O'Brien," said Umpire Hayes, "fully explaining about the play that Diehl made, and there is no chance of the head of the American Association reversing my decision, as it was correctly made."

* * *

The friends of Andy Oyler, shortstop of the Minneapolis Millers, earnestly hope that the report given out regarding the injury on the side of his head is not as severe as stated. The Millers' infielder was given an awful jolt by a ball delivered toward the plate and it is claimed by Umpire Hayes that after Oyler returned to consciousness he was unable to recognize his brother or other associates.

* * *

In the ninth inning of yesterday's affair, Woodruff made a pretty catch of a ball from Rapps' bat. Moore, who covers third base for the Colonels' ex-cousins, deprived Diehl, in the third inning, of an almost sure two-bagger when he made a beautiful stop and a snap throw to first.

* * *

While the sixth inning was in progress yesterday the result of the Milwaukee-Columbus game was posted on the scoreboard. The crowd cheered wildly.

* * *

In the fourth inning yesterday Moore, who was at the bat, and Love, who was at third, attempted to pull off a squeeze play. The result was that Moore lined to Salm who had started to run in. Salm expected a bunt, but immediately returned to the first bag and completed a double play, as Carlisle, who had singled to right, had started for second and was doubled up.

* * *

What a grand reception the Colonels will get if they win the pennant, not only in Louisville, but on their coming barnstorming tour. The Colonels have made a gallant fight and at times the road to the goal was full of obstacles, but it looks as if Peitz and his men have overcome all the hurdles and will grab the bunting.

* * *

Columbus 4, Milwaukee 2.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Milwaukee players, until the eighth inning of the game this afternoon, thought their ever-present hoodoo of not having won a game at Neil Park this year had been broken, but Columbus, in this inning, put three runners across and won 4 to 2. Wacker and Nelson were doing slab duty. Both were victims of three errors in support. Nelson had two bunched on him in the second inning, which contributed greatly to the scoring of the two runs the Brewers made. Wacker was also the victim of poor support in the eighth, which started trouble. Nelson allowed but four hits, and on merit should have won.

In the second inning Randall struck out but was safe at first when James allowed the ball to get away from him. Clark singled and McCormick sacrificed. Odwell's error on Ludwig allowed both Randall and Clark to score.

Nelson pitched strongly to Wacker and Strunk, retiring them.

Columbus got one run back in the fourth inning. Quinlan and Kruger singled. Congalton sacrificed and Odwell followed with a sacrifice fly, sending Quinlan over the plate.

In the eighth Columbus gave McCloskey a real chill and sent his pennant hopes further glimmering. In this big inning for the lowly Senators Red Nelson started to win his own game by doubling to right and scored when Clark went safe on Ludwig's error. Quinlan sacrificed and Kruger flew to Barry. Congalton singled, scoring Clark. Congalton scored on Odwell's single. James struck out, ending the inning.

In the seventh Wratten tripled with two down, but was left on third.

Milwaukee and Columbus play a double-header on Saturday. Arbagost, a new catcher secured from Hartford, reported to Columbus to-day. Pitcher Hammond, of Ft. Wayne, also joined the Brewers. Score:

Indianapolis, Sept. 24.—Indianapolis and St. Paul entered into a fight for fourth place today, the latter scoring a shutout 4 to 0 and getting a lead of four points over the former. ST. PAUL TEAM TO PLAY IN CHICAGO.

Says the Chicago Journal: "The long-threatened invasion of Chicago by the American Association will take place in a peaceful way next week, when the St. Paul team will appear in games with the Leland Giants and Jimmy Callahan's Logan Squares.

"The first contest will be played Tuesday with the negro champions of the Chicago League, while the second game will be played on Wednesday against the Logan Squares. Both games will be played at Callahan's Park.

"Callahan was notified by Rube Foster that final arrangements had been made for the visit of the minor leaguers."

Wants To Prevent St. Paul Games.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—President Murphy, of the Chicago National League baseball club, stated to-day that he would appeal to the National Commission to prevent the St. Paul club, of the American Association, from playing with local semi-professional organizations.

Two years ago Dubuque and Minneapolis players were fined $50 each for a similar offense, and were not allowed to appear against the "semi-pros." last year.

It is reported that St. Paul had arranged for games here before the ending of the National League season.

CHICAGO CUBS LOSE CHAMPIONSHIP AT HOME

THE Chicago Cubs have it figured out that if they had played on the road all year they would have won the National League pennant for the fourth consecutive time. It so seems that the Cubs have played very poorly when stationed at home, while on the road they have shown the form that took the Tigers into camp twice so easily.

They have won every series played on the road this season, while at home they they have been helpless before Pittsburg and New York. They have won sixeen more games on the road than at home, while they have lost more at home than abroad. Their home percentage it .603 while it is .730 on the road.

In other years the Cubs also won more on the road than at home, but the difference was not so great as this year, when the Chicago fans repeatedly saw them humbled by the Giants and Pirates.

PITTSBURG CLUB WINS FIRST LEG IN CONTEST FOR THE CUP

Baron Alcyone, Winner of the American Trotting Derby, Fails In Effort To Break Record.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 24.—The Matinee Club, of Pittsburg and Allegheny to-day won the first leg on the "League Cup," the prize of the principal race of the final session of the Inter-city races at Brunots Island here. The cup, which was donated by the League of Amateur Drivers of America, must be won three times before it becomes the property of the club. Cleveland fought hard for the race and Wickliffe Girl had the second heat about won when she broke within 100 feet of the wire, being nosed out.

The local club carried off honors in five of the seven races, New York winning one and Cleveland the other. Syracuse, with a number of entries in these races, secured second honors several times.

Baron Alcyone, winner of the American Derby and the $25,000 Hapdicap Stake at Readville, Mass., was scratched in the third race and trotted an exhibition mile in an effort to beat 2:05, but failed. It was announced that Mr. White did not wish to take any chances of his horse lowering his record and merely drove the gelding about the track to exhibit him. Close finishes marked all the races. The track was good and the crowd large. Summaries:

Jimmy McAleer Talks.

As has been indicated, the Washington and St. Louis baseball teams of the American League will have new managers next year. The Senators will be handled by James McAleer, who has sent in his resignation to the owners of the St. Louis team, which he has directed for years. Who will succeed him as manager of the Browns is not known, but there has been considerable talk of Fielder Jones purchasing a share of the club and handling the team in the American League race.

Negotiations between the Washington club and McAleer have been going on for some time. It is said he was given a block of stock, in addition to a large salary, as an inducement to accept the position.

McAleer, in commenting upon the transaction, said:

"I have come to terms with the Washington club and next year will manage the Capital team. When I take charge of the Washington club I am to have entire control of the players. I wired my resignation to St. Louis and I am glad to get away from there, as they don't understand me. My St. Louis players all say they are sorry I am going to leave them and that makes me feel happy to know they like me when I am leaving."

Chattanooga In the Lead.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 24.—Chattanooga assumed a commanding lead in the Dixie championship baseball series to-day by defeating Atlanta 6 to 5. Until the ninth inning the score was 5 and 5, but by batting and errors Atlanta tied it. Chattanooga sallied into lengthy Rogers in her half of the ninth, however, and by infield hits, which were too hard to be handled, scored one, the winning tally being made when the bases were full and only one was down.

A double-header will be played to-morrow, and if Chattanooga wins one game the pennant for all Dixie will be hers, while Atlanta must take both of them to win the championship. Helm will pitch the first game for Chattanooga and Fisher for Atlanta, both of whom have won their previous games in this series.

Nearly 4,000 spectators saw the game today. Score:

French Lick Beats Leland Giants.

French Lick, Ind., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The hard-hitting French Lick team defeated the Leland Giants, one of the champion colored teams of the world, here to-day by a score of 2 to 1 in the most exciting game played here this season. For two minutes after the last man was out in the ninth the sky was clouded with hats, coats and umbrellas that were thrown by 600 frenzied men and women. Little Harris was invincible, allowing only three scattered hits, while French Lick got five off of Lawson. The features of the game were the sensational fielding plays of Jackson, Lee, Williams and Brown, and the phenomenal pitching and catching of Harris and Watts.

Beau Brummel Brings Good Price.

Maysville, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Langhorne T. Anderson, of Point Auview stock farm, has sold his stallion, Beau Brummel, to Eastern men for $5,000. This is the highest price ever paid for a horse in Mason county. The stallion was the winner of many premiums recently at neighboring fairs.

Nominee Is Popular.

Newton A. Greene, better known as "Gus" Greene, who won the nomination for Mayor by the Democrats of New Albany, is at present serving as a member of the Common Council of that city. He was born in Hawesville, Ky., July 24, 1866. He is a son of Prof. George K. Greene, at one time assistant State Geologist of Indiana. He has lived in the city since 1878, and is engaged in the produce and commission business.

N. A. GREENE.

Every night at 8 o'clock Mr. Greene comes to Louisville, and sleeps in a hotel until 3 o'clock in the morning, when he arises and goes into the Jefferson-street market, where he purchases three wagon loads of produce, which he takes to New Albany via the K. and I. bridge. This produce is disposed of to storekeepers or taken to his place of business at State and Market streets. He has followed this practice for fifteen years. He is an industrious man and has accumulated considerable property, owning three houses in New Albany and one in Louisville. He comes of an old Democratic family. His uncles, William J. Greene and Dick Greene, who served in the Confederate army, built steamboats at Barmore's shipyard in Jeffersonville several years ago and ran in Red River. They are now dead. His grandmother, Mrs. Eunice Greene, lived on Walnut street in Jeffersonville for fifty years. His aunt was the wife of Dr. David McClure, who served in the Indiana State Senate for many years. The family has always been strictly Democratic.

The fact that Mr. Greene defeated men like John M. Baylor and Dr. G. Oscar Erni is an evidence of his popularity. He is a man of strict integrity, and his record in the Council is above reproach. The ward in which he lives is strongly Republican, but he was elected to the Council by a large majority. He promises that if elected Mayor he will give the city an economical administration, and that the salaries of the city officials, so far as he can control, shall be the minimum fixed by the recent statute which goes into effect January 1.

The Democrats of New Albany firmly believe that they will win at the November election and that Mr. Greene will be elected Mayor.

* * *

Vote Was Heavy.

The Democrats of New Albany turned out in large numbers yesterday afternoon and last night to cast their ballots at the primary election for the nomination of candidates for municipal officers to be voted for November 2. The polls were open from 1 to 8 p. m., and good order prevailed. The election was held under the State primary law, and the saloons were closed during the hours of election. The lively interest taken in the primary presages victory for the party in the opinion of the Democratic leaders and members of the City Central Committee, under whose direction the primary was held. Besides nominating candidates for offices the Democrats also elected central committeemen from each of the precincts, thus giving the rank and file a voice in the management of the campaign. This has not been done heretofore.

At the present time New Albany is under Republican control, and the salary list for municipal officers amounts to $13,700 a year. Under an act of the last Legislature the salaries will be as follows: Mayor, $1,200; Clerk, $1,500; Attorney, $1,000; Engineer, $1,200; total, $4,900, a saving of $8,200 a year to the taxpayers, providing the Common Council to be elected does not increase the salaries to the maximum figure of $2,000 for the Mayor; Clerk, $1,800; Attorney, $1,500; Engineer, $1,800. The Board of Works, Controller and City Judge are done away with, unless the Council desires to create these offices. Democrats are pledged to live within the minimum fixed by the act and to abolish superfluous offices.

Much Interest In Race.

The principal interest was in the race for Mayor between Newton A. Greene, John M. Baylor and Dr. Oscar Erni. Mr. Greene appeared to have the best organization at the polls. He also had a band wagon going through the city with a sign on the sides of the vehicle reading: "Vote for N. A. Greene, a Business Man, Not a Politician; One of the Common People." Messrs. Baylor and Erni did not have any band wagon, but were active at the various polling places, Dr. Erni using an automobile and Mr. Baylor a surrey.

There was no opposition to the candidates for the Council in the seven wards, but there were five candidates for Councilmen-at-large and only three to be elected.

PRAISE FOR LOUISVILLE'S MODERN SCHOOL STRUCTURES.

FORMER RESIDENT HAS MANY WORDS OF PRAISE.

ATTENDS TAX CONFERENCE.

Expert opinion on modern progress is always of interest and value. Especially is this so with regard to the remarks made by William George Bruce, of Milwaukee, Wis., a delegate to the big tax conference here this week, who yesterday spoke in terms of praise of the city of Louisville.

More than a score of years ago, Mr. Bruce, as a poor boy, left this city to make his way in the world. A few days ago he returned to Louisville as a delegate to the most important conference ever held here with the remarkable story of his success contained in the fact that he is secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, publisher of the American School Board Journal, director of the German-American Bank and the Johnson Service Company, of Milwaukee. He has many old friends and acquaintances here who will be glad to know that he is at the top. Mr. Bruce's story sounds best in his own words as follows:

"I came to Louisville as a delegate to the tax conference, and my visit has been of more than ordinary interest to me.

"Thirty-five years ago I lived in Louisville. I was a lad 18 years of age, who strayed here in a desire to see the world. I worked at a picture factory owned by a man named Escott. At night I attended school. The teachers were a Miss Fleming and Mr. Allen. Prof. W. H. Bartholomew was the principal of the school.

"Off and on I have come back to Louisville for a day's visit, and unconsciously compared it from time to time with Milwaukee, and noted its progress. During the past ten years Louisville has moved forward by leaps and bounds. Its new buildings, commercial and residential, its magnificent parks, its roadways and drives—all demonstrate a remarkably progressive spirit.

"The most notable advance I find in its educational labors. The school system has made some remarkable strides within the past few years. I saw two schoolhouses to-day which cannot be excelled. They are chaste and dignified in design, modern in arrangement and equipment.

"In fact, you may travel over this country and Europe and find no better. Few, indeed, are the school buildings that will compare with them. When I say this it may be well to add that I am the author of a textbook on school architecture, and have examined practically every modern school building in this country and Germany.

"In strengthening its supervisory forces the School Board of this city has taken a decisive step in the direction of placing its school system upon the highest possible plane. Superintendent Mark is regarded as a strong educator among the school men of this country. But, he needs help in his work. I understand that an assistant superintendent has been chosen. This is a step in the right direction.

"From all that I have been able to observe as to the administration of the schools and the policy of the present School Board I am satisfied that the membership of the latter is made up of a progressive body of men. They deserve the earnest support and co-operation of every thoughtful citizen. Louisville is wideawake and prosperous. She has grown in physical beauty and progressive spirit. I am proud of the city I call my second home."

RIVER, BUSINESS AND WEATHER.

The river was rising very slowly last night. The stages were: 1 foot 4 inches on the falls, 3 feet 6 inches in the canal and 6 feet below the locks. Business on the wharf was good. The weather was clear and cool.

BOATS LEAVING THIS DAY.

Kentucky, Capt. Hissem, for Cincinnati at 5 p. m....Tarascon, Capt. Zoll, for Evansville at 4 p. m....Helen M. Gould, Capt. McIntyre, for Carrollton at 5 p. m.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES YESTERDAY.

Lizzie Bay, Capt. Lindenburn, from and to Cincinnati....Helen M. Gould, Capt. McIntyre, from and to Carrollton....Park City, Capt. Crider, from Camp Nelson.

DRIFTWOOD.

The lower river packet Tarascon will get in from Evansville this morning and will immediately begin receiving for return trip down the river at 4 o'clock. She takes passengers and freight for all points down the river as far as Evansville and also for all Green River points. M. J. Connelly is her agent....The Park City arrived in port yesterday from Camp Nelson. Capt. C. V. Williams, manager of the Kentucky River Transportation Company, which owns the Park City, will probably send the boat to the Madison marine ways. She will be given a general overhauling and be repainted from tip to stern for the fall season....The Helen M. Gould brings down a cut-rate excursion from Madison and way ports to-day on account of the races. The excursionists are granted the privilege of returning home on the small boat....Capt. John Westfall, the well-known steamboatman, is in the city. Capt. Westfall has just returned from Lily White Sulphur Springs, where he was manager this summer. Capt. Westfall will likely make his home here this winter....The Kentucky is the Cincinnati packet to-day. She departs from the Third-avenue wharfboat at 5 p. m. for Cincinnati and all intermediate points....Capt. Joseph E. McCullough, of St. Louis, and Capt. William R. Haptonstall, of Middleport, O., have been appointed pilots on the steamer Erastus Wells for the trip from St. Louis to New Orleans with President W. H. Taft.... It developed yesterday that the losses to the coal interest at New Orleans by the storm last Monday were the largest ever sustained by them at any point on the Ohio or Mississippi rivers, the total aggregating upward of $750,000. The Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company lost 300 boats and barges in addition to the tugboat Carrie B....Purser Sherley Bradley, of the steamer Helen M. Gould, has resumed his duties after being off for several days....The Mississippi River has had its floating theaters for generations, and of late years the Ohio River has carried these amusement institutions, but a floating theater just completed by W. R. Markle at Parkersburg, W. Va., is probably the final word in such playhouses. It is designed to visit cities on the Ohio like Marietta, Wheeling and even Pittsburg, and then go up the Monongahela to Morgantown during the autumn, while during the winter it will operate at Southern points on the way to New Orleans. This new floating theater, which will be towed by a steamboat, is said to be the finest of its class afloat, while it rivals many permanent theaters in its capacity, furnishings and accessories. It can accommodate 1,500 persons in its parquet, balcony and seventeen boxes. The stage is large and well fitted; there is a cooling plant and a compressed air apparatus for cleaning. The compressed air will also operate a large calliope on deck, and an electric plant will furnish 1,800 incandescent lights for theater use. Vaudeville and musical comedy will be furnished to river residents, and a band, with free vaudeville acts, will excite curiosity in some public place in each city visited, prior to the main performance.

RIVER TELEGRAMS.

Pittsburg, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Heavy rains in this region and along upriver points have brought a slight rise in the rivers, not anywhere near enough, however, to reopen shipping on the Ohio River. In fact, the long stage of low water is expected to result shortly in the

BOOKS AND THEIR WRITERS.

VOLUME TWENTY-THIRD OF THE SCRIBNER-JAMES.

The detractors of Mr. James must find satisfaction in the very first sentence with which he opens his preface to "The Golden Bowl." Refreshing his acquaintance with the work, he says that he is primarily impressed with the "still marked inveteracy of a certain indirect and oblique view of my presented action." No adverse critic could do better than this.

Herein, as with his other stories, he sees his theme "through the opportunity and the sensibility of some more or less detached, some not strictly involved, though thoroughly interested and intelligent witness or reporter, some person who contributes to the case mainly a certain amount of criticism and interpretation of it." In other words, as other good writers have done, he selects a certain individual's point of view and sees the story through his own eyes.

Mr. James also wishes the preface-reader to be fully impressed with facts that even the most casual readers of his stories have long recognized—his instinct, his extreme conscientiousness, his painstaking desire to leave no stone unturned to develop and show in fine contrast the minutest details and characteristics of his scenes and actors. In "The Golden Bowl" he admits that he had a problem to face in making his small number of individuals act "for all they were worth."

He also refers to the two illustrations which grace the two volumes of the work. They are reproductions from actual photographs by Mr. Alvin Langdon Coburn and are extremely decorative. How he sought, in company with the artist and found them, occupies some long paragraphs, but he voices good thought about illustration in general in the record of this search. This is by the way of teaching the reader something of the morals and ethics of book illustrations, with a just touch on that "literary jealousy" that inspires an author to cast a spell of his own on his reader unaided by camera or brush. An author, he says, would wish all illustration to stand on its own feet "as a separate and independent subject of publication carrying its text in its spirit." This is most felicitously expressed.

Thus was chosen the curiosity shop where the Golden Bowl made its appearance which forms the frontispiece of the first volume. And for the same reasons the glimpse of Portland Place, highly impressionistic, all dim and foggy with the silhouette of a retreating hansom in the foreground. These two illustrations really add to the spell cast by the author, as they simply give a general impression of their sections of London without in the least affecting the reader's mental images formed by the tale itself.

In this preface Mr. James grows more than usually voluble, especially in recalling certain thrilling problems his theme presented, problems of both conception and revision, the latter the more difficult. To re-read has been in this case to recall intimately and minutely circumstances leading to (and away from) the story. In this he finds that he can meet the reader half way, "passive, receptive, appreciative, often even grateful." He might add—patronizing, though it would be unnecessary, as the spirit of patronage pervades every word of this preface.

Take this as an instance: "To revise is to see, or to look over again—which means in the case of a written thing neither more nor less than to reread it." To the reader of even less than ordinary intelligence this must be obvious.

As a general thing the prefaces of this edition have been treasures both for the ambitious author and the discriminating reader, but this one fails in those qualities which have caused praise often too ecstatic from the reviewer—the more's the pity, as in the opinion of many "The Golden Bowl" best illustrates Mr. James' later style.

THE GOLDEN BOWL. By Henry James. In two volumes. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.

MIND OVER BODY.

This collection of letters refuting the tenets of Christian Science in a sober, temperate way were originally written to a friend who had been for several years urging the writer to become a convert of that faith. They take Mrs. Eddy's book and the official magazine of the cult and discuss their main beliefs and assertions.

The writer finds much in "Health and Science and the Key to the Scriptures" that appeals to him. He agrees with many of Mrs. Eddy's postulates, though he finds that many of these have been assumed by her, while he has reached the same points through logic. Much good, he thinks, is resulting from Christian Science having entered the fields of religion, philosophy and therapeutics."

He regrets that much of the criticism of Mrs. Eddy is unsympathetic, often unintelligent and acrimonious. He thinks this attitude has prevented, on the one hand, many just thinkers from seeing the good in the philosophy and on the other, has had a tendency to make the devotees of the cult obstinate about making analytical examination. Mrs. Eddy's wealth, her claim to originality, have nothing to do with the truth or falsity of Christian Science, nor have the methods pursued in its public services, the array of titled followers, prominent business and other notables, whose names are being exploited in the Christian Science journals, the fulsome letters of adulation to Mrs. Eddy, any weight with this inquirer into the philosophy of the religion.

He finds no proof of the nonexistence of matter in the phenomena that follow Christian Science treatment, and he gives numerous instances of things that cure themselves even more rapidly without any "demonstration." The general tendency is to ascribe recovery to whatever means that have been resorted to. Hence, mental suggestion, Christian Science, faith cure, divine healing or the bone of a saint have many cures to their credit. No one in this enlightened age denies the influence of emotion or the mental attitude over disease, and every wise physician of intelligence of whatever school makes sane and legitimate use of this knowledge.

The arguments throughout the book must appeal to the fair-minded inquirer. Of special instruction are those in refutation of Mrs. Eddy's main beliefs. In the letter on death the author questions the consistency on the part of Mrs. Eddy and her followers in their repeated reference to the fact that Christian Science prolongs life through elimination of disease as a result of spiritualizing the race, and the claim that through Christian Science death may be altogether avoided. He asks why this intense desire on the part of a person denying the existence of matter to keep himself in the flesh? In conclusion, he quotes St. Paul's injunction, "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good repute; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think of these things."

MIND OVER BODY. Letters to a Friend—a Christian Scientist. James H. West Co., Boston.

MRS. WHITNEY'S STORY.

Few seeing the name of J. Botsford Whitney inscribed under the title of the opening page of "Short Stories" associated it with Mrs. Whitney of Louisville, whose marvelous piano-music has for so long charmed the ears of musical Louisville; yet she is the author of "By Right of Might," a tale of Kentucky Night Riders, told with such masculine vigor that it is hard to believe it the work of a woman.

As a sketch of an unholy period of State history it is pure fact not an exception but a rule. Thousands of such cases drove families away, turned men to beasts, even as they were treated as such.

The present tale covers a period of one night. An honest mountaineer whose sole crop was tobacco, keeps guard with his pretty young daughter, Patty, against the coming of the night riders. The homely scene in the little farmhouse is well painted. It is familiar to most Kentuckians. Also well known to us is the certain high sense of personal honor, a self-respect that makes the old man in the tale say that while he may forgive the scraping of his patch and it may be even the burning of his drying shed and its contents—"there's one hellish piece of work that no free born man fit to own a name could give in to, and that's the whippin', for God Almighty Himself would scorn the man who was coward enough to take the lash!"

But he had to take even this, with the loss of property, and the man is turned into a beast of prey.

Behind the story is a solemn meaning applicable to the practice of lawlessness in whatever form it may be tolerated. Not merely upon the individual, but upon the whole community does the curse fall, and a State must suffer for years in this transformation of man to brute by what is here so aptly called the right of might.

THE ETHICS OF PROGRESS.

Dr. Charles Dole's Ethics of Progress is an attempt to state in definite terms those moral principles which sometimes seem in danger of being swamped beneath the overwhelming tide of commercialism, selfishness in men and organizations, and the thousand contemporary forces that tend to undermine not only the individual, but the general morality.

Among the titles under which the author considers the theory and practice of the ethics by which civilization must proceed, if it is really not to disintegrate, are The New Conditions of Ethical Study, The Ideal Man and The Ideal Society, The Deeper Facts of Conscience, Shame, Guilt and Desert, and pertinent themes. The gist of the matter, as the author presents it, is the essential connection of every man with all men, for good or ill. By all the discoveries of thought and aspiration is proved the responsibility of the individual to this general life, and the creed recommended is the immortal one—good will towards all.

No new reading of life and duty, thus, is contained in these essays on the ethics of progress. Yet none the less will they fail to have value. Their lucid vision of the human relation, their fine, broad idealism are both comforting and inspiring. The chief trouble will be that they, as all literature, all talk of this kind limited to the purely human aspect of things, is insufficient for some thinkers. Not enough for all is it to say: "The question now before us touches the principles by the use of which we may attain the maximum of personal and social satisfaction. Can we discover a clear guiding rule of ethical action and growth?" There is a marked tendency among philosophers not to rest so content as once many of them were with a rule of ethical action and growth. Hence serene and confident and elevated as Dr. Dole's discussion is, it leaves many disturbed by the old obstinate questionings which leap for answer beyond the mere biological and social history of the race, beyond the demands of the ethical ideal. As the author himself says, there is more in human conduct than anyone can explain by reference merely to the history either of the individual or the race.

Meantime, for those unable to follow into that higher realm of the spiritual life inclosing and stretching far beyond the field of ethical endeavor, Dr. Dole's book will have value as a sincere effort to harmonize discordant forces, to emphasize the general beneficent trend of life, to quicken ideals of good will, heroic conscience, responsibility and those many other means by which the individual and the whole race of man advance to one divine far-off event or that more progressive immortality some deem more desirable—"the glory of going on."

ANOTHER "ANNE" BOOK.

Childhood has blossomed into sunny, sweet girlhood when Anne of Green Gables becomes by virtue of her position as school-mistress and founder of the Village Improvement Society, Anne of Avonlea. Those who are not acquainted with the former story learn in the early chapters that red-haired, 17-year-old Anne is an "imported orphan," who has been adopted by Marilla Cuthbert, of Green Gables, Avonlea, Prince Edward Island.

Anne is an idealist and dreamer of dreams, but withal a sensible, earnest and loyal girl. Nothing very remarkable happens to her in this story—she is busy with her Improvement Society, with her school-teaching and with helping Marilla, who has a penchant for orphans, to raise a pair of adopted twins. Friends of all ages hover in the circle of Anne's influence, a lonely and "cranky" old man, a remarkable little boy, young people of the village and "Sweet Miss Lavendar," whose postponed romance gives the chief love interest to the book.

The story is clever, bright and enjoyable, and is suited to readers of any age, but especially to girls.

ANNE OF AVONLEA. By L. M. Montgomery, author of "Anne of Green Gables." Publishers, L. C. Page & Co., Boston.

NEW SCHAFF-HERZOG, VOLUME IV.

Not speculations, but facts, are accumulated in this volume of that encyclopedia of religious knowledge which will undoubtedly take the place of any heretofore published. Each topic is treated impartially by specialists on both sides. Recent explorations have tended to strengthen the stand taken by believers in the authenticity of the Bible and it is of the utmost moment that all teachers should be posted in the work done by indefatigable searchers after truth.

The work as a whole is of inestimable value to overworked pastors who have neither time nor opportunity to read the current magazine articles, but who can here find the latest theories and summaries.

Dr. Immanuel Benzinger, the well-known German orientalist, contributes articles on Hebrew dress and ornament, the family and marriage relations of patriarchal days. His articles concerning the property right, legal and social status of woman are of special interest.

Ranging from "Draeseke to Goa" the volume includes a surprising amount of history and biography. Appended to these articles the reader will find the signatures of many celebrated historians such as R. Seeburg, of the University of Berlin; Prof. Theodore F. Schott, of Stuttgart; Dr. F. H. Foster, Prof. George Gilmore, Aylmer Maude, Profs. Mirbt, Schaff, Goetz, Pfender, Sharpless, Nash and many others. The Biblical subjects are treated in the perspicacious fashion shown in the other volumes. A bibliographical index supplies references for the preceding volumes down to July, 1909.

THE NEW SCHAFF HERZOG ENCYCLOPEDIA OF RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE. Volume IV. Graeske—Goa. Edited by Samuel Macauley Jackson, D. D., LL. D. (editor in chief); Charles C. Sherman, George W. Gilmore, M. A. (associated editors), and others. Complete in twelve volumes. Published by the Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York City.

THE LAST NOVEL OF MR. CRAWFORD.

The last novel from the pen of the late Marion Crawford is published this week (September 22) under the title of "Stradella." It is the second of the two novels which at the time of Mr. Crawford's death had not yet been put into book form. The other, "The White Sister," was published last spring and has since been having a remarkable sale. That was a novel of modern Rome; "Stradella" is an historical romance of the Italy of the Seventeenth century, centering around the love of the great musician Stradella for the daughter of a Venetian nobleman. The barest outline of his plot Mr. Crawford found in the old chronicles of which he was an insatiable devourer. Incidentally it may be said that he describes in the novel the genesis of the great song "Pieta Signore," by which Stradella is to-day best remembered. How he came to write it and to sing it before the Pope is the climax of this story of love and courage.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

Prof. Frank Goodnow, of Columbia University, has written a volume that will doubtless be of some value to students in high schools and colleges, besides to other inquirers into this vital subject.

The character of the book is partly historical, partly constructive. Among the significant themes are The Causes of Urban Development; Trades and Industry; The Legal Position of the Modern City; The Participation of the People in City Government; The Administration of Charities and Correction.

Studying the growth and administration of urban settlements in ancient and modern times, especially in Greece and Rome and the mediaeval and modern cities of Europe, the author has endeavored to outline a system of government suited to urban conditions. He finds some of the municipal methods of Paris eminently worth while recommending to those interested in building up a good administrative system for American cities. He recommends especially the division of the city into districts and civic centers, wherein a simple organization may be attained and social co-operation and technical efficiency may be accomplished.

Mr. Goodnow endeavors to define with some positiveness the rights of cities and States—that old crux. He concludes that almost all the powers for which cities have struggled are powers of state rather than municipal powers. His judgment decides for certain State privileges of administrative control rather than legislative control. The book is suggestive and will be to some extent a contribution to the literature which serves in part as a "laboratory" for the study of municipal problems and experimental social psychology.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT. By Frank J. Goodnow. Publishers, the Century Co., New York.

SWINBURNE'S DRAMAS.

In this volume are collected Erectheus, Atalanta in Calydon and Mary Stuart, as being most characteristic of Swinburne's dramatic genius.

The editor of the volume, Professor Arthur Beatty, of the University of Wisconsin, has written the brief introduction to the volume. It is biographical and critical in nature. The editor leaves the impression that Swinburne's relation to his epoch has not been fully apprehended. He and Matthew Arnold, rather than Browning and Tennyson, interpret the results of The Origin of Species, says Prof. Beatty—"neither Browning nor Tennyson was young enough in 1859."

Quite a little is made of Swinburne's independence as regards the artistic tendencies of his time. Beginning as an opponent of the idyllic school, he aimed for a broader art, a more various and sweeping melody which the editor is optimistic enough to hope will be a prelude to the new music of the future poetry.

In the selections quoted, both from Erectheus and Atalanta, Swinburne's lyrical rather than his dramatic genius is revealed. The criticism, being so brief, is necessarily cursory, especially as regards the Mary Stuart drama. It is a little matter for surprise that the present collection contains only the last play in the trilogy based on the character of Mary Stuart. Illustrative as parts of the Greek plays are of Swinburne's dramatic genius, it seems singular to have only one play of the Mary Stuart trilogy presented in the present volume. And whereas a certain interest is attached to the diffuse criticisms Swinburne made of his own work, Prof. Beatty had perhaps done more service to the student by some strict criticism of his own on the Mary Stuart play than he has done by his courtesy in letting Swinburne speak for himself in a few quotations.

SWINBURNE'S DRAMAS. With introduction, bibliography and notes by Arthur Beatty, Ph. D. Publishers, Thomas Crowell & Co., New York.

SIR GUY AND LADY RANNARD.

Mr. H. E. Dickinson has written a pretty clever novel of English life. The heroine, a poor daughter of a hard-working vicar in West Kensington, marries her rich and prominent cousin. By so doing in one of the early chapters she supposedly enters upon a career towards which her strong spirit, high ambition, love of distinction and grace of living have longed. But shortly it becomes obvious that Sir Guy's methods are such as will prevent any sympathy on her side. In a moment of discovery which shocks her mental and moral nature she realizes that she has married a corrupt politician, one whose tremendous will end energy sweep everything from his path by the facile means of bribery.

The story is the notation of the racking states of heart and mind she, Lady Rannard, passes through, as successive incidents reveal Sir Guy's unbridled rage toward his political goal. An overwhelming climax tops these states of her consciousness when Sir Guy, overwrought by his vehement efforts to gain his way, is revealed to his wife as mad—"the force of his manhood had been a by-product of demented energy." With excellently close psychology are drawn the disintegration of Sir Guy's sanity and Lady Rannard's relation to him, which passes from girlish admiration for his strength, to revulsion when she deems that vigor basely directed—a state of feeling followed by a sympathy that dawns when she begins to realize that he is overwrought, this sympathy passing into violent love and tenderness, which, in their turn are succeeded by a condition of shocked and tortured sensibility as his dementia becomes unmistakable. The incidents are well chosen to throw into relief the successive stages of both characters.

The psychological study is pursued with a fidelity amounting almost to a fault. It is to be regretted that this close psychological reading is not lightened by the one element, charm, which would have added the last note of excellence to what is otherwise such a well-written story.

FOUR GOOD VOLUMES.

THE GREEK VIEW OF LIFE. By G. Lowes Dickinson, M. A. The Chautauqua Press, Chautauqua, N. Y.

Those who are not fortunate enough to be Greek scholars, yet who love the world's best literature, often experience a difficulty in understanding translations of Grecian masterpieces through ignorance of the circumstances and conditions of their creation. Prof. Dickinson in this little volume has made use of the writings of various authors, such as Aeschylus, Aristophanes, Aristotle, Demosthenes, Euripides, Herodotus, Homer, Pindar, Plato, Plutarch, Sophocles and Thucydides, translated many times by various scholars, but offering the best in literature. From these he has drawn his conclusions, and the readers will feel they are amply justified. He considers in as many chapters the Greek view of religion, of the state, of the individual, and of art, and the whole is a highly interesting treatise, comprising various details under proper headings.

On the Greek idea of pleasure he shows that, far from being licentious and pleasure-loving as the common modern belief has it, the Greeks were temperate, observing moderation in their pleasures, holding the belief that the lowest should have no place and that the rest, although unessential to the "good," were harmless and rather necessary accompaniments in its operation. They distinguished between necessary and unnecessary pleasure, one being appetites for food, and so forth, the other being those habits that have only been acquired and which can be put away by an effort of will, which do not really add to happiness and which may even be injurious. While not ascetic, the Greeks observed great temperance in all things. The exceptions in those libertines which are found in every nation at every age are not to be taken into consideration. Plato would exclude from the perfect life all pleasures not accounted pure, and would have the individual delight in such things as sound, color, form or the pleasures of the intellect. According to Aristotle, no pleasure is to be condemned unless it be harmful. Here as elsewhere reason must check and control.

This little book has value on account of its conciseness and its authority. Every opinion expressed is the result of careful comparison and study, and it offers to the unlettered scholar an exceptional opportunity for acquiring valuable knowledge.

THE HOMERIC STORIES. Iliad and Odyssey Done Into English Prose. By Andrew Lang, M. A.; S. H. Butcher, M. A.; Walter Leaf, Litt. D., and Ernest Myers, M. A. Abridged edition. The Chautauqua Press, Chautauqua, N. Y.

This book, so complete in itself, shows the beauty of careful condensation. Many readers nowadays have neither the patience nor the time to study Homer, yet are possessed of a longing to know the Iliad and Odyssey, if only to show acquaintance with masterpieces belonging to the most ancient literature, yet serving as a model for the most modern tales of to-day. Apart from this reason which is herein satisfied to its full extent, another lies in the fascination which the Homeric tales possess for readers of all ages. This is preserved admirably by the editor of the present volume and the condensation leaves nothing to be desired, though it wakens a desire to know and read for oneself in the original.

SOCIAL LIFE AT ROME. In the Age of Cicero. By William Warde Fowler, M. A., Lincoln College, Oxford, author of "The City-State of the Greeks and Romans," "The Roman Festivals of the Period of the Republic," etc. The Chautauqua Press, Chautauqua, N. Y.

In the Ciceronian correspondence of more than 900 contemporary letters are found a detail of social life unequaled by any record that has been handed down from antiquity. The author says that he firmly believes the one great hope for the spread of a desire for classical learning and education lies in awakening in the unlearned an interest in ancient life and thought. In its section this book will be found to accomplish this in a wonderful degree. It is full of anecdotes bearing on various characters, exemplifying the manners and customs of a nation that through its abuses of every sort of power was fast rushing to its own destruction.

The first chapter is topographical and will prove invaluable to the student tourist of to-day. The author points out the spaces that in Cicero's time were covered with dwellings, those hollows in which the poorer classes lived, for then, as to-day, wealth sought the heights and builded on the hills "from whence cometh health." The Romans drank water mixed with wine, but they had no other intoxicant; Roman records mention neither spirits nor beer. The higher classes despised the lower, those who retailed, or the small artisan. This was the result of the practice of slavery, as the number of slaves owned by a rich man enabled him to dispense with all intercourse even with the services of tradesmen and artisans.

Among the governing aristocracy good breeding prevailed. In Plutarch and Livy many instances of this are given. Cato's bad manners lost him the consulship. In literature, science and art the wealthier class was versed. Then came the mischief wrought by the new Greek culture turning healthy, wholesome pleasures to vices followed by the populace at large, spreading as fashions in everything spread to-day, and a period of degeneracy ensued.

But, says the author, it would be a mistage to conclude that this degeneracy had gone too far to be arrested. "So far as I can judge, the Romans were at that stage when, in spite of unhealthy conditions of life and obstinate persistence in dangerous habits, it was not too late to reform and recover. To me the main interest of the history of the early Empire lies in seeking the answer to the question how far that recovery was made. If these chapters have helped any student prepare the ground for the solution of this problem, their object will have been fully achieved."

THE FRIENDLY STARS. By Martha Evans Martin, with an introduction by Harold Jacoby, Ph. D. Rutherford, professor of astronomy at Columbia University. The Chautauqua Press, Chautauqua, N. Y.

Not according to science or the revelations of the telescope has this book been written, but as the result of learning to know the visible stars by name and feeling that they are really friends and a part of the pleasures of life. Thus when on a cold midnight late in February we see the bluish bright star scintillating in the east we know it for Vega and take it for a sign that spring has come. The blooming of the bloodroot and the first song of the bluebird will call to mind Arcturus, and when the goldenrod and the wild asters bloom it is time to look for Formalhaut and say good-bye to Antares. "And a creaking frosty night will make one involuntarily turn his eyes up to mighty Orion striding across the southern skies." It is by knowing something about the stars, their names and habits that one comes to love them and think of them as friends, and this book supplies the information.

Various chapters tell of the rising and setting of the stars and, singling out the brightest for details, introduce the reader to Capella, Arcturus, Spica, Vega, Deneb, Altair, Antares, Formalhaut, Aldebaran, Orion, Castor and Pollux, the two Dog Stars and Regulus, telling many things of interest concerning each. The concluding chapters tell of the number of the stars, their names, light, distances, double stars, the constellations, the mystery of the Pleiades, from the Twins back to the Hunter, the Southern stars, and, last of all, there is a fine chapter on the individuality of the stars. The illustrations are many and accurate.

The four books form this year's course of reading for the classic year in that great Chautauqua institution that every year adds something to human knowledge and spreads abroad an influence that reaches many thousand homes.

FICTION.

THE CUCKOO'S NEST. By Martha Gilbert Dickinson Bianchi. Published by Duffield & Co., New York.

On the cover one of the stone monsters looks down from the heights of Notre Dame, "seeking the cuckoo's nest, perhaps," as do the men and women who live beneath the cover. To him the book is dedicated, as "a chronicle of folly." There are three women, Alice Johnson, the type of true wife and mother, faithful, forgiving, loyal; Vera, passionate, exacting, searching for ideal love and unrecognizing when it comes to her; Mary Ingram, a pretty girlish girl who knows not her own mind, or rather who does not wish to know it, who longs for love yet fears to trust fate for its continuance. Of the men two belong to Mary, the man to whom she is betrothed, who is in America, and the man she loves, Col. Lyndon-Carr, a young Englishman; one belongs to Alice Johnson, her husband; and the others belong to Vera—a very accurate allotment. Paris, in the sere and yellow leaf of autumn, Monte Carlo in the height of its brilliancy, Nice at the time of its most popular race, the Prix de Paris, the villa of the de Hautevilles, the scene shifts rapidly from one to the other, giving a kaleidoscopic sensation. All the description is detailed and much of its force lost by repetition. Less detail and more original phrasing for that which remained, would have improved the story, which in spite of some good work strikes one as ineffective, although the constant procession of various types encountered in foreign travel is interesting.

LITTLE PRINCE CHARMING. By Elizabeth von Zicklen. Published by the Reid Publishing Company, Boston, Mass.

"Little Prince Charming" is an imitation little Lord Fauntleroy with all the naturalness taken out and all the oversweetness left. Imagine a real boy of 10, who had just discovered that he must help his mother, making such a remark as this, "I slept for ten years, and then love kissed me and I began to see the real things." Alas for such a boy! However, later on Prince Charming paints the front fence vermillion and green, but he spoils the effect by writing a letter of repentance beginning "Error was very real to me yesterday." Apart from these erudite utterances Prince Charming is more like a boy of 7 than a boy of 10, a big difference at that age, and he has some jolly times with his little playmates and his friends.

THE SHORTSTOP. By Zane Grey. Published by A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

The book is dedicated to all the girls and all the boys who love the Grand Old American Game, and they should certainly enjoy it to the full, for it is written in simple, natural style and full of baseball excitement, so thrilling that it is next thing to seeing the real game. Chase Alloway starts out in the world to make a living and he believes he can play ball. His first experiences are harrowing, he loses his nerve, luck is down on him, he becomes a hoodoo, and is dreaded by every team he starts in with, but finally a shrewd manager takes him up, his confidence returns, and he makes good. One of the best things in the book is Chase's speech to the judge about Sunday baseball, which should be read by every descendant of the old Puritans who thought it wrong to laugh on Sunday.

THE AIRSHIP BOYS, OR THE QUEST OF THE AZTEC TREASURE. By H. L. Sayler. Published by the Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago.

The treasures of the Aztecs is now being searched for by means of airships instead of antiquated methods. Two boys, New Napier and Alan Hope, are the fortunate fellows who make this wonderful journey to the far Southwest, first in trains and later in the airship, which they have no difficulty in managing. They have a guide, Buck, and a colored boy for servant, and this boy's rescue from bloodthirsty Indians forms one of the most exciting chapters, for the airship actually sweeps down low enough for Elmer to catch hold of a dangling rope ladder and then carries him safely up out of reach of the Indians. In the line of boys' tales this is a novelty.

THE UTTERMOST FARTHING. By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes. Publishers, Mitchell Kennerly, New York.

"Thou shalt by no means come out thence till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing," is the text of Mrs. Lowndes' story. But only one of her two protagonists, if the expression may be permitted, pays the uttermost farthing, and this gives a lack of poetic justice which in a way spoils the end of the story. It is the story of an indiscretion on the part of Laurence Vanderlyn and Margaret Pargeter. The latter finds in the former a more congenial object for her affections than is her husband. Vanderlyn loves her with an unselfish devotion. After a long compliance with the convenances these two decide "to snatch from Fate a few days of such free happiness and communion" as they had denied themselves. But on the train out of Paris Fate takes sudden revenge. Margaret Pargeter dies of heart disease, leaving Vanderlyn to go alone to what was to have been their destination. Her death shocks him into a greater regard for the preservation of her honor than he had when she was yet living. By adroit means he leaves her in the compartment alone—for the train-guard to find. He slips into another part of the train, which he leaves at his earliest opportunity, returning to Paris in time to be beyond suspicion when the news of Tom Pargeter's wife's disappearance is made known. All this happens in the first few chapters. Margaret Pargeter having paid summarily to the last farthing, but Vanderlyn goes on to the end of the book with the grewsome, horrid situation. By one of those convenient happenings sacred to a certain class of fiction, the truth about Margaret Pargeter's death remains Vanderlyn's secret. His whole life is one effort to veil this secret. He is put at no small pains to do so, and yet for the sake of a serious study of the wages of sin, this dignified American diplomat does not pay so bitterly as he should. And though he succeeds in shielding to the end of the book the honor of the woman he loved, the reader's credulity is taxed to believe that a prefect of police in Paris would not have been more relentless in discovering Vanderlyn's part in the tragedy than was the Fate which Mrs. Lowndes has propitiated for him in her story. As can be seen, it is a story of poor ethics, no very strong dramatic situation, nor is its psychological value significant, though the author writes well enough to deserve having a better story to tell.

THE CALLING OF DAN MATTHEWS. By Harold Bell Wright. Publishers, The Book Supply Co., Chicago.

The story of the expansion of a man's spiritual outlook beyond the tenets of the theological sect with which he is affiliated. The incidents are chosen so as to throw into relief the narrow conventionalism of Dan Matthews' congregation which would cramp his ministerial efficiency. He, and old doctor, and a trained nurse stand in sharp contrast with those who would dispense charity according to the letter but not the spirit of the law. Meantime a love interest is woven with that of Dan's spiritual development. No very keen suspense is aroused by the story, which moves along in everyday fashion, presenting, however, in true, if not very arresting light, the various characters who make up the life of a small town, its homely, if often harrowing little dramas.

HAPPY HAWKINS. By Robert Alexander Wason. Publishers, Small-Maynard Co., Boston.

In this spirited tale of ranch life, Happy Hawkins, hot-headed, but loveable and big-hearted, tells in his unpolished language the story of his comings and goings, and those of his daring comrades of the great West. The ranches of Wyoming, Texas, California and Montana are the scenes of his restless wanderings. One of the ranches, "The Diamond Dot," however, is most attractive to him, and this because of his sweetheart, Barbie, known there. She is a sweet, frank girl, something of a tom-boy, developing, though, into a woman of deep, strong character, and thereby with her beauty proving irresistible. The story is overflowing with fun, simple philosophy, and pure, if crude, human nature. The episodes are the time-honored ones of the story's mise-en-scene, where disputes are settled by the strong arm, fortified by red blood and stalwart spirit.

ALLAN, SON OF A GUNMAKER. Publishers, the Cochrane Publishing Co., New York.

A rather interesting story of a young man in the early days after the Revolution. This youth, Allan, is the son of a gunmaker in a typical New England village. He himself has some craft in his fingers, even as his father, who made some of the best guns turned out in those early days, when Indians were prowling about, to say nothing of other terrors of the wilderness that lay just outside the simple village life. Wonderful as Allan's skill was, it once served him a bad turn. He had a sweetheart, the daughter of a man who disliked Allan and Allan's father. This tyrannical parent forbids his daughter to see her young lover. Having recourse to one of those pretty strategies of young romance, the girl invents a little post-box to be left in the heart of an old tree, Allan being requested to fashion a key to fit the lock thereof. He does it and goes by night to try it. That same night his sweetheart's house burns down and the incendiaries fasten the guilt on Allan. He is tried and declared guilty. He escapes, however, to the wilderness, makes friends with an interesting Englishman, who teaches him how to succeed in commercial life. Seeking and gaining such success, Allan stays away from his village home for years. How he returns and in various ways re-establishes himself in the affections of his old sweetheart, and brings her tyrant father around to justice, has given the author material for a tale that is homely in style and substance, and yet not without merit for its simplicity and for its faithful picture of life during the particular period of American history chosen as background for the story.

THE COMPACT. By Ridgwell Cullum. Published by Hodder & Stoughton, New York.

"The story of an unrecorded conspiracy in South Africa," one would naturally suppose that the title referred to the conspiracy. It refers, however, to the agreement between two men, an agreement melodramatic, unreasonable and altogether improbable. The story is that of a young English girl, whose lover has disappeared in the wilds of South Africa. Subsequently she contracts a loveless marriage with another English resident of South Africa and goes with him to his home. Here the faithless lover turns up and tries to win the young wife, his former sweetheart. Her husband, who is under the impression that she still cares for Chalmers, makes a compact with him, whereby they agree that each shall have a year in which to try to win Mary's heart, the unsuccessful one at the end of the year to drown himself quietly and leave the two in peace. Why, if Mary chose her husband, it should be necessary for Chalmers to kill himself does not appear; in fact, why there should be any killing at all is a question. At the end of the year there is a meeting at the spot agreed upon, the Wondergat, a bottomless waterhole, and Mary comes upon the two men, whereupon there ensues some very second-rate melodrama, during which her husband actually makes a speech more than two pages long, a fact that in real life would have been utterly impossible, as most writers know.

ANOTHER WOMAN AUTHOR FORCED TO GIVE UP WRITING.

"Frank Danby" Blames the Critics and Says She Won't Write Another Line—Member of a Clever Family Who Began Her Literary Career At Fifteen—H. G. Wells Tires of the Country Joys and Returns To the Hurly Burly of London Life—How An English Sportsman Found a Kindred Spirit At a Cricket Match Where One Team Was Composed of Famous Authors.

London, Sept. 8.—Following the course adopted by Helen Mathers, another famous authoress has expressed her intention of retiring from the profession of letters. The public is to get no more novels from the pen of Frank Danby, who, in private life, is Mrs. Julia Frankau. A brilliant member of a brilliant family, for her brother was "Owen Hall," the playwright and her sister, Mrs. Aria, Mrs. Frankau began writing at the age of 15. Her better known books, among them being "Dr. Phillips," "Pigs in Clover" and "The Heart of a Child," have had large sales both in England and America.

Mrs. Frankau declares that her withdrawal from the literary arena is due to the unfairness of reviewers.

"I am not announcing my retirement in order to advance the interests of a new book," she said. "I am not going to publish another line."

She has found, she declares, that an author must either beg for notices or advertise himself into notoriety if he wishes to attain recognition.

"The turgid twaddle which is reviewed on the day of publication generally bears no relation to life or literature," she says in conclusion.

Tired of his seaside house, H. G. Wells, the famous novelist, has returned to the London he left in disgust ten years ago. It was then that he built for himself a modern home at Sandgate, near Folkestone, with a rock garden, a tennis lawn, a garden study and a splendid view of Hythe Bay, seen through square leaded glass. Later Mr. Wells was made a local magistrate. The district of Sandgate became the scene of several of his novels. It was from the neighborhood of his house that the men went to the moon; and it was near Sandgate that the mermaid in "The Sea Lady" appeared on the beach.

He has, however, after ten years of his seaside retreat settled down definitely in an old-world London house. Mrs. Wells explains that though she and her husband like the country, they are of the opinion that they get enough of it during their holidays.

"My husband's writing," she says, "is little affected by environment, and he will be quite as happy here as he would be in any solitude of rural calm. When we feel we need a change—well, we can always take it."

Gilbert Chesterton, G. B. Shaw, Sir Arthur Pinero and Henry Arthur Jones are among the literary men who live in London.

Among the many bequests made by the late Rosa N. Carey are two to her friend, Helen Burnside, the famous writer of verses for Christmas cards. Miss Burnside, who was a close friend of Miss Carey, and resided with her, has been left an annuity of $500 and the bedroom furniture used by the novelist. The copyright of Miss Carey's works, all the royalties and all her MSS. were left in trust to pay certain family and other annuities. When she died in July last she had more than thirty novels to her credit and she left a fortune of $55,000.

After a cricket match in which Frankfort Moore was induced to play recently the well-known novelist told the following cricket story. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, J. M. Barrie and himself were playing in a match together. On the side was a stalwart sporting Englishman who knew far more about cricket than books, and who also knew that the team was nominally composed of authors. For his first essay he ran against the man who invented Sherlock Holmes.

"Would you mind telling me your name? I didn't quite catch it just now," he said.

"Conan Doyle," was the reply.

"Ah." The sportsman pulled at his moustache. "Do you write?" he asked at last.

"A little," said the author in some surprise.

The conversation ended, and the next man the questioner happened against chanced to be J. M. Barrie, hiding from the sight of men in a quiet corner, as is his wont.

"Feeling fit?" the cricketer asked.

"Pretty fair," said Barrie.

"D'ye know, I didn't quite catch your name a minute or so ago. Would you mind?"

"My name's Barrie."

"Ah!" and a long pause, for Barrie is the most nervous of men in the presence of strangers.

"Do you write, Mr. Barrie?"

"I have written now and then, I am afraid," said Barrie meekly.

Shortly afterward, the sportsman moved on once more, feeling that men who wrote were about as unentertaining as last year's newspapers. He tugged at his mustache * * * and at that moment ran full tilt into Frankfort Moore. The same question followed in the praiseworthy effort to get on warmer terms with his fellow players. And when he learned the third stranger's name, his face brightened wonderfully.

"I needn't ask if you write, Mr. Moore," he cried with enthusiasm. "Lalla Rookh is a household word with us."

Andrew Lang has an ingenious method of heading his recent impressions of current fiction, "Seeing Life." We are given to understand that only by the reviewing of novels does this hermit of letters come in contact with the madding crowd. His comments are resultingly whimsical. Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes has pictured a "political leader entirely devoted to a middle-aged married woman, older than himself." Mr. Lang confesses that "like the immortal, but extremely senile hero of 'The Notch in the Axe,' 'I like them young.'" In his analysis of the last book on his list he discovers that if the principal character had possessed the slightest tincture of common sense there would have been no novel—"and in actual life there very seldom is a novel."

Though chiefly revelatory of his own physical misery the last letters of Ivan Turgeneff to Ludwig Pietsch, now being published in the Saturday Review, contain occasional bits of interesting criticism. He regarded, for instance, a writer who wrote in any other language but his own mother tongue as "a scamp and a wretched brainless hog." In Turgeneff's estimation the novel of Tolstoi's called "War and Peace" is the noblest epic of modern times.

CHARLES OGDENS.

OUR DUMB FRIENDS.

(Carolyn Wells in Harper's Magazine for October.)

Reformers, wake! A crying wrong
Has been permitted overlong!
And wanton cruelty hides behind
A so-called "service to mankind."

Ah, save dumb vegetable life
From the too eager kitchen-knife.
Their fate contributes not a bit
To "scientific benefit."

What torture must a cabbage feel
As nearer comes the glittering steel!
And pierces, with a fiendish art,
Straight to the tender, quivering heart!

Potatoes suffer without doubt
When ruthless hands their eyes cut out!
Say, does it aid our humankind
When these dumb creatures are made blind?

Again they wreak their horrid will,
Furthering (they say) the aurist's skill;
Its dumb appeal they treat with scorn,
And cut the ears from living corn!

These awful truths should make us pause
And reconstruct our country's laws;
With righteous wrath our blood should boil
At martyred victims of the soil.

Oh, Anti-Vivisectionist,
This portion of your work you've missed!
And your success is but defeat
If man may flay a living beet!

The reader cannot nod as he reads the lively and engaging example of typical, breezy Twentieth-century fiction, which Sturgis & Walton Company will publish in mid September under the title "An American Princess." It is by William Tillinghast Eldridge, whose "Hilma," published not long since, was popular on the large scale.

Another volume of Aunt Jane's delightful recollections of life in the Blue Grass Country that promises to be as popular as the author's "Aunt Jane of Kentucky."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1909

"Business."

Friday Evening, Sept. 24.—No evidence of strong support asserted itself in the New York stock market to-day and prices continued irregular and unstable. The rise in Steel common to 85¾ had a temporary effect of pulling up other stocks, but this was lost before the close and at the end of the last session prices were near the day's lowest. Selling of Reading had a depressing effect on other issues. At the close Reading was 1 point below yesterday's close.

Money rates remained practically the same, barring a tendency to greater firmness in call money, for which the ruling rate was 2¼, as opposed to 2¾ for yesterday. However, the quotations on call money continued from 2¾ to 3 per cent. Time loans were soft, especially for six months, at 3½ to 3¾. Exchange was at par and general business was excellent. All reports were of steady improvement in most lines.

The Chicago wheat market was again weak because of heavy sales of September delivery. There were net losses on the day of ½ to 1⅞c. At the close September was quoted at $1.01¾ and December at 98½c.

Low temperatures prevailed throughout the corn belt causing some apprehension, but in spite of it the corn market was weak. The market was off 1c at one time and closed from 1 to 1⅜c lower.

Oats were weak owing to corn and wheat heaviness, but there was strength to September delivery. Closing prices were ⅛ to ¾c off.

Covering by shorts lent strength to provisions, lard being in special demand because of the short stocks held.

A Poor Equivocator.

Before the President set out upon his tour of the United States the Courier-Journal ventured the prediction that if he should tackle the tariff issue he would run into misfortune. He has done so. President Taft is not much of a stump speaker. He is a plain, blunt man without many frills. At Winona he made an unvarnished statement. Being somewhat precariously situated between the devil and the deep sea he did about as well as any reasonable person could have expected him to do. Now he is assailed by many of his friends for having spoken right out in meeting as an advocate of the programme of practical politics that has been carried out for some time by Republican politicians who are regularly assaulted by many supporters of the President.

The Chicago Record-Herald is greatly grieved because the President's Winona speech was tactless and impolitic. To quote:

"The President's actions have been those of a practical statesman who was resolved upon getting results of the highest importance to the country. Moreover, we expect much from his actions in the future. He is a man who can be depended on to do the right thing. But his Winona speech in its entirety was not happily phrased. It would seem that he might have bound the standpatters and dealt more sympathetically with the Western progressives at the same time. They certainly do not desire free trade. They voted as they did as a protest against what they believed to be a grave injustice. Pleasanter words about them would hardly have encouraged a standpat mutiny, if such an expression is permissible. But if they have received something in the nature of a chill, let them now force organization precepts upon the organization. Let them cram them down the throats of such men as Cannon, who is stubbornly and stupidly opposing all progress."

A more skillful and less honest public speaker might perhaps have "toted water on both shoulders," but it was not to be reasonably expected of the President. That he would create capital for the "insurgents" was plain when it was announced that he would attempt a defense of the measure which was regarded by his best friends, among the advocates of downward revision, as spelling his defeat, and for which he made a somewhat lame apology when he affixed his signature to it. He is at least to be credited with the candor that has characterized the attitude of Mr. Cannon since the enactment of the Payne law. He did not descend to an effort to befog the issue, but, upon the contrary, took a position which leaves no one in doubt. The incident is, of course, regrettable to those who hoped and believed that the President would not be found in the Cannon camp, but its occurrence was inevitable.

Protection of Birds.

The National Association of Audubon Societies is endeavoring to establish a national educational institution for the preservation of bird life. From this institution teachers would be sent to various parts of the country to conduct summer schools and lecturers trained to demonstrate the value of birds in destroying insects that menace crops.

There is a field for a good deal of educative work in this direction. Endowment, however, would be necessary to the opening of such an institution and endowments are not easily obtained. It may be a long time before the dream of the Audubon Societies is realized. One of the objects is the distribution of "literature." This, it would seem, could be accomplished whether a university is endowed or not and it would be an effective method of educating the masses. There is no questioning the fact that there is too much wanton slaughter of birds. It goes on every day and almost everywhere, regardless of legislative enactments and appeals from humane societies and other organizations.

The wild bird's life is a precarious one at best. He is constantly menaced by danger in many forms. He is a friend to the human family, destroying millions of insects that infest flowers and fruits and vegetation. His cheerful song adds to the music of the world and the joys of existence. To those who love him no landscape view is perfect without his presence; no tree, or bush, or shrub is so beautiful that he does not adorn it; no field or garden so attractive that his plumage, be it gay or somber, does not enhance the attraction. It is a strange thing that there is so large an element of mankind that does not love him; that looks upon him as a mere mark for ruthless slaughter.

One of the first and most favored pastimes of the average boy is hunting. Whether his equipment consist of a bow and arrow, a rubber sling, or a flobert rifle, everything is game that comes within his range. He shoots frequently and indiscriminately and wild birds being the most available targets suffer mostly from his marksmanship. In city and country alike, boys are the chief offenders, though it must be admitted that there are others—men in bulk, but boys in brain—who are equally lacking in discrimination.

In view of the continuing destruction it is wonderful that any considerable number of birds survive. Some varieties once prevalent in Kentucky are now about extinct. Many kinds once seen frequently now are seen rarely. The Audubon University cannot come any too soon.

Christian Versus Confucian.

When we stop to consider that of every four persons in the world one is a Chinaman the difficulties that have beset Christian missionaries laboring to convert the Chinese from their various established religions are apparent. That a new obstacle now presents itself is announced in the recently-issued Eighty-fifth Year Book of the Berlin Missionary Society.

To quote:

"The sentiment of the Government is distinctly hostile to Christianity. The Wai-Wu-pu, or Board of Foreign Affairs at Pekin, has issued a decree forbidding any Chinese to found an independent church, or to collect any funds for the church. A general desire seems to prevail that the extension of Christianity in China should be checked."

Kreuz Zeitung, a Berlin organ of the Clericals, is quoted in the Literary Digest as saying that the slogan "China for the Chinese" includes within the scope of its meaning a modernization of China without the supplantation of Chinese civilization by Western civilization and the overthrow of Confucianism. Christianity, and next to it Buddhism, is profoundly disliked by the reformers who are willing enough to learn from the West, but who do not look with any favor upon borrowing a religion along with enlightenment.

Upon the other hand various correspondents for the nonsectarian press declare that the Chinese remain as tolerant of Christianity to-day as they have been at any time, as tolerant as they have been of Buddhism and Mohammedanism. It is stated in some quarters that the Japanese as a nation have suffered missionary work to be carried on by Christians chiefly that they might pick up Western learning, and the English language, from the missionaries. In a recently published volume by a missionary it is stated that the Koreans, when they first heard of Christianity as the religion of Western nations who knew how to make battleships and guns, sent to China to get books about the Christians and their religion, not because they felt any spiritual need, but because they thought possibly Christianity in Korea might bring about Western progress. It would be somewhat curious, and decidedly unfortunate for China, if the Celestials whose best chance for an "awakening" lies in cementing relations with the Western world, should allow religious or racial prejudices to crop up at this time and stand between China and modernization. And that would surely be the effect of a persistent official effort to check the work of Christian missionaries who introduce, along with the Gospel, American and European ideas and customs.

The progress of Christianity has been somewhat slow in China. It is indicated by records that attempts were made to introduce it in the Sixth century. Active efforts were made by the Jesuits in the Sixteenth century, little having been accomplished in 1,000 years that has passed since the initial invasion, and the well organized work that has been in progress during the better part of the last century has brought the total number of Catholics and Protestants up to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000. These figures seem small as against 20,000,000 Moslems, 250,000,000 Confucianists and a vast number of Buddhists and believers in Taoism and Shintoism. Yet the effect of the presence of Christian missionaries upon Chinese thought has been greater than the number of converts to Christianity might indicate.

Confucianism is the explanation of the stagnation that has kept China behind the rest of the civilized world. As a philosophy it is still the dominant influence upon Chinese society, and to its influence is chargeable the extreme slowness of the Chinese "awakening." It is because the doctrines of aliens tend to overthrow the long-established customs of the Chinese that most of the religious clashes have occurred. If it is true that an anti-Christian programme is being developed as a part of the policy of the Chinese Government the result to be expected would be a slipping back into old ruts. The Japanese have been wise enough to profit to the fullest extent by every opportunity to learn from the West. The Chinese, as yet far less developed as a nation, cannot well afford to commit, at this crucial period, the error of declaring war against Christianity by turning against the Christian missionaries who have given them enlightenment along with "light" upon spiritual matters.

If the young Regent who is the ruler of China at the present time, and will be until the baby Emperor reaches his majority, is not long-headed enough to see that China needs, for her temporal welfare, more missionary schools and colleges, and greater encouragement for the "foreign devil" within her boundaries, his excellent education and his foreign travel cannot be said to have benefited him as much as was to be expected.

If the Chinese should take the best possible advantage of an opportunity to increase Christian missionary endeavor in China the missionaries would be greatly encouraged and the Chinese would be greatly helped along the road to advancement.

The Mineral Water Industry.

The United States Geological Survey, which has been gathering some statistics of the mineral water business, expresses the opinion that the water industry has suffered less depression by reason of the financial disturbances of 1907 than almost any of the other industries. The table water springs, the report says, were hit hardest, while the medicinal spring owners have every reason to be satisfied with the outlook.

The Kentucky trade is active, according to the report, which embraces returns from twelve springs. Of the year's output it says:

"Increased activity by proprietors of some medicinal springs caused the mineral water output of Kentucky to rise during 1908 to 797,186 gallons, valued at $69,112, as compared with 736,920 gallons, valued at $72,378 reported in 1907, an increase in quantity of over 8 per cent. and a decrease in value of nearly 9 per cent. The retail price fell from 10 cents in 1907 to 8 cents in 1908. No new springs reported, the total numbeing being two less than for 1907. The output is about evenly distributed between table and medicinal waters. A considerable quantity was used in the manufacture of soft drinks."

Kentucky, it appears, is selling more water and cheaper water and as the State is prolific in products adapted both to table and medicinal use this is a very satisfactory state of affairs. It should be remarked that the figures of the Geological Survey relate only to shipments, and as a number of the twelve springs reporting are resorts there is no accounting of the water consumed by the guests at such resorts.

Kentucky's showing is somewhat better than that of her sister State of Tennessee, of which the report says:

"According to returns received, the output of mineral waters in Tennessee during 1908 showed a slight decline as compared with that of 1907, the value decreasing in larger ratio, due to lower prices being quoted. The sales amounted to 712,912 gallons, valued at $68,698, as compared with 758,312 gallons, valued at $85,249, in 1907, a loss of 5.99 per cent. in quantity, and of 19.42 per cent. in value. The average price decline was from 17 to 10 cents. No new springs reported, and three were dropped from the list, lowering the total number reporting to fourteen."

The comparison indicates that Kentucky is doing very well in the water business, despite the belief, somewhat prevalent in the outer world, that Kentuckians are not partial to water for drinking purposes.

Mr. Hitchcock's Waterbugs.

Waterbugs, we are told in a dispatch from Washington, are causing great damage in the Post-office Department. They not only are eating the mucilage off the postage stamps, but are destroying some of the department records.

If any anxious applicant for a post-office has grown weary of waiting for his commission he should not despair. It is just possible that his petition has been eaten and digested by waterbugs before the high-muck-a-mucks of the department got around to it. A petition for a change of postmasters is the only thing in the world to give them cognizance of the fact that there is a post-office at Rube Center. How else are they to know, as the Japanese schoolboy would express it, that Hon. Post-office is enjoying a vacation if they find no petitions in the pigeon hole? And how are they going to find the petitions if the waterbugs have played them a low-down trick like Cook played on Peary and have been first at the pigeon hole? If any man who thinks he is entitled to a post-office has failed to get it he should go on to Washington and take out a search warrant. Armed with the proper authority he should lose no time in "frisking" any large, corpulent and suspicious-looking waterbugs that he finds loafing around in the vicinity of the department. Some of these bugs may have been fattened on political influence from Rube Center. As they season their literature with mucilage the applicant may find some remnants of his petition under their wings or sticking to their tentacles and thus be able to establish his claim.

It is exceedingly unfortunate that Postmaster General Hitchcock should be hampered in the great work of retrenchment and reform he has undertaken by an onslaught of destructiveness from such an unexpected quarter. It is a great shock to the current system of economy in the department when a clerk, who has laboriously wrapped up 30 cents' worth of supplies for a fourth-class postmaster in South Dakota, is compelled to report to his superior officer that a waterbug has made off with the whole shooting match and that the requisition will have to be refilled.

Waterbugs with an appetite for postal cards and a thirst for mucilage are an unmitigated nuisance. They are especially so at this critical period when Mr. Hitchcock is resorting to all sorts of petty economies to cut down expenses and to reduce the postal deficit. If the Postmaster General is at a loss to know what to do about it he might obtain some valuable pointers over at the Agricultural Department. "Uncle Jimmie" Wilson's scientists are investigating all sorts of animals from elephants down to tomcats. Hardly a day passes that some one of them does not give to the world a booklet on the manners and customs of the field mouse, the distinguishing characteristics of the boll weevil or the predatory instincts of the potato beetle. It is scarcely possible that the waterbug has entirely escaped their observation. If they do not know how to extinguish him it is almost certain that they can promulgate a theory as to his cause and effect or philosophize a bit as to the element in his nature which brings about his craving for mucilage.

"Uncle Jimmie" Wilson might lend Mr. Hitchcock a box of insect powder or a barrel of sheep dip. If that has no effect on the waterbugs there will be nothing left to do but to resort to the steam roller, which worked so well in Chicago once upon a time.

"Between the question of dealing with the Home Telephone Company and the Cumberland Telephone Company," says the Mayor in his campaign effort, "there is a wide difference." So many people think—a difference which may not be wholly inexplicable when it is understood that Mr. Fairleigh, the legal representative of the Cumberland here, is also the head of the local Republican machine on which the Mayor relies for another term.

The Mayor, in his effort to succeed himself, explains his refusal of the State Board of Health's call upon his administration to prohibit, after thirty days' notice, the sale of milk from cows not tested for tuberculosis by saying that it would have resulted in a milk famine here. The Mayor seems to think that it is better to die of tuberculosis than to suffer for lack of milk.

The increased duty of 50 cents a hundred pounds upon lemons is responded to by an increased rate of 15 cents a hundred pounds by the transcontinental lines. But since we're to be robbed for the benefit of infant industries, who cares a fig whether the infant in this case is a railroad or a bunch of California lemon-growers?

In connection with the fact that the name of James Hazen Hyde bobs up in the list of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, it should be explained, in justice to the once widely known Mr. Hyde, that the insurance taken out upon the voices of the various singers is not burglar insurance.

"It is strange," in the opinion of the New York Tribune, "that the President's tariff speech should make the insurgent press wrathful." Indeed it is! It vindicates the insurgents and should cause them to rejoice that the issue is now sharply drawn.

The Chicago News opines that the Canadians will take the view that the United States does not care for closer trade relations with its neighbor. The President, at any rate, cares more for "party solidarity."

TAX CONFERENCE

Comes To End With Election of Officers.

ALLEN R. FOOTE AGAIN HEADS ORGANIZATION.

SELECTION OF NEXT MEETING PLACE LEFT TO COMMITTEE.

DELEGATES TOUR THE CITY.

The election of a full staff of officers and the adoption of important reports touching upon the work and condition of the International Tax Association concluded finally the big conference of tax experts at The Seelbach yesterday morning. About twenty-five delegates were on hand for the last session, which took the form of a business meeting, and the assembly disbanded quietly at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

With the exception of Arthur J. Matheson, of Toronto, Ontario, the vice president of the association in the Dominion of Canada, who tendered his resignation from that office, all the old officers were re-elected. A. P. McNab, of Saskatchewan, Canada, the municipal minister in the Province of Saskatchewan, was selected to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. Matheson. The official list of officers follows:

* * *

Officers Elected.

President Allen Ripley Foote, Columbus, O.; treasurer, Foster Copeland, Columbus, O.; secretary, Mary C. Snyder, Columbus, O.; vice president in the United States, Lawson Purdy, New York; vice president in Dominion of Canada, A. P. McNab, Saskatchewan; corresponding secretary, United States, A. C. Pleydell, New York; corresponding secretary, Dominion of Canada, G. R. Geary, Toronto, Ontario.

The old executive committee was re-elected yesterday. It is composed of all the officers and the following tax experts:

Prof. Charles J. Bullock, Cambridge, Mass.; Ernest C. Kontz, Atlanta, Ga.; F. M. Lee, Jackson, Miss.; Judge N. S. Gilson, Madison, Wis.; J. J. Thomas, Salt Lake City, Utah, and John B. McKilligan, Victoria, B. C.

The committee appointed at the final conference on taxation Thursday evening to work out the details in connection with a new organization for tax commissioners of the United States, held a meeting yesterday, but did not take any definite action in any direction. They discussed in a general way plans looking toward the launching of the new organization. They will perfect their scheme within the next few months.

* * *

The Primary Purpose.

It was explained yesterday that the primary purpose of this organization is to provide a means for assembling the tax commissioners in conference from all over the country. They will meet and submit reports on the taxation systems in vogue in their various States as to their satisfaction, etc. The most perfect plans will be recommended to the Legislatures of States where an improved system is needed.

In his annual report President Foote stated that the Tax Association now has 265 active members and 161 sustaining members. This is an increase over the number reported last year and the year preceding. He also read the report of an auditing company that recently inspected the books and records of the organization. "It showed that for the fiscal year ending August 31 the receipts were $8,263.63, from which is deducted disbursements amounting to $8,261.26. From his own personal account President Foote stated that he has advanced $9,000 to the association to cover its current expenses. In order to repay this sum it will be necessary to enlist 100 new sustaining members at $100 each.

"Now, there is the answer to anybody who wants to know where we get our money," said President Foote.

* * *

Great Good Accomplished.

In concluding, President Foote told of the great good the organization has done since it was launched three years ago. He announced that the States of Connecticut, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island have all recently adopted a resolution dealing with the inheritance tax passed and submitted by the association. The resolution requested politely that the Federal Government keep hands off and allow the States to reserve the revenue on the inheritance tax for thir exclusive use.

The resolution expressing the appreciation of the members of the association for the cordial way in which they have been received in Louisville by the local committee, and the city and State officials, and also thanking the local press for their co-operation during the convention, was suggested by Lawson W. Purdy, of New York. The vote on Mr. Lawson's motion that this resolution be prepared at once was unanimous for adoption.

By consent of the delegates at the session yesterday morning the matter of appointing a number of committees, provided for by the resolutions in the report of the resolutions committee Thursday evening, was left to the executive committee. Some of these committees were to have been appointed by President Foote, but it was deemed best to leave the whole matter to the executive committee. This will be done later on.

* * *

No Action On Next Meeting Place.

No action was taken yesterday on the selection of a city for the next annual conference of the association. This will be decided in a few months by the executive committee. William George Bruce, of Milwaukee, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, and Charles J. Bullock, of Cambridge, Mass., both extended invitations to the association to assemble in their respective cities next year.

At noon yesterday all the delegates who played an active part in the conference here were guests at a banquet given in their honor by Gov. Augustus E. Willson at the Pendennis Club. After the banquet fifty or more of the delegates and their friends enjoyed an automobile ride over the city. All the principal places of interest to the visitors were taken in, and the time to say farewell to Louisville came all too soon.

YOUNG LAWYERS' CLUB TO HOLD IMPORTANT SESSION.

Those of Democratic Persuasion To Assemble At Courthouse At 10 O'Clock This Morning.

Members of the Young Lawyers' Democratic Club have been called to meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the joint session room at the courthouse, where important matters are to come up for consideration. The chief speaker will be Judge Matt O'Doherty, who will speak on the "Issues of the Campaign." Fred Forcht, member of the Election Commission, will speak on "The Election Law." It is urged on the members that all attend.

CHALLENGE

Mr. Hunt Invites Judge Parker To Debate.

CHANCE FOR JURIST TO AIR COMPLAINTS.

POISON SPRINKLED ON BUTTER AND MILK.

BLOODHOUNDS ON THE TRAIL.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—George R. Hunt, the Democratic nominee for Circuit Judge in this city and county has challenged Judge Watts Parker, his opponent on the fusion ticket, to a joint debate. Judge Parker is making his race on the ground of alleged mismanagement of affairs by the Democratic officeholders, of which he is himself one and has been for twenty years a member, and the challenge will give him an opportunity to air his complaints and will also furnish the people an opportunity of deciding whether there is any foundation for them. The challenge is as follows:

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24, 1909.—Judge Watts Parker, Nominee for Circuit Judge on the Fusion Ticket, Lexington, Ky.—Dear Sir: We are the candidates for the office of Circuit Judge in this county upon opposing tickets. The people of this county are interested in the choice of their judicial officer. I now invite you to one or more joint discussions of all the issues between us, both public and personal, and at such times and places as may be agreed upon by friends representing each of us. Will you kindly favor me with as early an answer as possible, and if you accept this invitation, will you kindly designate some person to meet with the Hon. W. P. Kimball, the chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, on or before Monday, September 27, to arrange the time or times, place or places, of such meetings, and such other details for our joint discussions as may be deemed necessary by them. Very respectfully,

GEORGE R. HUNT.

Poison Sprinkled.

Paris green was sprinkled upon the butter and milk in dairy of Jack Roach, on the Bryant's Station pike, near this city last night, in an evident effort to poison Mr. Roach's family. When he arose and went to his dairy house this morning, Mr. Roach discovered that it had been entered through a window which had been covered with a wire netting. The netting had been cut apparently with plyers or a hatchet. An investigation proved that the place had not been robbed, but that paris green had been thickly sprinkled over everything in the place.

The milk and butter in the dairy was to have been delivered to Mr. Roach's customers Friday and had it not been for his vigilance serious results might have followed the trick. Capt. V. G. Millikin took the bloodhounds to the Roach farm to-day in an effort to track the guilty persons, and it is believed that a strong clew has been secured.

Bought For a Retreat.

William J. Chancellor has sold his farm, consisting of seventy-four acres on the Tate's Creek pike three and one-half miles from Lexington, to Father Vandervost, priest of St. Joseph's Hospital, who has already taken possession of the property. The price while not made public was a satisfactory one. On the farm is a colonial ivy-covered brick residence, with a beautiful bluegrass woodland in front, adding to the attractiveness of the place. Victor Bogaert, Jr., will reside there for the present, taking care of the property for Father Vandervost, who will convert it into a picturesque rural retreat.

HEARD AND SEEN IN KENTUCKY.

One Calls Two.

(Elizabethtown Mirror.)

The Ladies' Aid of Big Spring met with Mr. and Mrs. Williams on the 12th instant. A watermelon feast was a feature of the meeting, and each guest was given a melon for future consumption.

Fox Chased All Night.

(Green River Republican.)

Ellis Norris' three dogs, last Saturday morning about 7 o'clock, caught a red fox on the ground in the Pipe Springs vicinity after running it all night. A. A. Main, who was on his way to his coal bank, saw the dogs catch the fox. He said they were Ellis Norris' dogs. Ellis says he has the only red fox dogs in Butler county.

Passing of "Uncle" Dennis.

(Kentucky Standard.)

Dennis Fennell, of color, known as Uncle Dennis, died at his home at Hunters on Wednesday night aged 112. Until a short time ago Uncle Dennis worked in his garden and about the little farm and did his work as well as any young man; until two weeks ago his health was good; about that time some bronchial trouble developed and he continued to decline until the end. Mentally the old man was remarkable—memory good, mind clear and strong. He was one of the old-time darkies in truth. Was formerly owned by the late P. S. Barber. Mrs. Cecilia Barber, only a short time before his death, gave the old man a home on her place in Bardstown, where he could have passed his last days restfully and at ease, but the call of a lifetime habit prevailed, and in work on his little farm Uncle Dennis rounded up his days.

A Welcome Accident.

(Nicholasville Tribune.)

J. Hogan Ballard, of Bryantsville, is one of the most conscientious automobilists in this section of the country. On his way from Lexington last week he ran down and killed a hen, and instead of going on, unmindful of the grief of the owner of that hen, he immediately stopped, got out, tenderly picked up the unfortunate fowl and rang the doorbell of the house nearby. A woman opened the door and he began to talk, saying: "I am very sorry to inform you that I have unintentionally killed this hen of yours," and stated that he was willing to pay all damage, but the good lady says: "I am much obliged to you. I have been trying to catch that hen for three days to cook for dinner and I never could lay a hand on the pesky thing. Thank you, sir; thank you." So he raised his hat and said: "You are entirely welcome."

DENIES POSTAL HAS ABSORBED COMPETITOR.

New York, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Clarence H. Mackay, who arrived from Europe this morning on the steamship Lusitania, when asked about the truth of the report which appeared in the press throughout the country a few weeks ago, to the effect that the Postal Company had absorbed the Western Union, said: "Neither the Postal Company nor the Mackay companies have entered into any arrangement with, or purchase or lease of the Western Union or the purchase of its stock, and neither the Postal company nor the Mackay companies contemplate doing so. Competition will continue."

Recipes for Saturday.

EGG SALAD.

Beat smooth yolks of three eggs with half a teaspoonful each of sugar, salt and mustard, add a dash of celery salt, one cupful of vinegar and one cupful of milk, added alternately to prevent curdling, and three tablespoonfuls olive oil; put into a double boiler and cook to the consistency of thick custard, stirring all the time. Let it get perfectly cold. Line a chilled dish with crisp lettuce leaves, heap hard-boiled eggs, cut into quarters, upon these, and pour over the dressing.

FISH SOUFFLE.

Mix two cupfuls cooked fish with two mashed potatoes and beat well, add one cupful milk, seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika. Beat yolks of four eggs until light, add fish mixture; when well blended fold in stiffly-beaten whites. Pour into buttered baking dish; bake for forty minutes in moderate oven.

OPEN BIDS FOR BUILDING FOUR SECTIONS OF SEWER.

Four contracts for four sections of the Northwestern sewer in connection with Louisville's comprehensive sewer system will be awarded as soon as the bids have been tabulated. The bids were opened yesterday by the Sewer Commissioners. The contracts will aggregate about $300,000. This is about the biggest letting in the history of the work.

STORIES OF THE TOWN.

The smallest check ever issued by the City Treasurer is now in his hands awaiting claim by the man to whom it is issued. It is for the sum of 1 cent, and is made out in favor of Henry Feldkemp. The money is the rebate on the amount which Mr. Feldkemp paid for a private drain built into his residence. The charge was $18, and as the estimate missed the actual cost by a whole penny they decided to send it to him.

It's a good thing for the city and those who do business with it that it doesn't cost as much to collect most claims as it will in this instance. It has already cost the amount of the check to notify Mr. Feldkemp that it is waiting for him, for a postal was sent to him telling him of his windfall. Then, too, he will have to put up 10 cents for car fare to come to the city hall and collect, so that 1100 per cent. of the money will have been spent in getting it.

If this weren't a business Administration that would look pretty bad.

Townsend Smith, a Louisville boy who doesn't come home very often, is being grabbed on the streets every few minutes these days by some fellow he used to know six or eight years ago, and who hasn't seen Smith in that long; which is quite a spell to remember a fellow of that name.

The subject of our sketch—to use the phraseology of Horatio Alger, Jr.—parts his name in the middle, as he signs it T. Townsend. However, that doesn't prevent him from being one of the keenest chaps intellectually that has been turned out of this particular section for some time.

Smith graduated at High School several years ago, and then went to Harvard. Somehow he got the Harvard habit, for he is there yet. He got his bachelor's degree a long time ago, and is now working up to a Ph. D., which means doctor of philosophy. He is a Fellow, or something like that, and gets paid real money just to stick around and study physics and magnetism and a few other high-brow subjects. When he gets through he will probably land as a professor in some other equally cultured university.

By the way, Mr. Smith says "Harvard" and not "Ha-vud." That is a point worth noting. It goes to prove what was said in the beginning—that he is a regular fellow with lots of friends who are glad to see him back on his native heath, even if it's only for two weeks.

John W. Brooke tells a good story at the expense of a local man who married a couple of years ago.

"He has a most attractive wife, too," said Mr. Brooke, "and I congratulated them both when it happened. Not long after that I was walking along the street with this chap and we saw a mighty pretty girl. I am more or less esthetic in my tastes, and things that are beautiful appeal to me. I commented upon the pretty face in appropriate terms, and asked my companion if he didn't think the lady was dazzling.

"'No,' he replied shortly. 'I don't notice girls on the street. I think a husband should have eyes only for his wife.'

"Well, that sounded pretty good, and I didn't say anything more. Not long age, however, it chanced that several of us were on the street, and this very fellow was in the crowd. A corking good-looking girl passed by, and it was he who first made the comment that she was extraordinarily good-looking.

"'Look here,' I said, seizing him by the arm. 'I thought you said that you didn't believe in looking at any woman except your wife.'

"That sort of nonplussed him for a minute and he looked the least bit sheepish. Finally he said, 'Well, I did say that, but the truth is I've changed my mind.'"

People in the downtown district have been hearing a bugler blowing the various military calls, or something that sounded suspiciously like them, for the past week or so. Some of them wondered who it was performing, and made an effort to learn, but for a while they didn't succeed. Finally the problem was solved when it was learned that an automobile which has a strange-looking horn was producing the musical sounds.

The horn is divided into several parts, and artistic handling of the bulb produces the various notes. The man who operates it knows how, for the effect is decidedly not unmusical. He has another which he uses for ordinary purposes and when he wants people to get out of the way, while the fancy business is reserved for occasions like those when the bugler on a coach sounds the hunting choruses as the vehicle rolls smoothly along.

The effect of the new-fangled horn is so good that people who have noticed it say that they would like to substitute it for all the sounds like this: "Honk, honk!"

Dispute Over L. P. Ewald's Estate Will Be Settled.

REACH AGREEMENT AND ONLY COURT'S SANCTION NEEDED.

COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY FILES PETITION FOR ADVICE.

IN THE COURTS YESTERDAY.

Asking that the court name a guardian ad litem for the three children of Louis Philip Ewald and for advice as to how it shall proceed in the executing of the will of Mr. Ewald, the Columbia Trust Company yesterday filed suit against the three children, Philip Louis Ewald, Helen J. Ewald and Sterling Donald Ewald. By the will the plaintiff was named as executor and trustee under it and as guardian of the three children, all of whom are under 14 years of age. The estate is a very large one, consisting largely of shares of stock in the Ewald Iron Company, Mr. Ewald at the time of his death being the only stockholder.

The period for which the corporation was created had expired before the death of the testator, but its business continued as a corporation up to the time of his death, no steps having been taken to wind up its affairs as required by law. The company was left without officers or directors and its business was at a standstill. The plaintiff took necessary steps to provide for an organization for the company, the operations were resumed and the good will preserved. These officers have taken steps toward winding up the company's affairs and the plaintiff contemplates the organizing then of a new company to carry on the business, according to the provisions of the will.

Banks Refuse To Pay Money.

The testator, having some $2,000,000 in cash in St. Louis banks besides real estate in that city, the will was recorded in the St. Pouis Probate Court and the St. Louis Union Trust Company named administrator of the Missouri estate with the will annexed. Then, in proceeding with the winding up of the estate, the directors declared a dividend of the $2,000,000 surplus which immediately became payable to the plaintiff. Notice was given the banks that the money was to be withdrawn. They said they would not recognize Ewald Iron Company's demand, asserting that the money so deposited in the name of the company was the property of the testator individually and could only be paid to his personal representative in Missouri.

While this controversy was in progress two brothers and two nephews of the testator in St. Louis commenced proceedings seeking to have the appointment of the St. Louis Union Trust Company set aside and themselves named as administrators, asserting their claim as next of kin to the testator in Missouri. They notified all the banks not to pay out money on the Ewald Iron Company's order. This situation threatened the loss of much money of the testator's estate. If the money standing in the name of the Ewald Iron Company should pass into the hands of a St. Louis administrator he would be entitled to $100,000 as his fixed commission. He could further hold the money for two years without being required to pay interest on it, while at the same time it would be subject to local taxation amounting to at least $100,000.

* * *

Expensive Litigation Threatened.

To quote from the petition:

"Plaintiff was advised by local counsel in St. Louis that the outcome of the controversy over the administration there was at least not free from doubt, and it had cause to look with great apprehension as to what might result if said money should pass into the hands of the brothers and nephews of the testator, who had been hostile to him during his life, and manifested great resentment because they were not given a greater share of his estate by his will.

"Plaintiff was confronted with costly and inevitable litigation over the money of the Ewald Iron Company, which might be protracted for years, during which period said money would be unproductive, the banks holding said money having threatened to file bills of interpleader and pay the money into court.

"Under these circumstances, plaintiff was advised by counsel that the interests of the testator's estate made it plaintiff's imperative duty to attempt to compromise and settle said dispute over the administration in St. Louis and also the dispute as to the ownership of the money deposited in the name of the Ewald Iron Company, even though it required the payment of a considerable sum of money."

This, the plaintiff says, it has done, after prolonged negotiations, and is ready to make the settlement of terms satisfactory to it provided the agreement receives the approval of the court. The terms of this agreement will be submitted later, contrary to custom, not being incorporated in the petition. Other questions are expected to arise, the plaintiff says, and advice of the courts will be sought then, the case to be kept open until all are disposed of. Gibson, Marshall & Gibson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Marital Happiness Short-lived.

Eighteen days after they were married in Jeffersonville on the 6th of this month and thirteen days after they separated, Mary E. Willett filed suit against Harry Willett, asking a divorce from bed and board, for alimony at the rate of $5 a week while the suit is pending and a reasonable sum thereafter and for a restraining order to prevent the defendant from disposing of any of his property. According to the petition, which is directed against the guardian of Willett as well as the husband, the defendant abandoned her after they lived together from the 6th to the 11th of this month. He has contributed nothing to her support, she says.

Other suits for divorce are as follows:

Anna Tuchscherer against Lawrence Tuchscherer, alleging five years' separation. They were married in Jeffersonville in 1893. The plaintiff asks for the custody of their son, Lawrence, who has always been with her.

Lena Riehl against Clarence Riehl, abandonment alleged. They were married in Louisville on April 2, 1902, and lived together until September 18, 1908. The plaintiff asks for the custody of their 3-year-old son, Clarence Riehl, Jr.

Elizabeth Beck against John Beck, alleging cruel treatment. They were married on October 12, 1894, and lived together until the first of last month, when, the plaintiff says, although she is 79 years of age, she had to leave him and work for her own livelihood. She asks for $5 a week as alimony and a decree divorcing her from bed and board.

Asks $1,000 For a Dog Bite.

George Schrieber, who says that Soloman Bloom's dog bit him, filed suit yesterday afternoon in the Circuit Clerk's office, for $1,000 in damages, asking judgment against the owner of the dog. The plaintiff says the defendant harbors a ferocious dog and knew of the temper of the brute, but took no pains to see that he did not attack others. He was passing the defendant's house on the date named, he says, when the dog rushed out and attacked him, sinking his teeth in his left hand.

BEREA BRANCH

Property Taken Over For Lincoln Institute.

OVER 400 ACRES AT SIMPSONVILLE PAID FOR.

HEIRS INTERESTED IN ONE TRACT REFUSE TO SIGN.

OPPOSED TO THE LOCATION.

Shelbyville, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The title to the land in the Simpsonville neighborhood in this county, contracted for last May by the Lincoln Institute, the negro branch of Berea College, was formally transferred today by the owners and there now seems to be no doubt that the negro school will ultimately be located near Simpsonville. Between $45,000 and $50,000 was paid to-day by the school officials to the owners for the tract which contains 444 acres. The names of the owners and the number of acres are: I. J. Pace, 140 acres; R. A. Owen, 88 acres; John Blackerby, 125 acres; William Goodknight, 18 acres; J. G. Byars, 73 acres.

The school also contracted for the 127-acre farm of Mrs. Mary O. Byars, lying east of the other lands, but several of the heirs interested in the property were opposed to the land being sold for negro school purposes and declined to sign the deed.

As a consequence this transfer was not made to-day. The people of Simpsonville neighborhood strenuously opposed the location of the school in their locality when the contracts were made for the farms last May. Several mass meetings were held and strong resolutions were adopted calling on all land owners not to sell their farms for such a purpose and demanding that those at the head of the school locate the institution in some other place. The school officials originally expected to secure about 1,000 acres in a body, but after the meetings were held the owners of adjoining property refused to sell at any price. As the school has paid for the farms it is now taken as certain that the institute will be located near Simpsonville. Between $200,000 and $300,000 will be spent improving the property.

GREAT CARE

Taken to Protect Presidents On Mexican Border.

PICK OF SECRET SERVICE TO BE ON HAND.

NEW TARIFF BRINGS MANY WORKS OF ART.

PAINTINGS OF OLD MASTERS.

Washington, Sept. 24.—(Special.)—The greatest precautions have been taken by the secret-service officials of this country and Mexico to guard Presidents Taft and Diaz when they meet on October 16. Mexico will send her best men and the United States has already selected a capable force of detectives, who will keep close watch on suspicious characters. Some of these men are already on duty, watching every suspicious person and investigating all reports as to the possible presence of criminals around October 16.

* * *

Programme Carefully Arranged.

The programme for the meeting of the two Presidents, most carefully arranged between the State Departments of both countries, is for President Diaz to drive across from Juarez and be received by President Taft in El Paso. After a brief visit on this side of the border, President Diaz will return to his country accompanied by President Taft.

* * *

Care Taken By Both Countries.

A stand has been erected on the Mexican side for the reception of President Taft, and this will be guarded with the greatest care. Internal troubles in Mexico and threats of harm to President Diaz determined that Government to take unusual precautions for his protection as well as for the safety of President Taft. The same feeling animates this Government in caring for President Diaz when he is in the United States.

* * *

"Bad Men" Near the Border.

There are many "bad men" near the border of the two countries at this point. The Mexicans maintain a strong garrison of troops in Juarez, and this will be heavily re-enforced, so as to be ready for all emergencies. Most dependence, however, will be placed on the secret-service men of both countries. They will mingle with the crowds for several days before October 16 and on that day will watch every person carefully.

Importation of Works of Art.

Since the new tariff law went into effect, permitting the free importation of art works more than twenty years old, a flood of paintings and sculptors' products has started in the direction of America from Europe. It is already beginning to pour into the various ports. Such an inrush has never been known in the history of the United States. It is said at the Treasury Department that the number of art shipments entering New York is so great the examiner there does not have room to turn around. It is with great difficulty that he can find space to tell whether a production is as old Rubens or a new lithograph.

Official notice has been received at the Treasury that one Van Dyke worth $2,000,000 has just reached New York. The name of the owner is not disclosed. Dealers are taking advantage of the law to import large quantities of art works for sale. Individuals desiring paintings and statuary for their own use are also importing heavily.

Demand For Tobacco Stamps.

A heavy demand for tobacco stamps is reported by the Internal Revenue Bureau within the last few days. Orders that have been rolling in from Collectors were still further swelled to-day by one calling for 20,000,000 stamps of two denominations.

This big and gratifying order to the Treasury officials is to supply mainly the demands at St. Louis and at Durham, N. C., previous heavy requisitions this month having come from Louisville, Baltimore, Newark, N. J., and Middletown, O., which are the large centers for manufactured tobacco.

Treasury officials state that the orders for such large quantities of stamps indicate beyond any doubt that there is a manifest revival of business in the tobacco industry, and from what the collectors report from the various centers the improvement is likely to continue.

The orders being received are so heavy at present that the force of clerks are unable to make the shipments as rapidly as the manufacturers desire, and it may be necessary to detail extra men from some of the other treasury divisions to assist the clerks in the stamp division if the demand continues.

MRS. MARY LUCY HALL SUCCUMBS TO PARALYSIS.

Was Native of Russellville and Well Connected Throughout the State.

The Advisory Committee of the Democratic Party Pass Resolutions On the Death of Judge Jos. T. O'Neal.

At a meeting of the advisory committee of the Democratic party held at the Democratic headquarters, on September 24, 1909, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, This organization has been visited by heavy affliction in the death of our esteemed chairman and fellow member, the Hon. Joseph T. O'Neal,

Resolved, That we place upon record an evidence of our deep and unfeigned sorrow and recognition of our great loss. In the loss of our eminent leader, not only has this organization lost a faithful guide and counselor, but our whole city mourns one of her most loyal and distinguished sons.

To his bereaved family, our hands are extended in fraternal sympathy, with no passing recognition of their grief, but with full and ready comprehension of their loss. It is therefore with keen appreciation of their need that our hearts reach forth to them in their bereavement, with the assurance that they do not grieve alone. Yet not without confidence is the hope tendered that with the sorrow has come the strength wherewith brave hearts meet pain and loss, and that to the household of our brother member is vouchsafed already the fulfillment of that word of promise, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

Resolved, That this expression of loss and sympathy be spread upon the minutes of this organization and a copy sent to the family of our friend and comrade.

SIXTH RACE—Alice, Roseboro, Beau Brummel.

WHAT promises to be the best fall meeting of the thoroughbreds ever given at Churchill Downs will begin this afternoon and will continue for thirteen racing days, ending on October 9. A splendid card has been arranged for the first day, and those who journey to the historic course this afternoon are sure to witness some stirring contests.

Nearly every stall at the Downs is occupied by a thoroughbred, and some of the stables outside of the track are so crowded that there is no room for additional horses. Everything in fact is in readiness for the meeting to begin. The grandstand has been newly painted in green and white, the fences and stables have been whitewashed and the approach from the gate to the entrance to the grandstand has been covered by an attractive shed. Churchill Downs never looked more beautiful since the plant was established.

Horses and horsemen are here from all parts of the country to take part in the sport. The hotels are crowded with turfmen who have come from Canada, from New York, from the Pacific slope, from New Orleans, and there are a few here from Mexico to get pointers on how the racing game is conducted in Kentucky, the home of the thoroughbred, for use at Jaurez during the coming meeting, which will begin there on December 1.

The card for this afternoon is one of considerable merit and much above the average of those usually presented to racegoers on the Western course in the autumn season. Six events are down to be decided and they have all filled in fine fashion. There is not a dearth of entrants by any means, and as the different events are well balanced the sport to-day should prove decidedly interesting for those who journey to the Downs.

The feature of the card is the Frank Fehr purse, a sprint affair at six furlongs. Seven speedy performers are billed to face the starter and the winner will surely have to step some in order to gain the verdict. Crystal Maid, Al Mueller and Merrick look best on form, but Hyperion, Arionette and Ida May are another trio that will have to be considered before the numbers are hung up. Ametus is the outsider and is not given much chance with this class of steppers.

The first race, which is at one mile and seventy yards, has thirteen ordinary platers engaged. It is an open affair at best, and the winner is likely to pay a handsome return for a $5 holding in one of the "silent bookmakers." Lady Vie looks best of the lot, but Orlandot and Banridge, the latter having worked well recently, will probably furnish most of the contention for the long end of the purse.

The six furlong dash, second to be run, has the limit of starters, sixteen, carded to do battle. It is for 2-year-olds and much depends on the manner in which the field is sent away. Racing luck is always a big factor in races of this character and ofttimes the best horse gets no part of the purse. With that item eliminated, however, Claudia, Eva Tanguay and Zephyr should be among those present when the wire is reached at the end of the journey. They figure best in the order named.

The eight that are billed to go one mile and seventy yards in the third race are fair performers over a distance of ground and this contest should prove very interesting. On past performance Carew looks best of the lot engaged, but Malediction and Belle Scott are close up and will be the ones the others will have to beat.

The 2-year-olds have another inning when the fifth is on, and thirteen youngsters have elected to try for the long end. Gallant Pirate, although having to shoulder top weight, 112 pounds, looks to be the best class colt of the bunch, and with fair racing luck should be close to the front when the deciding line is reached. Bell Clem is a very fast miss and will go well in this event. Foursome, Lady Welles, Ben K. Sleet and Judge Walton are fair class youngsters and the winner may turn up in one of these.

For the windup of the day a mile and a sixteenth scramble for the older division is down for decision. Eleven are billed to appear, and there is little to choose between them. Alice, Roseboro and Beau Brummel appear best of the lot and one of them will likely take down the long end of the purse. Ethel Carr has an outside chance to connect with this sort of company. A number of horses will arrive at the Downs this morning from all parts of the country. Among these will be three noted strings which have been racing on the Canadian circuit. J. U. Strode will get in with a bunch of ten. Among these are Lawrence P. Daly and Johnnie Blake, both winners in Canada. George Ham will arrive with a string belonging to Gerst & Holly. In this stable are those sterling performers Hanbridge, Colloquy and the crack 2-year-old Donau. Jim Arthur is coming on the same train with Quagga, Bucket Brigade and other good ones.

* * *

Jockey Jimmie Lee arrived in the city last night from Toronto, and he expects to be one of the best riders at the thirteen-day meeting at the Downs, which begins to-day.

The black boy had a great season in Canada. The most notable race won by him was on Chief Kee. This was a nose finish. Lee came from behind with his mount and beat out Amelia Jenks and Galvesca.

Lee's engagements at the Louisville meeting will be looked after by Benny Jacobs, who has secured mounts for Lee for five years. He says Lee can do 105 pounds and in a pinch can do 103. Jacobs expects this to be one of Lee's banner seasons.

There will be a total of eight machines in the betting ring, three each for straight and show betting and two for place wagers, and as in the spring only $5 tickets will be sold. The auction pool stand will be in operation for big bettors, presided over by John McLaughlin, the Lexington poolseller.

Many more horses reached the grounds from various parts of the country yesterday and now the overflow to Douglas Park has begun, as about all the stables at Churchill Downs are filled nearly to the last stall in the main track enclosure. From the East came the string of Col. W. E. Applegate in charge of Trainer J. J. Flannigan, made up of Calash, Jupiter Joe, Cymbal, Capt. Kennedy, Hugh McGowan and the 2-year-old Gramace. Col. Applegate will have an extensive stable next season, as he now has eighteen yearlings in John Rodegap's home stable at Lexington. Some of the collection he bred, but the others he bought as weanlings at Milton Young's and Ed Corrigan's closing out sales last year. They are the get of Imp. Woolsthorpe, Cesarion, Imp. Scintillant and other fashionable sires, and are all-around a most promising bunch of youngsters, the largest weighing right now close to 1,000 pounds. Col. Applegate thinks the racing situation looks very bright in the East. He says the recent raid, in which a number of bookmakers were arrested at Gravesend, was in accordance with the wishes of the track managers. The men taken in had become too bold in their operations and got out of the limits allowed the memory bookies. The tracks, he says, want to conform to the law closely and will aid the authorities in the prosecution of cases where bookmakers go beyond the limit set in accepting and paying bets. Col. Applegate thinks Sweep is about the best of the Eastern 2-year-olds this season, but he does not rank the youngsters out this year of an extraordinarily high class. He does not think Sweep anywhere near a colt like Colin, and, in fact, in his opinion, in his time, he has seen a street full of 2-year-olds able to show their heels to Keene's Futurity winner of 1909.

Joe Hawkins came in from Lexington with a string of six horses made up of Dainty Dame, My Henry, Lotta Creed, Olivia Michel and two other 2-year-olds, one of which has the peculiar name of To-To-Yo-Yo. He set the railbirds on edge by working Olivia Michel four furlongs in :48 3-5, the fastest performance at the distance seen here this fall.

* * *

Fred Luzador caused the other sensation yesterday, working a maiden 3-year-old a mile in 1:43 3-5, Al Muller, acting as a trial horse for the newcomer the first part of the trip. None of the railbirds could identify the Luzador maiden, and until he is colored on the card just who and what he is will likely not be known.

* * *

Other arrivals from Lexington were W. J. Young, John Rodegap, Cy Hughes, Walter Grater and Lee Paul. The latter brought in Foxy Mary and Peter Pender, while Young came with four, three of which are the well-known performers Stolypin, Solicitor and Bonnie Byrd. Rodegap's ten are all 2-year-olds, as are also Cy Hughes' bunch, in the latter string being Claudia, the much talked of half-sister to Claude. Grater has eight horses here, Topland and four other 2-year-olds and the older performers, Lady Vie, Etheldia and Cambourne. Grater left thirty-two yearlings in his home barn at Lexington, which is the biggest string of youngsters he ever had under his supervision. They are the property of a number of different owners, and in the lot he has several that are very promising, capable even now of quarters in as good as :23.

* * *

Reports are, so the Lexington people say, that E. R. Bradley will send down next week several 2-year-olds that Cliff Hammond has been privately training at Idle Hour farm, and according to rumor they are goods of the winning kind. Bradley is due to arrive in Lexington from the East Sunday and the coming week will be a regular attendant at the local meeting.

* * *

Hughie McCarren brought in ten with his riding horse, which is a pony mule, and Al Steele came along with McCarren, bringing his consistent performer Gilvidear and the 2-year-old, Uncle Tom. McCarren says he is right from the farm, but Steele says where they come from there was very little bluegrass, it was all bushes. Steele thinks if McCarren's horses break him he can train his mule a few tricks and get the money in any show. John McLaughlin says if Hughie will just teach that mule what he knows he will be the smartest mule that ever hit the tanbark. "If I had Hughie's wisdom with his experience I would never sell another pool," is the way McLaughlin puts it. "They might beat me in Wall street with such a combination, but they would surely have to show me." McCarren says his yearlings are doing nicely at Latonia and with several of them he is very much pleased. He looks to have a few stake winners out of this bunch in 1910.

* * *

W. E. Phillips, so successful in former years at Churchill Downs with such stars as George C. Bennett, English Lad, Kercheval, Beautiful Bess and Kurtzman, was at the track yesterday and will remain over to-day, going to Midway, Ky., Sunday in quest of yearlings, as he will be out with a good stable again next season. It was reported at the track that Phillips has bought of E. L. Davis, Rookwood stud, in Woodford county, seven head of yearlings, paying a lump sum of $10,000. The bunch are all colts and by such sires as Imp. Sempronius, Imp. Lissak and Imp. Peep o' Day. Phillips also offered Barney Schreiber $10,000 to let him pick ten yearling colts out of the Missouri turfman's collection now at Woodlawn stud. Schreiber turned down the offer, though at Woodlawn now he has no less than eighty-seven yearlings. The colts Phillips desired Schreiber to sell him are all by either Imp. Sain or Bannockburn. Davis, whose crop of yearlings Phillips is said to have already bought, is the breeder who raised Lawrence P. Daly and Annie L. Daly, both of which good performers the trainer of English Lad picked out and bought as yearlings.

* * *

A mixed lot of twenty head of horses, the property of various owners, came in to Churchill Downs yesterday in five cars from Latonia and belated arrivals from Lexington last night consisted of the strings of W. S. Williams and J. H. Nichols & Co. It was reported on seemingly good authority at the track last night that H. G. Bedwell would leave Canada with his entire string Sunday and come direct here. It is surmised that the selling race war in which Bidwell and the Turney brothers have been the central figures has caused the California owner to change his plan of racing out the fall the season on Canadian soil. Bedwell will be warmly welcomed here, as the coming of his stable means an addition to the local riding colony in the person of the clever jockey, Taplin.

* * *

One performer that worked most satisfactory to his owner yesterday was Will Stuyve's Capt. Galore, he stepping a nice five furlongs something like 1:03, after running a half in 49 1-5 seconds. Rockcastle is another horse that acted exceedingly well on the track, though the son of Dick Welles was not asked by Trainer Kirby to do more than breeze strong.

* * *

A curiosity of the track is the old mare Larkspur, which Trainer W. A. Robinson is working again, after several years' retirement to the stud, during which time she has dropped a foal or two, none of which however lived to reach maturity. It has been some years now since the daughter of Imp. Scorpion won the Montgomery Handicap, in fact she is bordering at present on to the voting age. At that, yesterday she skimmed around the inner rail of the homestretch like she used to in her younger days, but as she neared the stand at the windup of her brisk gallop it was noticed she lacked vim in her finishing powers. Robinson will doubtless be looking for a muddy track when he again sends her to the post and even in her first days such going was her forte. The veteran trainer, a past master in patching up cripples and winning with horses other trainers turn down, thinks there is a good race or two in the old mare yet.

* * *

W. J. Young says reports were somewhat mixed on his purchase of yearlings this season and that to date he has only bought five youngsters, though he is in the market at any time for another promising colt or two. He has also not settled on the winter racing question as yet. He thinks it will be time enough to figure on the next move when the Kentucky racing season ends this fall.

* * *

C. C. Smithson, the Washington turfman, who bid $4,000 for High Private and purchased the Oddfellow horse after a selling race at one mile and a sixteenth at Gravesend, in which he defeated Black Mate and Juggler, says that he does not want to appear mean, but he felt in duty bound to act as he did.

"High Private is not sound, I am told," Mr. Smithson said after Theodore Coles led the Oddfellow horse away, "but he is better than a selling plater. A man with a small stable of platers has no chance to make his establishment pay its way when such as he are run for $2,500 in selling races. Maybe I have saddled myself with a gold brick, but it is my firm conviction that High Private will prove useful to me. He can win handicaps, I believe, but if I find it necessary to run him in selling races I shall always enter him at what I consider a fair valuation and let him pack his weight."

High Private, which won the Oakland Derby last winter, and was rated the second best 3-year-old on the Pacific Slope, cost the Johnsons $3,000 at the Forsythe sale at Sheepshead Bay the other day. The Johnsons have undoubtedly won him out. Twenty-five hundred of the $4,000 Mr. Smithson paid for the gelding went to them, not to mention the winners' end of the purse and two others High Private has won at Gravesend. Besides winning these purses High Private has been unfailingly safe as a medium for speculation, because Andy Blakeley has placed him where he could win.

After stepping the fastest mile and a sixteenth of the Gravesend meeting, High Private returned soundly to the scales. He is at least as good now as he was when Mr. Blakeley took him out of the Forsythe stable. Blakeley has handled High Private with rare skill. There are few better trainers than the popular ex-steeplechase jockey. But it is improbable that the Oddfellow 3-year-old will go back under the training of Theodore Coles.

The big Virginian is an accomplished horseman, and he is particularly good with racers that are supposed to be unsound. Coles' remarkable success with the Watercress sprinter Reliable a few years ago first brought his talents to the notice of metropolitan turf folk. Until he got Reliable Mr. Coles had confined his activities largely to the minor circuits.

* * *

Jacky Joyner will return from England early next month to try out the Whitney yearlings at Brookdale Farm.

Walter Jennings will go to his home in California next week. If the courts declare the anti-racing law passed last winter by the Legislature at Sacramento unconstitutional Mr. Jennings will race at Oakland. If not, he will go to Juarez with his horses.

Frank Regan and Jack McGinnis said that they expected to race at Juarez.

* * *

The Eastern Jockey Club, it is said, will be asked to look into the circumstances attending the claiming of the Clifford—Black Venus 3-year-old Blackford after his defeat by Quantico last Friday in a selling race at one mile and a sixteenth. Blackford was claimed by Edward Hughes, who contends that he is a half owner of the mare Aunt Jule, who ran unplaced in the race in question.

Friday evening Blackford was sold by the Lexington Stable to Dr. S. W. Streett, who had lost his fast Plaudit filly Fulfill to Jule Garson earlier in the week. Blackford is not in Dr. Streett's barn.

It will be contended by the protestants against Hughes' act in claiming Blackford that he (Hughes) had no authority to act for the Lexington Stable.

* * *

Capt. Duhain has his night riders, Thomas and Strobel, the tout and the ex-jockey who "worked" Ostend for Walter House at Sheepshead Bay the night before he was to have started in a race that seemed to be at his mercy, safe in the Raymond-street jail awaiting the action of the Kings county grand jury, says the New York Telegraph.

Strobel and the masterful "Whitey" were committed yesterday by Magistrate Hylan, of the Coney Island Police Court, who heard their case on Monday. It is improbable that they can get bail, although the charge on which they are held in durance vile—grand larceny—is not a capital crime and is accordingly bailable.

SHORTSTOP OYLER HAS NOT REGAINED MEMORY.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—It was said at the Protestant Hospital to-day that Andy Oyler, shortstop of the Minneapolis American Association baseball team, who is confined there as the result of being hit on the head with a pitched ball in Wednesday's double-header, had spent a very good night and that some improvement could be seen in his condition.

Oyler had not regained his memory, however, and was still unable to recognize the faces of friends.

Authorities at the hospital think that as soon as Oyler regains his power of memory he will be able to leave the hospital.

Indians Beat New Haven.

New Haven, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Green's Nebraska Indians defeated New Haven to-day by the score of 6 to 0. The Redmen play in Louisville on Sunday.

LOCAL FOOTBALL SEASON TO OPEN TO-DAY WITH GAME ON MANUAL GROUNDS

THE local football season will be opened to-day when Manual lines up against the strong Ogden College team, of Bowling Green. The games will be called at 3 o'clock on the Manual grounds, corner of Oak and Woodbine streets.

The Reds have been making good progress this week and will be in good shape to put up a fast game against their heavier and more experienced opponents. Ogden is coming to Louisville full of confidence that they will be able to break up the plays of the local lads and run up a big score, but Manual hopes to overcome the great weight of their opponents by speed and trick plays, for which they were famous last fall. The new men continue to show rapid improvement, and the Crimsons will be represented by a fast team this fall.

Manual will lineup as follows:
Center—Hoerter or Ouerbacker.
Right guard—Kirk.
Right tackle—Sullivan or Benedict.
Right end—Paine.
Quarter—Berle or Duncan.
Right halfback—White or Kirn.
Fullback—Miller or McLaughlin.

Hoerter and Ouerbacker are having a great race for center position. Probably Hoerter will be moved out to tackle or end before the season has advanced far.

Crutcher and Kirk will make a great pair of guards. The former's playing has delighted the heart of Chief Gardner.

Paine is showing all his old speed at end, and with Marion Richardson on the other end will make the fans forget the Beutel brothers.

St. Mary's and High School.

The St. Marys College football team will open its season in a game with the Male High School, to be played on the St. Marys field at Lebanon. Football practice has been under way during the last two weeks at St. Marys, and the team is slowly rounding into playing form. The St. Marys team is this year facing the hardest schedule which has ever been played by a team representing the institution. The schedule will be as follows:

September 25—Male High School, at Lebanon.
October 2—Butler College, at Indianapolis.
October 9—Transylvania University, at Lexington.
October 16—Southwestern Presbyterian University, at Clarksville, Tenn.
October 13—McLean College, at Hopkinsville.
October 23—Kentucky Military Institute, at Lebanon.
October 29—Manual Training High School, at Louisville.
November 6—State University, at Lexington.
November 13—Hanover College, at Lebanon.
November 20—Berea College, at Berea.
November 25—Wesleyan University, at Winchester.

FOUR CHOICES FINISH FIRST

Pretty Michael Scores An Easy Victory In Ringwood Steeplechase.

LARGE CROWD SEES SPORT.

Caper Sauce, Heavily-Backed Favorite, Much Best In Race For Canadian-Bred Horses.

JOCKEY BOYLE IS REINSTATED.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Threatening weather had no effect on the crowd at the Woodbine track to-day. The card, while not especially attractive, resulted in keen contests in the majority of the events. Four favorites landed first and the talent had the best of layers that cut in for the day. Jockey Guy Burns carried off the riding honors by piloting Hlacko, Paul Davis and Dixie Knight to victory. Jockey Davenport followed him closely by riding two winners, Woolstone and Caper Sauce.

The track was heavy from the rains of yesterday and the frequent showers during the afternoon made the going exceedingly sticky. The first race furnished a keen contest between Hlacko, the favorite, and Stromeland, both horses coming down the stretch run on even terms and the finish was so close that only the judges were in position to separate them, Hlacko getting the decision by a nose.

Paul Davis made all the running in the second race for 2-year-olds at the three-quarters of a mile. Getting off on his stride he was never seriously menaced and won with plenty in reserve. In the third race, the Hawley purse, Golconda was the choice of the talent and he was heavily supported. Woolstone also had a strong following. Woolstone broke in front as the barrier went up and found the track to his liking and romped home an easy winner. Golconda, from a slow beginning, worked his way through the field but could never get near the winner.

The Novice Seeplechase at a mile and a half went to Dr. Pillow, the second choice. There were only four starters and the favorite, High Hat, took a fall at the first jump and unseated his rider. Dr. Pillow took the lead and was never headed.

Pretty Michael demonstrated her class by taking the Ringwood steeplechase as her rider pleased. John Dillon and Class Leader were the closest in pursuit but could never get near the winner, Pretty Michal winning by ten lengths pulled up.

Caper Sauce, the favorite, was much the best of the bunch of Canadian bred horses that went to the post in the sixth race. The short price laid against his chances was eagerly snapped up by the sure-thing players and he went to the post a heavily backed favorite. Caper Sauce never at any stage of the race gave his backers any unasiness; taking the lead at the first quarter, he drew away in in the run through the stretch to win as his rider pleased.

The seventh race for 2-year-old maidens went to Phil Chinn's Dixie Knight. Everyone on the race track seemed to have a tip on the Chinn maiden and when the prices went up a rush was made to get on. His odds were driven from 4s at the opening to 2s when the horses were called to the post. Burns rode an excellent race on the favorite, making no mistakes and won well in hand from Ibex. Dangerous March came with a rush at the end, but the best he could do was to finish third. Harvey Boyle, the steeplechase jockey who was ruled off three years ago, was reinstated by the Canadian Racing Association to-day at their meeting. Summaries:

UHLAN BREAKS HIS OWN MARK

Great Trotter, Without Windshield, Almost Equals the Track Record.

SPLENDID HARNESS RACING.

Baron May, the Strong Favorite, Disappoints Form Players After Winning First Heat.

DARKY HAL PROVES WINNER.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Trotters furnished most of the racing at the Columbus Grand Circuit meeting this afternoon. Uhlan, without the aid of a windshield, reduced his record to 2:02¾ and came within a quarter of a second of equaling the track record, held by Sweet Marie. The third quarter was the gelding's best, being covered in just half a minute.

In a speculative way the 2:12 trot was the most exciting of the meeting. Baron May was a strong favorite and became almost prohibitive after he won the first heat easily. His refusal to trot in the second heat scoring pushed the field price up above his in a hurry. After the pole was given to Alice Roosevelt, Baron May got started from the outside and went fairly well to the last turn, when he made a wild break and ran home. The judges, however, declined to distance him.

Demarest, that took a record of 2:08¾ in winning this heat, was able to beat off Baron May in the third mile. In the fourth heat Baron May lost his chance with a break at the head of the stretch and this time was distanced for running.

Darky Hal, first choice for the 2:05 pace, won, though she took but the first heat. She seemed to have the second won when Dan S. was lifted out of the ruck, winning by a length. In the third heat Dan S. broke in the stretch. Brenda Yorke and Red Bow both beat out Darky Hal in the final rush.

Paderewski sold at $100 to $40 over the field of 2:07 trotters and won an impressive race. He reduced his record to 2:05¼ in the first heat and made the same time in the third mile, though Wilkes Hearst was not crowding him. Summaries:

FOR TRICKS THAT ARE VAIN

Republican Cry of Honest Elections Is Peculiar.

Can't Keep From Robbing Each Other,

Says Democratic Candidate W. O. Head.

TWO PRIMARIES ARE CITED.

In the aggregate William O. Head, Democratic candidate for Mayor, spoke to 1,400 voters last night. His first speech was made at Seventh and Hill streets in the open air, where 500 people heard him and gave vent to more enthusiasm than has been evidenced at any previous meeting. This crowd was composed of men who work in the railroad yards and in the various factories and the south end of the Eighth and Ninth wards. The meeting was in the open air, and before the speaking began the explosion of fireworks was an attractive feature and was greatly enjoyed by the women and children of the neighborhood as well as the men who were engaged in the pleasure.

At Preston and Brandeis a crowd of over 400 assembled on the grandstand of Straub's baseball park and was addressed by Mr. Head after the Hill-street meeting. There the Democratic candidate for Mayor was enthusiastically received.

When he alighted from a phaeton several women were on the outside of the park awaiting his arrival. One of the women asked if the tall man was Mr. Head, and when she was so informed she rushed up to him and told him she was glad to meet him, as she felt and hoped that he would be elected the next Mayor. After thanking her for the compliment he told her that he felt satisfied that he would win the election. She was introduced later to Mr. Head as one of the good women of the neighborhood who was interested in labor for the husbands and sons in Louisville at living wages.

Thinking About Imported Negroes.

The meeting at Straub's baseball park was held under the auspices of the Get-in-the-Push Democratic Club, of which J. C. Straub is president, and is in a Republican precinct of the Fifth ward. President Straub said last night that the precinct went over a hundred for Grinstead two years ago, but the reverse would be shown in the coming November election. Many of the voters are German-Americans, and they do not like the idea of imported negroes supplanting white people in city work and when W. O. Head touched on the negro question both men and women lifted in their seats and shook the stand with cheering and stamping. One man in his great enthusiasm exclaimed:

"Go on, Mr. Head, and give it to them. We believe in a white man's city being governed by white officials elected by white men's votes. We are with you in this campaign, because you have raised an issue that is too serious to be treated lightly."

Mr. Head had not proceeded far again before someone else yelled out:

"Let Judge Vaughan take his negroes and hold a little court of his own. We don't want them."

Mr. Head was late in arriving at his third place of speaking, that is, at the meeting held under the auspices of the Democrats of the Eleventh precinct of the First ward at the head of Jefferson street. A long list of speakers had been exhausted and many of the crowd who assembled early in the night still remained to hear Mr. Head. It was estimated that at one time there were nearly 700 people on the street, but not over 500 were in the crowd when Mr. Head arrived amid cheers and shouts of:

"Here comes the next Mayor of Louisville." "Hurrah for Head."

* * *

Enthusiastic Up Town.

The meeting was presided over by William Graves, and before Mr. Head spoke John Letterle, Harry W. Robinson, James Ramsey, C. W. Milliken, John R. Pflanz, A. M. Emler, E. H. Neuman and Jordan Owens addressed the crowd. Mr. Head drew the fire from his listeners, although they had been standing for over two hours before he arrived. Just above the place Judge Nick Vaughan entertained about seventy-five negroes in a hall. Even when they passed down the street the Democrats scarcely knew that they were passing. Mr. Head held the crowd for nearly an hour and all through his speech he was cheered vociferously.

Mr. Head arrived at Seventh and Hill streets about 7:30 o'clock and spent a half hour shaking hands with voters in the crowd. Shortly before 8 o'clock W. P. McDonald called the meeting to order. The managers of the meeting were Gus Byers and M. J. Sullivan. After talking of what a great city Louisville is and that he wanted to see it become still greater, realizing that he was addressing a large crowd of voters who were employed in factories, Mr. Head said:

Mr. Head's Ambition.

"I have an ambition to be Mayor of this splendid city of Louisville. Many are saying that I do not say what I will do when I get to be Mayor, and you can bet your life that I will get there, too, but I say that I will encourage all business interests calculated to make a great city. I want plenty of factories. I want to invite people here who will make permanent and good citizens, but we don't want the transient people that are being brought here under the present Administration. We want to employ laborers at living wages and not starvation wages.

* * *

Two Infamous Primaries.

"Mayor Grinstead in his labored defense of his Administration at Hopkins Theater last night said that he was for fair elections. If he is for fair elections why don't he stop this wholesale importation and colonization of disreputable negroes to this city? Under his Administration the Republicans have pulled off two infamous primary conventions, as they term them.

The April 25 primary of last year was notorious for its thefts and high-handed methods, though among Republicans. If they steal from one another, what will they do when they get a chance at the Democrats? Remember the "fusion honest election" champions that put Mr. Grinstead in office are not fighting his battles now.

"Look what the Grinstead or Republican machine did for George Weissinger Smith at the last primary election. Did they give him a chance? Not so anybody can notice it. They ran rough shod over him. Do you think that a gang who are not honest among themselves can be honest with others? You know they cannot. The people are with us in this election and the Republicans can't get it unless they steal it and we will be there when they do it. Grinstead talks about giving us fair elections. Most of the Republican gang of officeholders want to win at all hazards.

"In fact they do not care how they win. Remember, this election machinery is in the hands of Republicans, most of whom have been Federal officeholders, and not in the hands of patriotic Fusionists, or whatever you may choose to call them. Do not be alarmed. Just sit steady in the boat and vote the Democratic ticket and we will win."

BROUGHT BACK HOME

COUNCILMAN VOGLER TAKEN TO CITY HOSPITAL RAVING.

So Violent It Was Necessary To Strap Him To a Cot—No Diagnosis Yet.

Councilman C. Fred Vogler arrived here over the Louisville and Nashville at 9 o'clock last night. He was accompanied from Cincinnati by his wife, Councilman John Bartman, Jr., and Detectives Starks and Helmerdinger, of the Louisville police department. He was taken to the city hospital in the ambulance, where he was attended by Dr. Edgar Austin.

Councilman John Bartman, Jr., stated last evening that he and the two policemen went to Cincinnati to accompany Mr. Vogler back to Louisville. He said that his colleague in the lower board here was in the city hospital at Cincinnati in a desperate condition when he arrived. He was unable to say what caused Mr. Vogler's present illness.

On arriving in Louisville Mrs. Vogler was persuaded to leave the train in South Louisville. She went to the home of her father and mother in stead of her own home at 809 South Shelby street. The two policemen and Councilman Bartman continued with Mr. Vogler to the Tenth-street station.

Immediately on arriving at the station Mr. Bartman telephoned to the city hospital for the ambulance. It arrived in a few minutes and Mr. Vogler, who was strapped tightly to a cot, was hurried away. Mr. Bartman and the two policemen boarded a street car and arrived at the hospital ahead of the ambulance.

Dr. Oscar C. Dilly, in charge at the city hospital, stated last night that Mr. Vogler is violent and raving. He would attribute no cause of the Councilman's illness. He said that Mr. Vogler will have to be kept under observation for two or three days before this can be determined.

Last Sunday Councilman Vogler was arrested in Cincinnati after [illegible] James Fennessey, manager of a number of theaters there. Councilman Vogler's case has been continued until next Tuesday. It is believed that it will not be pushed.

CLASH BETWEEN STATE AND FEDERAL OFFICIALS.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—The clash between the State and Federal authorities, growing out of the trouble over the collection of internal revenue taxes in Dade county, came to a climax today in the arrest of H. A. Rucker, collector of internal revenue at Atlanta. Rucker was served with a warrant of arrest for contempt of the Superior Court of Georgia by Sheriff Thurman, of Dade county, but was later liberated on a bond of $1,000.

At the same time he was ordered to produce Rucker, Sheriff Thurman was given another writ ordering him to produce Charles E. Slegall, Government storekeeper and gauger, who had refused to answer questions in court on the advice of Collector Rucker.

Under the internal revenue laws of the United States it is claimed by the Federal officers, any official giving the information requested by the State Judge is liable to forfeiture of position, a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year.

The existence of a storekeeper and gauger in a community is considered by some State officials as a virtual admission of licensed distillers in the State of Georgia, contrary to the State laws.

LINK TO EAST

Through Trains From Frankfort To Beattyville.

PLANS FOR OPENING OF THE LINE MARCH 1.

WORK ON HIGHLAND EXTENSION TO BEGIN SOON.

HACK LINE TO CAPITOL.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Through trains from Beattyville to Frankfort will be running by March 1 if the present plans of the Louisville and Nashville railroad are carried out. One of the highest officials of the road is authority for the statement.

Work on the extension of the Kentucky Highland railroad, recently purchased by the Louisville and Nashville railroad, will begin within thirty days at Versailles and at the present terminus seven miles from Versailles. This work will be pushed rapidly and in a few months the track will be laid over the seven miles. By March 1 the Highland will extend from Versailles to Frankfort. At Versailles the Louisville and Nashville, through the Highland extension, will connect with the Louisville and Atlantic, the railroad which the Louisville and Nashville bought several months ago. This line extends into the mountain coal fields, going now to Beattyville, which is the terminus, but it is believed the Louisville and Nashville expects to extend this line much further so as to reach coal fields which have not been touched.

* * *

Means Much To Louisville.

When the Louisville and Atlantic, or the Louisville and Nashville, reaches Frankfort it will have connections with the Louisville and Nashville line from Lexington to Louisville, and it is not improbable that through trains will be running from Louisville to Beattyville by way of Frankfort. This means increased business opportunities for Louisville, and that city will then have direct connection with a rich coal and timber country.

The extension of the Louisville and Atlantic to Frankfort will add greatly to the value of property in the Capital.

* * *

Hack Line To Capitol.

Unless the Lexington and Interurban railroad extends its lines in Frankfort around the new Capitol, as the members of the Capitol Commission and citizens generally want them to do, a carriage line, to carry passengers to and from the new Capitol and South Frankfort, will be put in operation within a short time. The money has been subscribed.

Officials of the company have refused to extend their line around behind the Capitol, as members of the Capitol Commission want them to do, and want to run in front of the Capitol, across the lawn, and even then will be a distance of one block from the building. The extension behind the Capitol would go close to both the east and west entrances of the Capitol and would not be far from the main entrance.

A conference was to have been held between the State officials and John B. McAfee, president of the local street car company, several days ago, but Mr. McAfee has not been to Frankfort, and it is not known when he will be here. The conference was to have determined whether or not the street car line would be extended back of the Capitol.

* * *

Came To Study Capitol.

To get pointers on the construction of a State Capitol, so that he will be in a position to know something about what a handsome Capitol should be, Stuart F. Reed, Secretary of State of West Virginia, was in Frankfort Friday. He stopped over here on his way to his home in Charleston after attending the International Tax Conference at Louisville. Mr. Reed was greatly impressed by the beauty of the Capitol and thought it was one of the handsomest buildings he had ever seen. Mr. Reed is a newspaper man and was president of the West Virginia Press Association for three terms.

* * *

Will Sue Instead of Talking.

Instead of giving any opinion or doing any talking, Judge James Breathitt, Attorney General, will file suit to prevent the Louisville and Nashville railroad from acquiring the Louisville and Atlantic railroad, should he decide that the purchase of the Louisville and Atlantic is illegal. Judge Breathitt has not made up his mind on the subject. When the Louisville and Nashville bought the Louisville and Atlantic Richmond citizens protested that the sale was illegal and Gov. Willson referred the question to Judge Breathitt.

* * *

Prof. Crabbe Not Moved.

On account of changes that were necessary in his bookcases and filing cases Prof. J. G. Crabbe, Superintendent of Public Instruction, has not moved his office from the old to the new Capitol. He will not move for a week or more.

* * *

Mrs. Hargis In Frankfort.

Mrs. James Hargis, of Breathitt county, and her daughter, Mrs. Hogg, of Jackson, were in Frankfort to-day on business connected with the case of Beach Hargis. The case on appeal from the sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of Judge Hargis will come up for oral argument before the Court of Appeals September 29.

* * *

Court of Appeals.

The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the twenty-one-year sentence given Skelt Collett, of Bell county, for the murder of Than Bingham.

The case of James Lane against the Commonwealth from Estill county was reversed with directions to dismiss the indictment against him. The indictment was on the charge of houseburning. The court here says there is no semblance of real evidence that Lane had anything to do with the burning of the houses and says the lower court should have dismissed the indictment.

The case of city of Madisonville against George Stewart was affirmed. Stewart having recovered judgment for $250 for injury to his leg by falling into a hole in the street.

The case of Mrs. Minerva N. Jones against the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company was reversed for a new trial. Mrs. Jones claims a lien of $600 on a crop of tobacco raised by a tenant on her land and which she alleges was sold to the warehouse company without her knowledge.

Not Guilty Mrs. McAvoy's Plea.

Burlington, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. Edith F. McAvoy, arrested one week ago on the charge of burning the home of John Ransler, at Richwood, was arraigned here to-day. She entered a plea of not guilty. The case was then continued until next Friday

TRIBUTE TO DEAD

Memorial Services In Lexington Cemetery.

CLOSING DAY OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH CELEBRATION.

WOMEN HOSTS AT A BASKET LUNCHEON.

DELEGATES TO RETURN HOME.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24.—(Special.)—This was the closing day of the centennial convention of the Christian Church of Kentucky, and all business having been disposed of at the preceding sessions, the services to-day were devoted exclusively to the centennial celebration.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning nearly 1,000 people assembled at the Lexington cemetery to attend the memorial services at the graves of "Racoon" John Smith and John T. Johnson, and to pay tribute to other great leaders of the church who are buried there. The platform from which the services were held was placed between the graves of Smith and Johnson, which are near each other. After the song "Nearer My God to Thee" had been sung by the audience and a prayer offered by the Rev. W. S. Giltner, of Covington, President J. W. McGarvey, of the Bible College, delivered a memorial address.

Services At Smith Monument.

The speaker faced, during his remarks, the monument of Smith, a plain square shaft, on which is the following inscription:

"In memory of John Smith, an elder of the Church of Christ, born October 15, 1784, died February 29, 1868.

"True, genial and pious, the good loved and all respected him.

"Strong through affliction and wise by the study of God's word, he gave up the creed of his fathers for the sake of that word.

"By its power he turned many from error; in its light he walked; and in its consolations he triumphantly died.

"In his sacrifice and service, his companion shared; she gave her life to God, and her death was precious in his sight.

"Nancy Smith, born November 15, 1792, died November 4, 1861."

Tributes to Johnson, the learned and earnest minister, to Smith, not less earnest, and who, jovial by nature, lightened many a dark place with a happy joke and yet never lost sight of the seriousness of the cause, were paid by the speaker.

Thomas Smith, also able and active, an humble, faithful, Godly man, and who baptized the speaker's father at Hopkinsville when the speaker was a boy, was the next to be mentioned.

Richard C. Rickets, of Maysville, and later of Midway, was the next in order to whom a tribuate was paid.

Robert Milligan came next in the list—"The best man who ever lived and died in Lexington," the speaker classed him. His power was that of a man of a Godly life and a deep and anxious solicitude for the welfare of his pupils and in educational work was his forte.

Dr. L. L. Pinkerton was the next mentioned.

The next was Moses E. Lard, "of commanding appearance, mellow voice, piercing eye and an able minister," and one who never hesitated to use again a sermon on which he had spent much time and which had a message he thought the people had not yet fully gotten.

Robert Graham was the last mentioned. He was a preacher for more than fifty years and was always instructive and was greatly respected by all and was a most unselfish character and a man of the highest type and the utmost integrity.

President McGarvey closed his address with the instruction "visit these graves not to shed tears on them, but to rejoice that we have had such great men as our leaders."

* * *

Graves Visited.

At the conclusion of the exercises the audience broke up into groups and was conducted to the graves of Robert Milligan, Dr. L. L. Pinkerton, Robert Graham, John I. Rogers, Richard C. Picketts and J. B. Bowman.

The centennial exercises at the Auditorium began at 10:30 o'clock with the Rev. Carey E. Morgan, of Paris, presiding. The Rev. John S. Shouse, of this city, conducted the devotional exercises, and in the prayer which he offered said that the names of Johnson, Smith, Pinkerton, Pickets, Gano and others remain among us and are still represented in the ministry. He pleaded that their names remain blessed. After a song service the Rev. Horace Kingsbury, of Harrodsburg, led the audience in prayer. The audience then sang "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds," and the Rev. Mr. Morgan introduced the Rev. George H. Coombs, of the Independence Boulevard church of Kansas City, who delivered the address of the morning.

* * *

The Rev. Mr. Coombs' Address.

Mr. Coombs said that it was impossible for Charles Reign Scoville, who had been expected to speak, to attend on account of most important financial church matters which demanded his attention. The Rev. Mr. Coombs took as his subject "The Great Man," naming among the others the name of Alexander Campbell, who, as so many others of the great men, was not truly appreciated and understood until he was dead. He spoke of his birth, his education, his work. His patience, his devotion, his scholarship were touched upon. He pictured the great Christian leader as one of the old school who preferred to know something about everything other than everything about something. He was rather classic than scientific, but an ideal for young students and preachers to follow. All of the fine, noble, striking characteristics of Alexander Campbell were brought out and he was said to have been unequaled as a debater by anyone. He loved debate. He did not carry a stick, but he did a rapier. He could cut an opponent's head off, so to speak, before the victim realized it, and sometimes the opponent did not know it was cut off after it had been done.

"He would have no Campbellites; he would have no Christ men free," said he.

He said the so-called Campbellites were not "reformers," as they were called. Mr. Campbell did not want to reform anything. He did not teach that anything should be reformed. He pleaded only for a "restoration" of the Christian Church—a restoration of the plain teachings of the Bible. He preached against the disunion of Christians. He believed such disunion was sin. He did not want his followers to be so-called Campbellites or Lutherans, but Christians.

He said there are many Van Winkles in the church who must some day wake up. They mistake the voice of their snore for a pious defense of their position, no matter what that position may be.

"The man," said he, "who puts himself in the way of Christian unity thereby advertises his essential mental provincialism. He is an ecclesiastical Rip Van Winkle."

* * *

Descendants of Pioneers.

Before the services began H. W. Elliott, State evangelist, read a list of sons and daughters of pioneers of the Christian Church in Kentucky whom he moved should be invited to occupy seats upon the speaker's stand. The motion was adopted by acclamation and a large number of those came forward and took their seats upon the platform. Among the list of those to whom the invitation was extended were the following:

Mrs. L. E. Stephens, Hickman, Ky., baptized by John T. Johnson; Silas A. Yelton, Butler, Ky., of Flower Creek church, oldest member in Kentucky; William Tharp Middletown, Ky., evangelist in the forties; Allen May, White Oak, Morgan county, Ky., charter member of church organized by John T. Johnson in the forties; John M. Tinsley, of Barbourville, Ky., church organized by John T. Johnson when evangelist of board; his mother charter member, John M. Wasson, Versailles, Ky.; grand-daughters of John T. Johnson, Mrs. C. P. Williamson, Clarence Williamson and son, Mrs. Payne and Miss Johnson, members of Woodland Park church; Barton Stone Rogers, Carlisle, Ky., son of John Rogers; Mrs. Farrar, Princeton, Ky.; Miss Dee Rogers, Lexington, Ky., daughter of John Rogers; Mrs. Lucinda Boyd, Cynthiana, Ky., daughter of Samuel Rogers; R. M. Campbell, Danville, Ky., grandson of Alexander Campbell; Mrs. B. C. Hagerman, Lexington, Ky., grand-daughter of Alexander Campbell; Howard Neal Thompson, Richmond, Ky., grandson of Alexander Campbell; Mrs. Nannie Cardwell, Louisville, Ky., daughter of H. T. Anderson; Mrs. J. A. Lyons, Louisville, Ky., First church, acquainted with pioneers; Thad S. Tinsley, Louisville, Ky., Third church, descended from pioneer preacher; M. F. McCoy, Little, Ky., grandson of Brother McCoy, of Greenup county, pioneer preacher, and daughter of same preacher is Mrs. Ella N. Ruggles, Little, Ky.; Mrs. M. M. Brent, daughter of Barton W. Stone; W. F. Rogers, son of John I. Rogers, grandson of Samuel Rogers; B. J. Pinkerton, son of Dr. L. L. Pinkerton; Mrs. A. W. Walden and Mrs. Nesbit, Owingsville, grand-daughters of Raccoon John Smith; Mrs. Sam Clay, Lexington; L. W. Whaley, Cynthiana; Jonas Myall, Mayslick, a veteran; Richard Davenport, Midway; Mrs. R. W. Roach, Louisville, a veteran.

After those invited to the platform had been received with hand clapping and cheers from the audience and had been seated C. K. Marshall addressed a few remarks to the audience, expressing his appreciation of the fellowship existing at the meetings.

R. M. Hopkins read telegrams from the Methodist conferences in session at Paris and Maysville sending greetings and wishing them Godspeed.

Memorial services will be held at various places in the State on next Sunday afternoon at the graves of various pioneers in the church.

"God Be With You Till We Meet Again" was sung as the parting song and the convention adjourned sine die.

Basket Luncheon Served.

After the exercises the delegates were escorted to Gratz Park, where a big basket luncheon had been spread on tables by the women of the Lexington churches. When the luncheon, which was attended by probably more than a thousand people, was over, the members of the big assembly who had been here for a week began to give their parting greetings and the centennial convention was at an end.

FALSE FIGURES SHOW LOSS TO A. M. E. ZION

BISHOP CALDWELL CORRECTS AN ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION.

TELLS OF CENSUS MISTAKE AT LARGE COLORED CONFERENCE.

APPOINTMENTS FOR SUNDAY.

The third day's session of the forty-fourth annual A. M. E. Zion Conference convened yesterday at the Thirteenth-street and Broadway church, with Bishop J. C. Caldwell presiding. During the session the bishop told his ministers that the denomination had fallen to the fourth place in the numerical rank of other negro denominations. This, he said, was due to the inaccurate reports of the various ministers when the census was taken. He declared that the membership of the A. M. E. Zion Church had been cut down too much, and only the actual working members were counted, instead of all that were on the roll.

At 11 o'clock yesterday the conference got down to business and began hearing reports from the presiding elders. Dr. I. B. Selectman, of the Madisonville district, which has twelve churches raised $8,155.28, reported $60,500 and 950 members. Dr. W. C. Hayes, Louisville district, reported $6,631.28 money raised, $22,650 value of church property, fourteen churches, and 118 baptized. Dr. J. H. Gough, of the Russellville district, reported $3,560.38, church property worth $13,890, and membership 882, with eleven churches. Dr. W. Dorsey, of the Cincinnati district, the largest in the conference, has $70,000 worth of church property, membership in the district 1,500, and raised $6,350. The reports of the presiding elders were placed in the hands of Prof. H. C. Wheeden, statistician, who will make a final report on Sunday.

Bishop George W. Clinton delivered his farewell address at the morning session. During the afternoon reports were heard from the four districts in which there are missionary societies and buds of promise organizations. Mary V. Washington, Lizzie Evans, Sadie Folks and A. C. Tucker and others spoke of the work being done for missionary work in Africa and at home. Prof. A. E. Meyzeek, principal of the Eastern Colored School, was introduced by Bishop Caldwell, and told in a graphic manner the workings of the colored public school system.

Last evening the Woman's Missionary Society, under the direction of Mary V. Washington, met. Devotional services were led by Emma Steele and Lula Austin. The address of the evening was delivered by Bessie Johnson, of the Thirteenth-street and Broadway church. Alice Tucker, of Livingston College, Salsbury, N. C., and Emma Clemett, of Charlotte, N. C., were among the principal speakers. Amanda Coblee, of Henderson, Ky.; Fannie Wallace, of Louisville, and Ella Caldwell, of North Carolina, took part in the programme, which was pleasing and entertaining.

Visiting delegates will preach at the following churches to-morrow:

OUTLOOK GOOD

Business Situation Continues To Improve.

MOVEMENT IN IRON AND STEEL IS TREMENDOUS.

CONSERVATIVE BUYING RULES DRY GOODS MARKET.

FOOTWEAR IS LOOKING UP.

New York, Sept. 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade to-morrow will say:

"While there are a few bad or uncertain spots in the business situation, they are not sufficient to change the general cheerful, and in some respects, brilliant outlook. The movement in iron and steel is so tremendous, reaching at some points to practically full capacity and resulting in instances of premiums paid for prompt delivery, that the only doubt cast upon it by anybody is that the pace may be too fast. The reports in the principal cities and especially the eloquent statistics of rapidly expanding building operations confirm these figures. The foreign trade is unsatisfactory in view of the decreased exports and increased imports, but it should not be overlooked that the former is the result in part of the more rapid advance in prices here than abroad, while the big imports testify to the increased spending capacity of our people.

* * *

Dry Goods Market.

"In the primary dry goods markets conservative buying is the rule in most lines, and jobbers look for only a filling-in trade, apparently having enough staple merchandise on hand or under order to meet current needs. Fall retail trade in the large centers is developing normally and many cities report considerable gains over 1906. Many manufacturers of cotton goods are considering curtailment of production to aid in restoring the balance between cotton and cloth prices, and to provide against the dangers of piling up stocks in the primary markets. An advance of one-eighth of a cent a yard in regular print cloths, accompanied by substantial purchases, a fair sale of drills to India, further voluntary curtailment in yarn and coarse cotton cloth mills, were the features in cotton goods.

* * *

Hides Show Advances.

"More New England shoe manufacturers have been operating in leather this week and the volume of business is quite large, though made up of small quantities. Manufacturers are receiving more orders for footwear and prospects are improving, though the deadlock between buyer and seller regarding values continues a disturbing factor. Prices on hides show further firmness and advances have already been scored on certain varieties."

TRADE FAVORABLE.

Good Demand Noted In All the Staple Lines.

New York, Sept. 24.—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say:

Trade continues of favorable proportions, demands for all staple lines being noteworthy features, though there is a tone of conservatism in many reports. Shipments are heavy and in many instances buyers are requesting prompt deliveries. Business on spring account is also of good volume.

Retail trade is getting into better shape at many centers, but warm weather has retarded its fullest development. Commodity prices both for raw materials and edibles are generally very firm, and the high prices that manufacturers have to pay for such raw products as cotton and wool, together with a certain degree of unsettlement resulting therefrom, make them quite careful about booking future orders.

Iron and Steel Active.

Incidentally, buyers are chary about following the upward trend. Industrial lines, led by iron and steel, are still increasing outputs, and activity is at or approaching normal. Therefore skilled workmen find it easier to obtain employment. In turn, enlarged payrolls make for better distributive trade.

* * *

Pig Iron In Demand.

Steel-making pig irons have been bought freely, especially in the Central West, and in Eastern Pennsylvania, where buying of basic pig has been heavy, requirements do not appear to have been covered. Foundry iron also shares to a considerable extent in this week's activity, a heavy demand having come from makers of machinery and cast iron pipe. Prices are higher all around.

Financial and Commercial

MONETARY.

Friday Evening, Sept. 24.—The New York stock market continued to be irregular, with a tendency to lower prices. Call money was a bit firmer, with 2¾ the ruling rate and quotations ranging from 2½ to 3 per cent. Time loans were distinctly soft at 3½ to 3¾ for sixty days and 4 to 4¼ for six months. In the local market there was some evidence of investment money coming out and this was regarded as a favorable indication.

The report of the Clearing-house to-day was as follows:

Day's clearing	$1,426,154
Balance	175,780

Money rates remained unchanged at 5 and 6 per cent. Business was good. Neither session of the Stock Exchange developed any great activity to-day, but there was a decided better tone to the dealings. It was noticeable that some investment money was being put into the market, and while it sought concessions in prices as a rule, it was reassuring to many. The sales were at unchanged prices.

†Less than $1,000 bond or ten shares stocks. Interest is to be added to all bond quotations.

The detailed showing of East St. Louis and Suburban for August was received here yesterday and is much more favorable than preceding months. The gross earnings were $177,210, showing an increase of $2,836. Operating expenses were $50,954, showing a decrease over July of $150. Net earnings were $2,980, which, in view of previous months, shows a distinct step forward. Owners of the property are confident it will show substantial improvement for the rest of the year. The big coal business, which is the main source of earnings, has been at a low ebb, but is steadily improving, and this should mean big things for earnings.

Tri-City's showing for August reveals gross earnings of $1,969,303, with a net profit of $179,196. There was the splendid increase in net earnings of 24.59 per cent. A great deal of this stock is held in Louisville and the August showing is gratifying.

Climatic disturbances always introduce an enigmatical factor into the course of values of staple products in the season of their production, says the Wall Street Journal. The gulf storm which swept the coast of the cotton States at the beginning of the week between New Orleans and Mobile was no exception. The danger, however, is that the effect of this influence may be considerably overestimated in putting up the price of cotton, which prior to that event had stood at a level that was extraordinary for the first month of the cotton year. Thirteen-cent cotton for September is a phenomenon of significant portent to the commercial and industrial world generally and especially to the United States.

It is expected in conservative and well-informed quarters that the Pennsylvania dividend will be restored to the old 7 per cent. basis at the regular dividend meeting in November.

At the same time there is good reason to expect the announcement of an issue of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 new stock carrying liberal rights for stockholders and also, in certain contingencies, rights to the holders of convertible 3½ per cent. bonds of 1912 and 1915.

Pennsylvania does not need money and it can be said authoritatively that the great expenditures on the road are practically completed. The programme laid out by the late Mr. Cassatt, of which the new terminal was so important a part, will be out of the way by the middle of next year, except for some relatively minor details.

The new financing is rendered necessary by the $60,000,000 three-year 5 per cent. notes which fall due March 15, 1910, and the $19,997,820 general mortgage 6 per cent. bonds which must be refunded also on their maturity, July 1, 1910.

The more important extensions of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific which have been decided upon when completed will add 2,065 miles of line to these systems, and will have cost $100,000,000.

There are strong rumors here that a receivership for the Chicago Subway is pending and that Armour has been selling his holdings lately in anticipation of the dumping on the market of the Harriman shares. Mr. Armour pointedly refuses to make any statement on the situation.

The company has 2,500 cars and 126 motor engines, while the new equipment recently ordered should begin arriving within the next sixty days. Railroad officials are at a loss to explain why the additional rolling stock is necessary, inasmuch as each car could average four trips a day or a total of 10,000 cars, against the present daily average of 3,000. Of the ninety connections of the subway fifty-seven are inbound and outbound railroad connections, joining all local roads.

Earnings as reported to the city for taxation purposes were $311,996 in 1908, $249,319 in 1907, $221,176 in 1906 and $108,309 in 1905.—Wall Street Journal.

MARKET LETTERS.

New York.—With the exchange closed until Monday and no special incentive to increase commitments activity in the market was at a low ebb to-day. In the face of the fullness fair advances are recorded in a number of instances. The big people continue to pick up stocks on the concessions and this in itself looks well for the market. The principal topic of interest in financial circles is the coming quarterly statement of the United States Steel Corporation. Present indication points to one of the best reports in the company's history. The unlimited accumulation of the common stock bears out these rumors and from the reported business in sight it is quite probable a 5 per cent. dividend rate will be made before long. We do not regard the present range of values too high when we take into consideration the prosperous outlook before us. Would buy stocks on all recessions, and hold for good advance.—(S. B. Chapin & Co. to S. C. Henning.

New York.—Owing to holidays we had a traders market. The close was steady and we look for a higher opening Monday.—(Kelley, Howell & Co. to Almstedt Bros.

New York.—The early trading had a strong tone, but it was the same old story within an hour, namely, irregularity set in and some stocks went lower than they had gone the previous day. London sold about 15,000 shares, chiefly Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Steel. The trading this afternoon was undoubtedly restricted by the double holiday ahead. The market, as we see it, is now a two-sided affair. Such stocks as have been distributed, we think, should be sold on the strong spots, while the others that are comparatively well held, might be bought into when the market is weak.—(Miller & Co. to John L. Dunlap.

New York.—The past seven days have been much quieter and freer from incident than any similar period that has preceded it for a long time. In our last week's letter we spoke of the low reserve held by our banks and expressed the belief that the trust companies were in a position to be free lenders and thus help to restore the reserves. Such proved to be the case when last Saturday's bank statement was published, showing as it did a surprisingly large shifting of loans to both Europe and our local trust companies, the result being a gain in bank reserves of approximately $9,000,000—certainly a very satisfactory showing at this time of year. In spite of this, money has not shown any decided weakening tendency, rates holding sharp at 4½ per cent. for all periods over the new year. It looks as if from now on money would be a very important factor in our situation and as the general prosperity of the country increases and thus creates a more active demand for capital, it is bound to be more and more so.—(Post & Flagg to John W. & D. S. Green.

The Financial Bureau says: "We understand some inside buying has been going on in Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The buying yesterday included trading for inside interests who bought a block of stock and it is said they are accumulating the stock preparatory to giving it a 'boost.' The earnings of Brooklyn are good and increasing and it is said that the stock will soon be placed on 5 per cent. dividend basis. The market closes irregular, traders evening up over the holiday. We look for higher prices Monday and advise buying on all reactions."—(E. & B. to Central Grain and Stock Exchange.

STOCK MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 24.—Money on call firm, 2¾@3 per cent.; ruling rate 2¾; closing bid 2¾; offered at 3. Time loans soft and very dull; sixty days 3¼@3¾ per cent.; ninety days 3¾ per cent.; six months 4@4¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4½@5 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8425@4.8435 for sixty-day bills and at $4.8610 for demand. Commercial bills $4.83¾@4.84. Bar silver 51⅜c. Mexican dollars 43c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds heavy.

Trading in stocks fell to a low ebb to-day. During the afternoon the condition became actually stagnant. The decision of the Stock Exchange authorities to close the exchange to-morrow in observance of the Hudson-Fulton celebration was partly responsible for this. There was some diversion of speculation into the cotton market, where the booming tide of the demand brought the condition into resemblance with the great speculative episodes of the past in that medium. There was a large participation in this activity by the usual frequenters of the stock market and the volume of business there suffered accordingly. The dullness of the trading left little motive power in the price movement and its wavering course could not fairly be accepted as a reliable index of any opinions on values. There was less urgency in the selling that was done and it was not pushed at the expense of values. The relief from selling pressure seemed to offer small attraction, however, for any attempt to resume the operations for an advance. The intervening holiday would act as a bar to such an inclination. The growing money market also is kept in view.

Preliminary estimates of the week's currency movement point to a small gain by the banks from the interior, but smaller than last week and with the tide of the outward movement from this center rising. The loss of the banks from Subtreasury operations of $3,952,000 has been reduced, apparently, by a few hundred thousand dollars by reason of the receipts from the interior. There was a slight lowering of the private discount rate in London to-day which indicates some relaxation of pressure there. Advices from abroad represent a wide-spread and increasing demand for money at all the great centers and a desire to discourage further American borrowing for supposed speculative purposes.

There were a few happenings during the day which brought a response in individual stocks affected. Such was the discontinuance of the suit to prevent the merging of the United States and the Central Leather companies and the taking of the necessary action by the stockholders of the two companies to perfect the merger. Central Leather advanced in face of a general decline then in progress.

The action of the New York, New Haven and Hartford authorities in proposing an issue of $40,000,000 of new stock was of small effect on the market, although it is assumed that subscription rights of value will be involved. The reception of this announcement is in contrast with the speculative turmoil which has accompanied vague rumors of intended similar action by other companies; rumors thus far without confirmation.

The feature of the meager dealings in the stock market was the number of enormous individual transactions in Reading, and, to some extent, in United States Steel. The persistence with which Reading was pushed for sale on the advances and forced back has much to do with the vacillating tendency of the whole list. When the pressure on Reading subsided a tendency of prices to rise moderately came into notice. United States Steel and the Pacifics showed some strength. St. Louis Southwestern was a feature of strength, in spite of the anxiety regarding the cotton crop which the rise in the price of that commodity suggested. The final drive against Reading determined the closing tone of the market.

Bonds were heavy. Total sales (par value) $2,594,000. United States bonds are unchanged on call from last week.

FOREIGN FINANCIAL.

London, Sept. 24.—Money was plentiful on the market to-day and discounts were easy in sympathy. With the settlement commencing business on the Stock Exchange was moderate and prices generally were easier. Consols and home rails lacked support. Copper shares weakened with Americans, but Kaffirs, Diamond shares and foreigners were firm and dearer. During the forenoon business in American securities was light, with moderate fluctuations. Prices at noon ranged from ⅛ point higher to ¼ lower than yesterday's New York closing. The belief that dearer money in New York would induce liquidation caused offerings here. New York sent support in the afternoon, especially of United States Steel, but the market sagged and the close was uncertain. Close: Consols for money and account 83; Amalgamated Copper 85¼; Anaconda 10¼; Atchison 121⅛; do preferred 107½; Baltimore and Ohio 120½; Canadian Pacific 187¾; Chesapeake and Ohio 85¼; Chicago Great Western 16½; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul 164½; De Beers 18⅝; Denver and Rio Grande 48¼; do preferred 88; Erie 35½; do first preferred 53¼; do second do 43½; Grand Trunk 24⅝; Illinois Central 156½; Louisville and Nashville 156½; Missouri, Kansas and Texas 42; New York Central 139⅝; Norfolk and Western 96½; do preferred 93; Ontario and Western 50⅝; Pennsylvania 75½; Rand Mines 9⅝; Reading 85½; Southern Railway 31½; do preferred 71½; Southern Pacific 132⅞; Union Pacific 208¼; do preferred 108½; United States Steel 86⅝; do preferred 132; Wabash 20½; do preferred 51½; Spanish 4s 95⅝. COTTON MARKETS.

New York, Sept. 24.—The cotton market continued sensationally active to-day, with business suggesting that Western bulls and outsiders were taking the market away from original bull leaders and with prices selling into new high records for the season, in spite of heavy realizing and talking of an "inevitable reaction." The close was easy in tone, but at a net advance of 5 to 11 points, and at the high point of the afternoon December contracts sold at 13.57 and May at 13.65, with the general list 17 to 19 points net higher, about $7.40 a bale above the low level of the month. The market opened steady, but irregular, with October 11 points higher on a continued scare of shorts, while other positions were generally 2 points to 8 points lower in response to disappointing cables. Some of the big bulls seemed to be in favor of a reaction, arguing that the advance had been over-rapid and that the technical position of the market had been weakened, but during the early session prices sold up to a net advance of 4 to 11 points and while this was followed by a reaction to a net loss of 8 to 11 points offerings were so well absorbed on a scale down that early sellers became uneasy and the market made new high records all around during the afternoon on strong Western buying, covering by scalpers and a continued big demand through commission houses. Renewed realizing sent prices off a few points at the close. There was no fresh news of consequence, but the Southern advices continued very bullish as to the effect of the storm on the crop, and there were further reports that spinners were calling cotton on the advance. Southern spot markets officially reported ⅛@⅜c net higher.

It is officially announced that the report of the Census Bureau on amount of cotton ginned to September 25 will be issued on Monday, October 4, instead of October 2, as originally expected.

Receipts at the ports to-day 53,000 bales, against 53,262 last week and 47,639 last year; for the week 300,000, against 341,526 last week and 286,179 last year; to-day's receipts at New Orleans 2,031, against 3,073 last year, and at Houston 16,709, against 13,054 last year.

Futures opened steady and closed easy. The range for the day was as follows:

Futures opened steady at an advance of 1 to 7 points on favorable cables. It was a day of active trading and broad fluctuations. Until late in the session, prices had a strong advancing tendency on continued bad crop reports and a strong spot demand. This put the market up a dollar a bale and established new high-price records for the season. The country bought freely, orders coming in by mail, telephone and telegraph, while on the Cotton Exchange were an unusual number of out-of-town visitors, many of whom, immediately on their arrival in the city went long on cotton. In the last hour of trading longs took profits heavily and this caused a reaction of 16 points, the market closing steady at a net advance of 3 to 5 points. Futures closed steady. The range for the day was as follows:

COTTON COMMENTS.

New York.—Cotton was less active than yesterday, but exceedingly nervous and irregular, within a range of 12 to 14 points. The weather map was clear, and fair weather predicted generally except for the Carolinas. There were some advices saying storm in lower Mississippi was serious. We think the market is due to have some reaction from the 13½c level for May, but on good recessions should be bought.—(J. S. Bache & Co. to Washington Flexner & Co.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Liberal sales of the September delivery by a leading long caused general weakness in the wheat market here to-day, final quotations showing net losses of ⅝@½ to 1⅛c. Corn and oats also closed weak, but provisions were strong.

Liquidation of the September delivery was the feature of trading in the wheat pit. Selling of that option by the principal holder was in evidence throughout the session and it was reported late in the day that the entire line, the concentration of which in the hands of this influential elevator interest had caused congestion in that option for some time past, had been sold. The chief factor contributing to the unloading of this line was said to have been the continued enormous receipts in the Northwest and the falling off in demand for cash grain in that section. During the day the September delivery sold between $1.03½ and $1.01, while December ranged between 98⅝c and 99¼c. The close was weak with September at $1.01¾ and December at 98⅛c.

Despite low temperatures throughout the corn belt the market for corn was extremely weak all day because of free selling by leading cash interests. Prices at the sample tables were off fully 1c at one time. The market closed at the lowest point at net declines of 1c to 1¼@1⅝c.

Oats were weak owing to the heaviness of wheat and corn. The September delivery, however, was relatively firm because of moderate covering by shorts. Northwestern interests led in the selling. Prices at the close were off ¼@⅜c.

Provisions were strong all day owing to covering by shorts. Lard was in especially good demand because of the smallness of stocks in store. Light receipts of hogs at all Western packing centers also prompted considerable selling. Prices at the close were unchanged to 10c higher.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

GRAIN LETTERS.

Chicago.—Buying of wheat to-day was largely of a local character and prices, which were advanced early, did not hold. Several nervous rallies were scored, but wheat appeared to be on top on the strong spots. Reported selling of wheat by foreigners that Northwest was used as a bear factor, and larger receipts were predicted at the spring wheat markets. European markets were generally easier. Local milling demand was excellent and winter wheat millers are buying spring wheat for all rail shipment as well as by lake. Premiums firm in all directions and there is no general selling movement by farmers. Sentiment is bearish for a turn and prices may work a little lower, but eventually we regard the situation as sound from a bullish standpoint and would buy conservatively on weak spots. The corn market has been demoralized with no support outside of buying against the downs. Counter offerings more liberal, cash prices 1c lower and Eastern demand very poor. Argentine shipments large and Liverpool closed 1¼@1½c lower. Market acts heavy and may work a little lower.—(S. E. Chapin to S. C. Henning.

Chicago.—Market opened weak and continued so throughout the session with scarcely a rally. Long corn came out from all quarters—local professionals, commission houses and the country. There was moderate buying on scale orders, covering by shorts and holders of downward indemnities. Prices for car lots in the sample market were ⅝@1c lower. Market acts like dragging still lower. Covering by shorts in September oats did much to keep prices from declining as much as other grains. Leading holders of September supplied the demand, taking December at 1c less. Selling of December and May was scattered, with shorts best buyers. Price for car lots steady to ¼c lower.—(Bartlett, Patten & Co. to Washington Flexner & Co.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR THE MODEL TENEMENT

INDICATIONS ARE IT WILL BE BEST IN CITY.

MAY INSPIRE NUMBER OF SIMILAR STRUCTURES HERE.

PERFECT IN EVERY DETAIL.

Many poor children, who never spent a day or night in a steam-heated room, will have the opportunity of living in apartments warmed in this manner when plans of the Union Gospel Mission for its model tenement house on East Green street are consummated. More than this, they will have the chance to live under social conditions not possible now in scores of tenements in this city, where insufficient water supply, primitive sanitary arrangements and overcrowding as to the number of persons in each room work to the detriment of old and young alike.

These conditions have been given careful attention in the preparation of plans for the model tenement, which have just been announced. That the comparison between the proposed building, when actually in use, and numbers of tenements now occupied, will be such as to inspire property owners to improvements of a like character is the hope of the board of managers of the Union Gospel Mission, in making a canvass for funds to start in this way tenement house reform, which will begin next Monday.

The model house, as planned, will front 131 feet on Green street, between First and Brook, and extend back thirty-three feet toward Jefferson street, having the mission playground in the rear.

It will be constructed of brick and reinforced concrete and meet with fireproof requirements. On each of the three floors there will be ten apartments, of two and three rooms each. Portions of the roof and the basement, which will have ample light from the outside, will be reserved for the laundry work of the tenants. Most of the washing can be done in the basement and the drying of clothing on the roof. Each family will be provided with kitchen sinks, their own water supply and lavatories, equipped for bathing purposes. Every room will have direct outside air and light and the halls and stairways will be lighted by large windows. A playground in the basement will lead to the playground now maintained by the mission.

Though the model tenement will far surpass in every way the usual tenement, it is the purpose of the mission's board of managers to put the rentals within reach of all the poor classes. The aim is to help especially widows and deserted wives who have little children to support.

If your services ought to be valuable to someone want-advertise so persistently that you will find the right "someone."

TRAINING CLASS FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The Louisville training class will begin its session the first Monday in October. This class is conducted under the auspices of the Jefferson County Sunday-school Association for teachers of all denominations. They are offering two courses of study this year, the first standard course and the advanced standard course. The faculty has not been definitely decided on, but probably will include such men as Dr. Byron H. Dement, of the Baptist Theological Seminary; Dr. Henry Dosker, of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary; Dr. Fenner, pastor of the Second English Lutheran church; Dr. W. O. Carver, of the Baptist Theological Seminary; Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Dr. Beauchamp, pastor of the Fourth-avenue Methodist church, and Dr. W. N. Briney, pastor of the Boradway Christian church.

The advanced course will include a two years' study, the books of this year's course being "Books of the Old Testament," "The Conquest of the Cross," "Winning the World," and "The Life and Times of Christ."

The first standard course can be completed in one year and the book to be used probably will be "Training the Teacher," by Dr. Schauffler, Mrs. Lamoreaux, Dr. Brumbaugh and Marion Lawrance.

Man Sues Traction Company For Only $1,000.

ALLEGES MOTORMAN'S CARELESSNESS CAUSED INJURIES.

REPUBLICANS PREPARING FOR CONVENTION TO COME SOON.

N. T. DEPAUW AGAIN ELECTED.

George L. Spath, of New Albany, by his attorneys, Stotsenburg & Weathers, filed suit in the Floyd Circuit Court, in that city, yesterday against the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company, for $1,000 damages for personal injuries and destruction of property. He says that on June 20, 1909, he was driving east on West Main street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, when one of the defendants' cars came west, making loud and unusual noises by sounding a gong, and although he warned the motorman to stop he continued to advance, and by reason of this his team became frightened and himself and his wife and three small children were thrown out of the vehicle, the surry was broken, his wife sustained severe injuries and he was injured to his damage in the above sum.

N. T. DePauw Re-elected President.

Newland T. DePauw, of New Albany, was re-elected president of the Preachers' Aid Society of the Indiana Methodist Conference, at the session now being held in Washington, Daviess county. Mr. DePauw has been honored with this position for many years. His father, the late Washington C. DePauw, who was one of the largest contributors to the church in Indiana, also held the position. The report of J. E. Coffin, the secretary, showed that during the year $7,411 was turned in to the society. The report of the Rev. W. M. Whitsett, superintendent of the New Albany district, showed that there are 12,000 Methodists in the New Albany district with 120 Sunday-schools. A feature of the work in the church during the year was temperance, and eight of the thirteen counties in the district have gone "dry" by remonstrance or election. The Rev. Walter B. Grimes, pastor of the Main-street M. E. church, was selected by the conference to preach in Knox county next week in favor of closing the saloons in that county.

Died In Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Prosser, of New Albany, left last night for Los Angeles, Cal., to attend the funeral of Mrs. Rachel Cleland, the mother of Mrs. Prosser, who received a telegram announcing her death on Thursday night. Mrs. Prosser did not know that her mother was ill, and the news of her death was a great shock to her. Mrs. Cleland will be remembered by the older citizens. She was the widow of Capt. John Cleland, and was 76 years old. The family lived for many years on the River road, below the city. They moved to California nearly twenty years ago. Mrs. Cleland is survived by five sons, George, Thomas, Samuel, Edgar and Wilbur Cleland, and three daughters, Mrs. John Augustus, Miss Emma Cleland, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Evan Prosser, of New Albany. Mr. Prosser is travelling passenger agent of the B. and O. railway, and returned home yesterday after a long trip. He was grieved to hear of the death of his mother-in-law.

The Republican Nominations.

M. Bert Thurman, of New Albany, chairman of the Republican Committee of Floyd county, said last evening, after the Democratic primaries were over, that the Republican City Central Committee, of which Councilman George Strack is chairman, will be called to meet within the next few days, and a ticket will be placed in the field to oppose the one nominated by the Democrats yesterday. The Republican Committee will not go to the trouble of holding a primary, but will fix up a ticket at the post-office or at the Tribune office. The rank and file in the party want a primary, but the committee is opposed to holding one. Charles Inman, the ice man, is spoken of as the probable selection for Mayor, but the friends of Councilman George Strack are insisting that he make the race.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM NEW ALBANY.

—City Clerk Short issued to John Vernia a permit for the erection of a cottage in St. Catharine Place to cost $1,000.

Moffat; vice president, Edward Ridley; secretary, Martha Martin; treasurer, Catherine Newhouse. An interesting and instructive course of work will be taken up during the winter.

—Three damage suits that originated in Floyd county and were transferred to Corydon on a change of venue, have been again transferred from the Harrison Circuit Court to the Crawford Circuit Court in English. The suits are styled: Leander C. Adams vs. the Southern Railway Company, Clara Schubert vs. the same, Mae Sohn, administratrix of the estate of William Preis, deceased, against the same company, and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, all for alleged personal injuries.

—The series of lectures given by the Rev. Xavier Sutton, of the Passionist order at St. Mary's-of-the-Knobs Catholic church, near Mooresville, will close at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon instead of Sunday night, as first intended. The lectures were given for the benefit of non-Catholics, and have been largely attended. The Rev. Father Sermerhe'm, rector of the church, who originated the idea, has received a vote of tanks from the people living near his church for providing the lectures, which were free.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

Mrs. S. A. Jackson announces the fall opening of fashionable millinery at her new store, 132 East Market street, Saturday and Monday, Sept. 25 and 27.

NEGRO RUN DOWN BY AN AUTOMOBILE.

Will Bonner, colored, was struck and injured by the automobile belonging to W. C. Nones at First and Brandies streets yesterday morning. The front wheel of the car was broken, but neither Mr. Nones nor the negro chauffeur, Eph Young, was hurt. Bonner received a scalp wound, but his injuries were not serious.

The automobile was going out the street at a moderate rate of speed when Bonner jumped from a lumber wagon and started to cross the street immediately in front of the car. The chauffeur turned suddenly to avoid striking the man, but the machine was too close upon him to change its course sufficiently to avoid a collision. Bonner was knocked down and the machine ran into a telegraph pole. The front wheel of the car was broken but the automobile was not otherwise damaged.

A VEGETARIAN DIET.

Apart from any other question, is it any wonder that so many people exclude meat for Faust Brand Spaghetti, considering how well it nourishes without producing that uncomfortable "after dinner" feeling, without overheating the body, and at a cost that seems a mere nothing when compared with the price of meat?

Any day—every day—once a day or twice a day—for grown folks and growing folks—indoor people and outdoor people—strong digestions and weak digestions—brain workers and body workers—there's no other one food that begins to be like Faust Brand Spaghetti. And how indescribably good it is! This time as steaming brown baked spaghetti, next time with eggs, to-day as a side dish, to-morrow as the principal dish—always right—always appetizing—getting the family to the table on time and crusing them to linger behind hoping for more.

IN BAD SHAPE

Jeffersonville Republicans Seem to Be Disorganized.

URGED TO INDORSE JAMES BURKE'S CANDIDACY.

LOUISVILLE COUPLES MARRY.

A big Jeffersonville Republican, who has twice been the party nominee for a county office, made the statement yesterday morning in the presence of several persons, some of whom belong to his party, that he thought the Republicans at the convention on next Monday night to nominate candidates for city offices, should indorse James E. Burke, the Democratic nominee for Mayor, and adjourn, as it did not seem that any person could be found to beat him. It is prevailing impression that the Republicans of Jeffersonville were never so badly disorganized as at present.

The guiding hand of some of the old leaders is missing and it is asserted the destinies of the party are being steered by amateurs. On Monday night candidates for eleven offices are to be nominated, but up to last evening only four persons had officially said they would make the race for anything. Two of these have offered for the office of Councilman and two for Councilman-at-large, there being three to be nominated. The name of a candidate for City Clerk, a position that beginning with January 1 will pay $1,200 per year, is not even being mentioned.

There is still no avowed candidate for the nomination for Mayor, but the following are mentioned, and it is said either is in a receptive mood: Charles A. Schimpff, City Controller; William L. Samuels, president of the Board of Public Works; Samuel A. Cunningham, a member of the Board of Public Works, and Oscar Johnson, Sheriff of Clark county. None of the four has said he will make a fight for the nomination, but it is claimed Mr. Cunningham has been talking with some of the "boys" who may be delegates to the convention.

Announce Two Marriages.

Magistrate James S. Keigwin, of Jeffersonville, was requested yesterday to announce that on September 6 he officiated at the secret marriage of Daniel P. Salmon, who is employed in a sawmill, and Miss Blanch Logan, who was a wrapper in a tobacco factory, both of Louisville. The bridegroom is a native of Erlington, Ky., and is 27 years old. The bride is 25 years old and a native of Missouri. She is a daughter of Milas Logan, a carpenter.

It was also announced at the office of Curtis W. Ballard, Circuit Clerk, yesterday that Robert Parkanson, an employe of the L. and N. railroad, whose home is in Highland Park, Ky., and Miss Mary Cunningham, of Louisville, had been married in Jeffersonville, Wednesday night, by Magistrate James S. Keigwin. It was not intended the affair should be kept secret, but the papers were not in their usual place. The bridegroom is nearly 23 years old and a native of Larue county. The bride is 18 years of age and was born in Oldham county, Ky., where her father, George Cunningham, still lives and is a farmer. An affidavit was made by Charles A. Loughmiller.

A Little Ancient History.

A letter received in Jeffersonville yesterday describes at length a reunion of the survivors and their descendants, of a party of sixteen that left Borden, Clark county, Ind., on March 25, 1866, and were among the first settlers of Seattle, Wash. The trip was made by the way of Aspinwall, Panama, the party reaching Portland, Ore., on May 1, 1866. By train the party went from Borden to New York and from there to Aspinwall on the steamer Arizona. The steamer encountered severe storms and lost both paddlewheels, repairs being made at sea as the vessel was tossed about by the waves.

Those who composed the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Denny, their son, Harry Denny, his wife and their children; Mr. and Mrs. William Baker, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Denny and their four children; John W. Denny and bride; Miss Josie Denny and her brother, Samuel Denny, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Denny. Of the original sixteen who made the journey all but Samuel Denny, Sr., his wife, Mrs. Baker and Carl Denny, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Denny, are living. When the party left it was for the purpose of joining A. A. Denny and David Denny, formerly of Clark county, Ind., who were the first white persons to settle at Alki Point, near Seattle, in 1851.

Great Surprise Over Appointment.

When it became known in Jeffersonville yesterday that Ambrose Waltman, of Heimsburg, Brown county, Ind., had been named as custodian of the State Forest Reservation near Henryville, there was considerable surprise expressed, as it was the supposition a man from that locality would be appointed, it having been through the efforts of friends of some of them that charges had been preferred against Harry Thomas, a Republican, who resigned, that a vacancy was created. Among the applicants were Fred Metzger and Walter Gross, both of whom are considered competent men for the position and live near the reservation. There were several other Clark county applicants. The place pays $60 per month with certain privileges as to crops and live stock on the reservation.

DRAGGED BY STREET CAR, BUT PRACTICALLY UNHURT.

Boy Had String Attached To Finger Which Caught In Guard of Street Car.

After he had been dragged for the length of a square by his index finger Eugene A. Stellber, aged 10 years, son of William Stellberg, Twenty-sixth and Madison streets, escaped serious injury yesterday morning. The child had a piece of heavy twine wrapped about his index finger on his right hand. A West Walnut-street car stopped to let off passengers at Twenty-sixth street and young Stellberg stepped for a moment on the life guard attached to the rear of the car. He intended to get off before the car started, but the twine caught on the railing and the child was thrown to the street and dragged by his finger.

Standing upon the rear platform of the car was Dr. W. M. Dwyer. He heard the boy scream as he bumped and bounced along the hard surface of the street and the car rails of the street car track. After the youth had been dragged for fully a square the car was stopped at Twenty-seventh street. The boy was carried to his home, where, to the astonishment of Dr. Dwyer, his patient only sustained severe lacerations and bruises about the body. The finger will not have to be amputated, is the opinion of the attending physician. Young Stellberg's escape from death is considered almost a miracle.
